Going to Borrow 5c. Again

The plan of borrowing a nickel from everyone we served with a cup of Red Rose Tea at the Toronto Exhibition last year and giving each one a coupon worth 5c. anywhere when buying a package of Red Rose Tea was declared so successful by merchants generally that we are going to do it again this year.

Will you be good enough to accept these coupons again this year as part payment for a package of Red Rose Tea. They will be redeemed at their face value by any Red Rose Tea traveller or when sent to our Toronto Office.

If you are in Toronto during the Fair we will be very pleased to have you call at our new warehouse, 7 Front St. East, or at the Red Rose Tea Booth at the Exhibition, and if we can extend you any courtesy or serve you in any way the pleasure will be ours. At the booth just make yourself known to the traveller in charge. A corner and a couple of tables will be reserved for grocers, their wives and friends, and you will enjoy the tea too.

Flour as an All-the-Year-Round Seller

Another Montreal Dealer Making Special Efforts to Increase Sales During the Summer—Has Flour Put Up in Small-Sized Bags for Pastry Purposes—Clerks Should Suggest It.

Montreal, August 24.—(Special).—Flour remains one of the retail grocer's leading staples. The fact that on all sides they tell you so, should be sufficient evidence, although it is admitted that here and there members of the trade have, for various reasons, allowed flour to descend to a minor position compared to what it used to be.

Wm. Hawthorne, a Montreal grocer at 1155 Mount Royal Ave., east, claims that the demand for flour is as good as ever. There is, of course, quite a falling off during the summer months but with this exception flour holds its own in the grocery store. Mr. Hawthorne is located in a good district, his customers being, to a large extent, tradesmen and mechanics. Their wives are bread bakers from the time the cool weather begins to tint the autumn leaves until the following June, and consequently they are buyers of flour. There are some exceptions, but the demand is of such a healthy character that he cannot help but express his satisfaction.

The Summer Trade.

Just now, Mr. Hawthorne is selling quite a quantity of flour for pastry purposes although there is still some demand for bread purposes. The favorite summer method of buying flour is in small quantities.

Mr. Hawthorne sells "seven pound cotton bags" for twenty-five cents and disposes of quite a number every week. He carries several of the best blends and in this manner the satisfaction of his customers is easily gained.

Easy to Handle.

One favorable feature about flour in the grocery business is that it presents no difficulty in being handled. It is put up in barrels and bags and requires only a little of the grocer's attention. Window arrangements that will prove interesting are easily made. A counter display of the small bags may be made now and then and can be arranged in a short time. And as far as suggesting flour goes it simply comes natural to the clerk. On the whole, flour should not be overlooked. The ordinary slip-shod methods will only bring a very ordinary trade.

Manufacturers Will Help.

Grocers may receive certain assistance from manufacturers. Their advertising campaigns are helpful and they have various methods of lending an aid to the grocer in order to gain the customers' attention and direct purchases toward flour.

Lard and Provision Prices are Firmer

Lard is Higher and Provisions Stronger Under Good Demand and Higher Hog Market—Offerings of Porkers Small—Cheese is Higher and in Precarious Position—Prices Considered Unwarranted by Many Dealers—Butter is Stronger.

The general provision market shows signs of greater strength. With live hogs on all markets higher in price, pork products are naturally exhibiting a similar tendency. Lard is among the lines that are strong, and advances have occurred on several markets, Montreal reporting an upward movement of ¾ cents in pure, while compound is also stronger. As the fall approaches and the weather becomes cooler, the demand for this line is heavier, and the anticipation of this, combined with higher hogs, is no doubt accountable. A good trade at most centres is reported, the demand for hams and bacon being at an appreciable figure.

Stinted offerings of the porkers, backed by a strong English bacon, has been responsible for the recent advances in live hogs. Farmers are no doubt too busy with the harvest to make deliveries. The prospects for feed will no doubt have a certain influence in determining future hog values.

There is also a stronger tendency in butter, although production keeps well up with last year. Western Canada has relieved the Eastern markets somewhat, while there has also been considerable export demand. Advances have taken place on some of the Eastern Canadian markets. General conditions in eggs are unchanged but steady. Select stocks are limited, and in good demand.

The cheese market is higher again, and its position precarious. Ever since early in June, there has been a steadily increasing tendency, and the market is regarded as being higher than is warranted. With the production nearly equalling last year, prices on the Toronto market are 13¾c, as compared with 11¾c one year ago. The market has been following Old Country prices, which are somewhat unreliable just now on account of the strike.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Pure lard is reported up ¾ cent., and compound up ¼ cent. The demand for hams and bacon is improved, and a good trade is passing. Live and dressed hogs are considerably firmer.

Provisions—There is a general stronger feeling in the provision market this week. Since our last report live hogs have advanced a total of 35 cents, bringing quotations at country points up to $7.70. The range for short cut in barrel has been advanced to $21 to $22. Lard is also stronger, under a fair movement, and some firms are quoting it at higher prices. The general feeling in this line is at any rate steadier, and demand will no doubt be larger as the weather becomes cooler. Long clear is higher at 12c, while other lines of pork products are steadier, breakfast bacon being one of the prominent lines. An active trade is in evidence this week and good prospects for business during the fall.

STORE HINTS.

When business is dull, then is the busy season for the good salesman.

A good orator is not necessarily a good salesman.

A Big Oyster Season is Anticipated

Warm Weather Has Been Conducive to Good Supply—Lobster and Salmon Fairly Plentiful in the East, but Mackerel and Herring are Light—A Good Fish Season in View.

Montreal, Aug. 24 (Special).—The outlook for the fish industry in the Maritime Provinces is encouraging.

The catch of mackerel, herrings and eels has been below the average, but lobsters and salmon, have been plentiful and good prices have been obtained. In regard to lobsters there is not likely to be any price changes, as the normal for business has practically been reached. The codfish market has been active, the catch being above the average this year and export trade is brisk.

During the past few years a number of cold storage plants have been installed along the coast, receiving financial assistance from the government. This is bound to develop the fish trade, but up to the present no striking practical results have accrued.

The Oyster Crop.

This should be a big oyster year on account of the warm weather, unless the overfishing of previous years by people on the coast has a bad effect. Malpeques are scarce and it seems that the time is not far distant when they will be extinct. In the United States oyster districts planters and packers are looking for a big year. Canada imports large supplies annually. If the present expectations are realized there should be no scarcity of bulk oysters during the approaching season and prices should be reasonable.

Preparations are under way for the handling of smokers, kippers and bloaters which are expected to come in by September first..

The new season is about to open up and there are reasons for expecting increased activity and a greater volume of business. Each retailer who deals in fish should make his plans early for the fall and winter trade.

How Will Wheat Yield Affect Flour?

A Total Yield of Close on 200 Million Bushels Estimated for Canadian West — Much Larger Production Than Last Year— United States Crop is Short.

Trade in flour and cereals from millers to retailers with the crops just about at the critical point is naturally on a hand-to-mouth basis. Dealers in all parts of the country are holding off, trying to discern in the distance the probable manner in which the flour market will turn when something definite regarding the Canadian cereal output has been ascertained. The consumption of these lines, however, is well maintained, retailers being well satisfied with the trade being done in these lines considering the season.

From present prospects, barring any drawbacks, it seems as if the Canadian West will produce an enormous crop of wheat this year. One estimate sent out from Winnipeg sets the total yield of the three Western Provinces at 200 million bushels from a total acreage of 9,925,000 acres. Of this, according to this estimate, Manitoba will give 52,400,000 bushel, Saskatchewan, 128,700,000 bushels and Alberta 17,600,000 bushels. Other more conservative estimates set it around 175,000,000 bushels, and opinions and ideas regarding the crop are not at all scarce. The total United States crop will, however, be short close on 30 millions of wheat, while the Russian crop is not good.

One miller in speaking of the outlook said: "With this yield and under the present conditions, prices on flour would no doubt be considerably lower. However, if the reciprocity agreement goes through, Canadian wheat would be in good demand by North Western United States millers and the overplus will no doubt be taken care of and the same effect on flour prices will not be felt."

An idea of the big yield was given by this dealer: "If we have a crop of from 180 to 200 million bushels, after allowing for seed and the needs of the Canadian people, it will still mean that from 400 to 500 cars of wheat will have to be exported every day during the season to care for the wheat supply."

In regard to oats another miller stated that if reciprocity goes through, it will mean a higher figure for oats as prices are at present about 7 cents higher on United States markets. One report says there is a shortage of 300 million bushels of oats in the States as compared with last year.

Flour at the present time is 90 cents per barrel lower than a year ago when it was quoted on the Toronto market at $6.20. On Sept. 9, it declined 30 cents $6.20. On Sept. 23rd by a 20-cent drop, bringing it down to $5.70 per barrel.

The Port Huron grocers held their annual picnic to London, Ont., on Aug. 23. About 3,000 excursionists took in the event. The London Grocers' Association entertained the visitors.

"My grocer's the maddest man you ever saw. The inspector of weights and measures gave him a call this morning."

"Ha! Caught him giving fourteen ounces for a pound, eh?"

"Worse than that! Found a mistake in his scales, and he'd been giving seventeen!"

Brisk Trade in Domestic Fruits

Dealers Busy With Home Grown Fruits—Big Supplies Now Coming Forward—Imported Lines Are Naturally Quiet—Trade in Lemons is Not Brisk—Potatoes Are Lower—Canadian Product Supplying Demand.

Briskness rules on Canadian fruit markets at the present time. Domestic fruits are occupying the position of prominence, with imported lines inclined to quietness, although on some markets there is a considerable trade in California peaches, pears and plums for table use. However, trade on the whole is good, and dealers are well satisfied with the business that is being done.

Freestone peaches are on the market, and are the cause of increased trade, being especially desirable for preserving purposes. Peaches generally look like a fair crop. Grapes are coming forward and promise to be a full crop, although in some sections of the Niagara District it is reported that the hail storms caused considerable loss.

The big sale of domestic fruits has naturally caused a lull in the demand for oranges. Still, shipments from the coast are not heavy and the easiness in prices is but slight as yet.

Trade in lemons is not any too brisk just at the present. While spot stocks are fairly large, still present supplies will have to last until the middle of November when the new crop begins to arrive from Italy. "There is close on three months yet before new supplies will arrive, and even with only medium warm weather stocks won't last," said one dealer.

Prices on potatoes are generally easier under increased supplies. The Canadian trade is practically being supplied with the home-grown article now. New Brunswick has sent some shipments of potatoes westward.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—California plums, pears and peaches are in good demand, but even with that condition it is understood that there are prices quoted lower than those in the appended list. It depends of course on conditions existing on particular days. Blueberries of fine quality are being offered at liberal prices. The new apples are also in good demand. Grape fruit are high owing to the scarcity of supplies.

Vegetables.—There is a big trade in new home grown vegetables most of which pass from the grower through the retail grocer's hands to the consumer. They are brought in from the country side and are selling at low prices. The wholesale fruitmen get a share of the trade but it is not heavy. The demand for tomatoes and potatoes is good with prices ruling steady.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Every day is a busy day at the Toronto fruit market now, a good brisk trade being done in domestic fruits. Supplies of the different fruits are large and retailers are pushing them for preserving. Peaches are receiving a good deal of attention. Yellow St. John, a good freestone variety is now on the market. Grapes in our last list were 75 cents, but large supplies have reduced prices to 25 to 35 cents. Bartlett pears have also arrived.

Trade in imported lines under the rush of domestic fruits is naturally quiet. The demand for oranges has slackened off while lemons are also quiet. Some small dealers are evidently afraid they are going to be left with stocks of lemons and prices in some cases have been shaded slightly. One dealer, however, in touch with the situation, declared that if the weather continues warm, he believes stocks will be short as present supplies will have to last until the new crop arrives in November.

Tomatoes are higher under scantier supplies, while sugar melons are lower.

BUSTER BROWNS AGAIN WIN THE LEMON LEAGUE

The League was again made up of the same teams, among whom were the Justus Goods, Secundus, Irregulars, Short Counts and the Cheap Goods. Great credit can be given to Quality of the Buster Browns for his splendid work throughout the season. The race was made easier on account of some of the teams not showing up to the form represented. Fish - Oysters

General Trade in Fish is Quite Fair

Improvement Already Noted at Some Centres—Oyster Fishing Has Commenced—Oysters Will Begin to Arrive on Markets in Another Week—With Cooler Weather Increased Business is Expected—How Fishing is Progressing on the Eastern Coast.

Dealers state they have already felt an improvement in business. This is encouraging as September is still a week distant, and it may be considered a foretaste of what the fall is likely to bring. There was a fair trade last week and it has continued to manifest itself again during the past few days. The fresh fish trade has been active but owing to the warm weather the demand for prepared and salted lines has been slow. However, with the cool weather that will soon be felt, increased business is expected, and a good season is being anticipated.

Along the Nova Scotian Coast, mackerel have struck in in small quantities. Bankers have of late been able to secure ample supplies of bait in Newfoundland, which should help a great deal in the catch. So far, the fishery on the Gaspe coast has been fair. On the north side of Newfoundland, it is particularly good but does not come up to the average on the south and south-west. News from Labrador is both good and bad.

QUEBEC.

Montreal—Haddock and cod are not quite as plentiful this week and prices are a little firmer. Brook trout and fresh doree are still scarce, but a better supply is expected for next month. Fresh herring are beginning to arrive. They are a nice large fish. Supplies of halibut and salmon are arriving from the west. The opening of the oyster season is being talked of and pretty soon this end of the trade will be in full swing.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John.—One of the worst seasons for salmon fishing, both nettiog and fly, on the St. John river closed this week. On the Miramichi river the season was up to the average, but on the St. John and in the harbor of the St. John the catch was not at all encouraging. Fisheries Inspector Harrison, of Fredericton, said this week that there was a probability that the fall run would be heavy, as this was usually the case when the summer catch was poor. Fishermen and dealers entertain different opinions as regards the cause of the falling off in the supply, some contending that the dredging operations at the mouth of the St. John harbor, made necessary in its development, were responsible for the decrease, while others claim that poor fishing seasons come in cycles, and that this was the off season in and about St. John.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—Oysters will be on the market in another week and should prove a stimulant to trade in general. Business in fish locally is quiet and this impetus will be welcomed. Dealers should consider the possibilities in oysters at the present time when appetites after the period of non-supply are good. Prices on fish show no alteration from the values that have ruled for the past month.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Mackerel struck in along the coast this week in small quantities, some of the fishermen getting from 50 to 100 in their nets. The fish are large and when they reached the market they found a ready sale. These are the first of the fall run. Herring are also becoming more plentiful and some fairly large catches have been made.

Owing to the unfavorable weather for curing, the arrivals of cured codfish have been small. There has been no important change in prices since last week. The indications are for lower prices, but at the present time it is difficult to estimate what the normal price will be. It depends altogether on the catch which is still in progress.

There is not much doing in pickled fish at present. The catches are light and the demand good. Salmon is easing off slightly in price. On alewives there is little or nothing doing. The market is almost bare of the new cure, and some exporters are now leaving this article off their price list.

RE-SELLING SALMON.

Of the 300,000 cases of red Alaska salmon sent to England last season, it is estimated that fully 50,00 cases have been returned to America and sold at a profit to the English sellers.

"Odd-Job" Boy is Advanced to Manager's Seat

Ambition and determination were the chief factors in helping one young man in the Maritime Provinces from the lowest rung in the grocery trade up to a position of manager of a large retail grocery concern. The story of his success is unique in the fact that he started at the lowest position possible and continued with the same store without changing until he was at last placed in charge of the store.

No better name can be applied to the first position he held in this establishment than "chore-boy." He was not allowed the honor of delivering, as most boys are on the start, but spent his time in cleaning up the store-house, running messages and other odd jobs that fell to his lot.

Even while in this position he had dreams of the day when he would be manager of the business. They were not idle dreams either, but genuine ambition backed by determination that he would one day hold that position. This determination was of great help to him while he traveled to the top.

If a person sets his heart on some particular ideal and decides to attain that ideal, it is wonderful how such determination will help in the desired object.

He set out with an ideal and worked continually with it in view. When he cleaned up the store-house it was well done and when he delivered a message, it was done as quickly as possible. It was not long until he was promoted to the position of deliverer—the first mile post on his march upward.

Here, he had a better chance to prove his worth. The delivering for that store was never done better. Every parcel was laid down at the customer's home in the best condition. He was obliging and all the customers liked him. He picked up many additional orders while on his rounds and when he had any spare time he spent it in helping the clerks to serve customers instead of loafing.

When he was serving customers, he put forth a genuine effort to sell and the employer began to recognize his salesmanship ability, and he was soon promoted to junior clerk. He still had his ideals and worked with them in view. His sales soon began to exceed those of older clerks because he made a study of selling goods. He studied every line in stock, what it was used for and how prepared.

Being a good salesman and interested in the business, the employer was soon entrusting other important parts of the business to him. He was made buyer in a short time and last year when the proprietor decided to give up active business life, he was appointed manager, the goal upon which he had set his eyes when he first entered the store.

SCUM ON PICKLES.

A recipe given by one grocer to remove the scum from bulk pickles is as follows:—"When scum appears on the top of bulk pickles skim off the scum and then dip out vinegar until the pickles are reached. Then add sufficient distilled vinegar of about 40 grain to make up the loss of liquid removed. Stir the contents of the cask occasionally so that mould will not collect."

JAMAICA'S SUGAR REVIVAL.

There is promise of a considerable revival of the sugar industry in Jamaica, as a result of a scheme now being put forward by English capitalists. The proposal is to establish a big central sugar factory on the St. Catherines Plains and just as soon as landowners in lower St. Catherines will guarantee to put in at least 1,500 acres of cane, a factory will be erected at Sydenham pen, about two miles out of Spanish town.

Some Work Being Accomplished by Bright Salesmen

The clerk with a certain amount of initiative is the one most likely to succeed. Such a clerk will not depend wholly on his employer for directions in regard to carrying out the work but will himself devise ways and means not only of looking after the business already coming but of attracting a larger amount of trade.

There are many clerks throughout the Dominion who are doing this and are thus increasing their value as a salesman. Here is an instance. In an Ontario town visited one day this summer by the writer, business was slack and several of the clerks in a particular store were loitering behind the counter. One of these, however, is a hustler, and decided to make use of his time. He took a bottle of pickles off the shelf and started out to drum up business. He visited two of the nearby hotels and succeeded in selling a quantity of the pickles as well as some fresh fruit that had been received that day. He then went to several private houses which were not regular customers, but bought occasionally. He told them exactly what he was doing, that things were quiet in the store and he had decided to get some orders to work on. He DID get them too.

A young man engaged in delivering in a Manitoba town, where the writer spent a week recently, told of his experiences in selling new lines of goods to customers.

"Sometimes," he said, "I take the article along with me and introduce it directly, but other times I do not. I go into a house with perhaps a new brand of meat sauce in the basket. When I have delivered the parcels, I casually mention how many bottles of this sauce we have sold, telling the housewife about the quality, but not actually mentioning anything about selling it to her. Often she told me to send a bottle. I never leave the one I have as this would spoil the effect of my selling plan. Sometimes I refer to articles which I have not with me, and then when I call next time I say: "Here is the marmalade I was telling you about, Mrs. Customer. Would you like to try a jar?"

Another clerk in that same town found that a number of new families were moving there where the men were to be employed in a certain factory. He went to this factory, secured their names and addresses, called on them before any of the other grocers had a chance and as a result secured them all but two as regular customers.

The clerk would do well to be on the lookout for any way in which he may secure more customers and more business for his store. This is the kind of work that the proprietor appreciates.

FARRINGTON PHILOSOPHY.

See that your delivery vehicle or your errand boy present such an appearance that no one will be ashamed to have the neighbors see goods come in from your store.

The clerk who welcomes a customer with a smile is an addition to the store. The clerk who welcomes her with a smirk can easily be dispensed with.

Don't let a leak in your business go on because it seems too small to be worth stopping. The little leaks are the ones that swamp the ship.

Criticism of our methods is usually more unpleasant to hear than compliments about them, but as a rule we can make more money by listening to it.

Deliveryman in the Capacity of a Salesman

The deliveryman is an important factor in the selling force of every store, and particularly the delivery man of a village or country town business. Besides the many ways by which he contributes indirectly to the increasing of sales by giving the best service possible in delivering, there is also a way in which he may do some direct work along this line by showing some real salesmanship in selling goods while delivering. Coming in contact with so many customers, he has a splendid chance to sell goods.

One of the chief methods is in getting orders for goods that the housewife has forgotten when she called at the store and more especially when she gave her order by phone. He should always be on the lookout for such orders and should not neglect to mention the subject to her frequently. Name the articles over to her whenever advisable, and she will quite often think of some which she needs. Take one thing at a time and handle it well. For instance say: "How is your stock of currants and raisins to-day? We have just opened up a fresh shipment and they are of excellent quality."

Then there is a good chance to introduce new lines. Let the delivery man take some new line along with him. He should be well acquainted with it's use and quality and be able to talk intelligently about it. If he dilligently applies himself he will be able to sell a good deal of goods in this way.

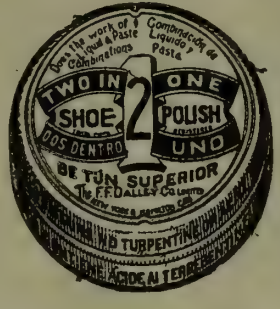
ALWAYS RIGHT. SUN PASTE

Stove Polish is just right every time you sell it, and the boxes are always filled full. You have no complaints coming after you pass it over your counter. Why not make friends for yourself as well as for us by selling the stove polish which always pleases the housekeeper? That's SUN PASTE. Just push it and see them come back for more.

MORSE BROS., Props. - Canton, Mass., U.S.A.

You Must Realize



that an article which has a huge amount of consumer advertising behind it to pull it through the stores, as has

2 in 1

must be a profitable and quick selling line to handle.

But in addition to this ad-pulling force, "2 in 1" has sterling merit behind it. It preserves the boots and makes them pliable; is waterproof; shines quickly and lasts a long time; does not soil the clothes or clog the brush and is just now in increasing demand.

You can't afford to be without "2 in 1" on your shelves.

Yet Another Tea!

—One with such unusually fine flavor that you can well afford to make room for it.

One delightful sip of King Cole Tea, then even what your customers thought their favorite brands must take second place for ever. Such rich fullness of flavor, such delicate smoothness, were never before quite so skillfully concentrated in a tea-cup as in a cup of King Cole Tea.

In frank sincerity we say it should be well worth your while to be the first to introduce such tea joy as King Cole to the people in your neighborhood.

For King Cole Tea is really good enough for customers to go out of one store and into another for. It can be the means of earning quite a few extra sales for you if you will give it the chance.

At any rate, a try-out only means investing in a few packages to start with. King Cole Tea will win its own way after that.

In the meantime, any responsible Maritime merchant who would like to make sure that we are not over-enthusiastic about the flavor of King Cole Tea can have a package for his family to try, if he will kindly ask us.

Highest Quality

The absolute purity of Cox's Gelatine makes it a standard product of world-wide fame. Whether in powdered or shredded form, it is still as free from foreign substances as the clearest rock crystal from mother earth.

Cox's Gelatine

It has never disappointed, and never will, because folks get what they expect and want when they buy the peer of all—"Cox's." Highest quality to-day, to-morrow and all the to-morrows to come. A safe and certain asset for a grocer's stock - in - trade — always worth its face value of 100 cents on the dollar.

Codou's Macaroni, Vermicelli, Spaghetti, fancy letters and pastes, represent the top-notch of quality—the highest attainment of skill, experience and cleanliness in a model factory, said to be (by those who really know) one of the finest in the world.

Codou's Macaroni

A macaroni whose delicacy and whiteness bear witness to the caution used in selecting only finest wheat (from Taganrog) for the making. Tender as a macaroni can be, nutritious to the highest degree. Let the name on every package "Codou" serve to assure you of highest quality when you buy.

STOP

LETTING GOOD MONEY SLIP THROUGH YOUR FINGERS!

Of course, you don't mean to let your profits leak away, but why don't you STOP IT?

If you let an item of $1.00 each week slip by without being charged that means a loss of $52.00 for the year.

If you let $1.00 each week SLIP THROUGH YOUR FINGERS in settling DISPUTED ACCOUNTS that means you must sell $260,00 worth of goods to make up for it.

If you are using some drop-leaf SLIP system where several accounts are exposed at the same time and lose slips (representing money) get accounts mixed, bring forward wrong past accounts and possibly to cap the climax lose all your accounts in a fire, you may not be able to estimate your loss,—but why bother then—it's to late.

CUT IT OUT—NOW!!

BUY A 1911 MODEL KEITH ACCOUNT SYSTEM.

It will stop FORGOTTEN CHARGES on account of the NUMBERING FEATURE. No other system has this feature.
It will absolutely prevent disputes—ask us why.
It will positively prevent losing of slips, mixing of accounts, and manipulation of charges.
It will protect your accounts against fire.

Are You A Good Salesman?

A good salesman prefers to sell a high-grade article, because it stays sold—and because it means repeat orders. This explains why so many top-notch salesmen like to sell PURITY FLOUR. It is a high-grade article. It only needs to be sold to a customer once. It sells itself afterwards.

A good salesman can sell

to the majority of home cooks who call at the store. This is how he does it:

He gives them an interesting selling talk on its high quality, showing them it is worth every cent asked. He emphasizes the fact that PURITY FLOUR consists exclusively of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat berries. He lays stress on its superior strength and flavor, on its uniformity. He closes the sale by showing them that it is an economical flour, too, because it makes "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" than the same quantity of average flour.

Hundreds of good salesmen are selling PURITY FLOUR to thousands of Canadian home cooks. It rests with you to show that you, too, are a good salesman.

To the Manufacturer or Wholesaler

If it were possible to employ a traveller who could call on thousands of the best dealers all through Canada every week, what salary would you figure he'd be worth—even supposing he did nothing more than go in and shake hands with these dealers, under such circumstances they'd be glad to see him.

Would he be worth $200, $300 or $500 per week? Many a house would pretty nearly let him fix his own salary.

Equip an advertisement in this paper with a verbal handshake for every dealer in Canada, and a frank, brief, pointed talk about your goods and you add a traveller to your staff who will make thousands of calls a week for you at a salary of $4 to $8 a week—less than you would pay a first-class stenographer.

Of course this traveller won't displace any of your regular salesmen, but he will help them to sell more goods and open up more new accounts.

SEASONABLE GOODS

FRENCH PEAS IMPORTED, SOLEIL BRAND

In a previous advertisement we recorded the fact that the crop of French Peas was a failure, and we asked all merchants not to delay the placing of their order.
The demand has been so large that to-day we have only a few cases of fine and medium No. 1 to offer. Order without delay. Do not depend on Canadian Peas because the proportion engaged for delivery by the canners will not be sufficient to fill the orders on hand.

SARDINES

As expected, the price of canned salmon will be still higher than last year for the 1911 packing. Consequently, Sardines are now in great demand and the prices will increase during winter. Buy now at the right prices. Our stock is complete. We recommend the Victoria and Tevillec Brands.

RAISINS, FIGS, NUTS, ORANGE and LEMON PEELS

There will soon be a great demand for these goods. Stock now. We have a full stock of first-class goods at attractive prices.

CHOICE BARBADOES MOLASSES

The price of Fancy Molasses is so high to-day that the choice quality is now in great demand. Prices are profitable in tons, quarters and half-quarters.

CANNED GOODS

We are still taking orders for future delivery on arrival for vegetables, fruits and jams. The Aylmer, Simcoe and Victoria Brands are in great demand.

The Year's Outlook in Dried Fruits

Last Year's Short Production Affects This Year's Prices, Too—General Dried Fruits Will Not be Cheap—Prospects for Both Mediterranean and California Products—Prune Production is Larger Than Last Year, but Prices Will be High —Larger Output of Valencia Raisins, and Also Currants—Peaches and Apricots Short.

The short production in general dried fruits last year has not only sent prices soaring during the past twelve months but is having a considerable bearing on this year's prices of dried fruits.

The world's markets are at present extremely bare of all lines with the result that in cases where crops are considerably in excess of last year's prices are no lower. That is, with the present scarcity, with an average crop in any line, higher than the average prices could be expected.

In the case of prunes, for instance, while the world's crop this year is in excess of last year, prices are higher than those ruling a year ago, the market being supported by the present bareness of the world's markets. From present appearances, general dried fruits cannot be expected to be cheap, although they may not mount to the heights reached by some lines, especially prunes, during the past year.

Ten-cent Raisins.

Valencia raisins look like a ten-cent article—that is the price at which they will probably go out to the consumer. It is considered that the crop will amount to about 23,000 tons, which will be considerably in excess of last year. The market in Spain has been firming up of late and advances of the equivalent to half cent per pound has recently taken place.

The market is now ranging from 25 to 27 shillings, while at the beginning of the season, some speculative prices around 21 shillings were quoted.

"There is no doubt," said one broker in touch with the situation, "that prices would go lower if it were not for the present bareness of the markets in all dried fruits, but under present conditions shippers believe that higher prices will be secured."

New crop raisins will arrive the first part of October.

Larger Production of Currants.

Currants will have to go out to the consumer at practically the same price as raisins. One wholesaler quoted the writer new crop currants at 7 to 7½ cents per pound. The yield in Greece this year will range in the neighborhood of 150,000 tons which will leave from 110,000 to 115,000 tons available for export, which is considerably larger than last year.

While the market earlier in the season did considerable fluctuating, it has of late remained practically stationary but nevertheless firm, present prices being about on a par with quotations a year ago. Prices, however, last year, as the shortage in supplies became more apparent continued to steadily advance.

Prices Will Remain Firm.

While the production of currants this year is considerably in excess of last year, the carry-over has on the other hand been extremely small, so that the available supply of currants at the present time is no larger than a year ago. That is the reason we look for prices to continue firm.

New crop will arrive around the first of October.

No Cheap Prunes in Sight.

Prunes which were so short in supply last year and which reached such high prices will not be on a cheap basis this year either. Although the California, and the world's production also, is larger than last year for the reasons pointed out in regard to the other lines, prices at present are considerably higher than a year ago, although not nearly as high as last year's prices eventually reached.

According to one report, 150 to 175 million pounds is the agreed tonnage of prunes in California this year. At one time the estimate was larger, but heavy droppings in some districts has caused it to be reduced.

Early in the season, good crops were reported in Europe and it was expected the markets there would not take much of the California crop. However, drought in Europe has seriously affected the prune crop and the yields in both France and Bosina are apparently short. For that reason it is evident that the European market will have to import more from America.

California growers took advantage of this situation and while early in the season a few prunes sold on a 4c basis, they have steadily advanced to 5½ to 5⅝c basis, which would mean to a retailer on the Toronto market 10½ cents for 60 to 70 S in 25-pound boxes. Europe has been a big buyer, and packers report that 85 to 90 per cent. of the crop has been sold. In Europe, Bosnia and Servia are nearly sold but there are still some Bosnia offered at ½ cent below California.

"The crop is a large one," remarked a broker, "but with bare markets and the large amount already sold, I expect prices to hold." He pointed out that prunes are becoming a more popular article of diet with an increasing consumption.

"On the present basis," he said, "50 to 60's should sell to the retailer at 11 to 11½ cents; 60 to 70's at 10½ to 11c; 70 to 80's at 10 to 10½, and 80 to 90's at 9½ to 10."

Of course, this may vary considerably with different firms and in different localities.

Apricots and Peach Prospects.

Apricots and peaches, especially the former are extremely high in price this year and much above last year's quotations, the result of greatly reduced production.

The apricot yield will be from 7,000 to 8,000 tons, fully 50 per cent. less than last year's output. The crop is small although not so small as has been the case some years. Present prices are almost prohibitive, being from 40 to 50 per cent. higher than last year and sales have been so slow that, at the moment, the market shows a little weakness.

Early in the season the peach production was estimated at 15,000 tons as against 26,000 to 27,000 tons last year, but canning interests and fresh fruit shippers bought so heavily that it is now believed it will now exceed 11,000 tons, while some set it at nine, unless there is a heavy drying from now on.

Under a good demand, prices have advanced considerably from opening figures.

Raisin Crop in California.

California raisins are very high this year also. One report says the crop will not amount to more than 60 to 75 per cent. of normal, or probably an output of 50,000 tons if the weather continues favorable between now and harvest. There is a slightly easier tendency in the market of late due to better prospects for the crop.

Sultana seedless are in prospective short supply. One dealer said he believed new crop seeded from present prospects would sell to the retailer at about 10½ cents for choice.

Valuable Hints on Storing Canned Goods

Canner Advises Retailers and Wholesalers to Make Sure That Cases are Placed in a Dry Atmosphere—Circulation of Air Among Them Necessary—Effect of Frost on Canned Goods and Cause of the "Leaky" Tin.

*By W. R. Drynan.

Although canned goods have come to be a very important item in the business of all grocers, yet apparently few retailers give any special consideration to their care.

Because the goods are cased and sealed, any place is good enough to store them. The darkest corner of the dampest cellar, is generally considered about the most suitable place. Canned goods are sometimes stored in out of the way places, and left for several months. When they are opened later on, the tins are probably badly rusted, possibly an odd tin is burst, spoiling the appearance of the contents of the entire case, and the retailer immediately sits down and writes a long letter to his wholesaler about the condition of the goods, throwing all of the blame on the packers.

If the grocers would only be impressed with the fact that canned goods must not be treated as cord-wood, there would be far less cause for complaint.

Tin plate is almost universally used. In fact, there is hardly a kitchen utensil that is not made of tin, and every one knows that all tins are very susceptible to rust, especially when exposed to damp, and the greatest trouble experienced with canned goods is their tendency to rust.

Circulation of Air Necessary.

The ideal storage for canned goods is a dry even temperature, between 40 degs. and 50 degs. F., with a free circulation of air. Cases should be piled clear of the walls, and as much as possible off the floors, to permit of the circulation of air over, through and around them. Cases should also be piled on their sides, so that in the event of a tin bursting the contents will drain off, rather than into and through the cases underneath. Canned goods cases should also be examined at intervals, and where there is apparent trouble inside of the cases, the cause of the trouble should be at once removed.

The Effect of Frost.

The question is often asked, "Does frost injure canned goods?" As to affecting their value as a food the answer is "No," but as a general thing canned goods should not be allowed to freeze. With goods such as corn, peas and beans, the flavor is somewhat affected through freezing, not so much that one not an expert could tell the difference, but there is a difference. On the other hand, the flavor of preserved fruits in tins, and tomatoes is not appreciably affected by frost. In fact the writer made a number of experiments with tomatoes especially, and could not discover any impairment of flavor, due to freezing.

However, the greatest trouble with the freezing of canned goods is that the tins will sweat in thawing out, and the water lodging on the cans will cause the tins to rust, and also the labels to become soiled. If these goods are not carefully looked after, after thawing out, the rust will, in course of time, eat through the tins and permit air to get into the cans, thus spoiling the contents.

When Canned Goods are Frozen.

Another thing to remember is that when canned goods are frozen, they are usually bulged, but as soon as they are thawed out, the ends will snap back. Be sure, therefore, that your goods are not still frozen before condemning them as swells.

If, owing to lack of storage, canned goods are allowed to freeze it would be better to keep them frozen, rather than to thaw them out and freeze them again, as every time they thaw out, they are liable to accumulate rust. If the goods are not used until the spring, the cases should then be carefully overhauled and placed where they will dry out rapidly, otherwise there will surely be trouble.

Most packers are anxious to stand behind their goods, and if it can be shown to them, that the trouble with any canned goods, is through fault of their own, they are generally always only too glad to have the difficulty remedied promptly.

If grocers have goods that are not satisfactory, they should, in all cases, hold them subject to the instructions of the packer, as it is in the interests of everybody that the goods should be examined to ascertain exactly what the trouble is, and it is only by doing this, that any defects in packing can be remedied.

Cause of a Leaky Can.

A swell or a leaky can, is due most likely to an imperfection in the can, or an error in the time given to the processing. Once air gets into the can decay begins, just the same as the goods would decay if left exposed in an open vessel. Don't think that the packer has been putting decayed goods into the can. This view is entirely erroneous. Canned goods and vegetables, as put up by the packers in Canada to-day are without doubt strictly first-class—that is the raw material is grown especially for factories, and is canned immediately after picking.

In all large plants, the processing is almost entirely mechanical, every means being employed to ensure the goods being put up in the most cleanly manner. These fruits and vegetables also are preserved by sterilization only, i.e., by the application of heat, at a temperature which absolutely destroys all bacteria, and therefore, there are no safer or more wholesome goods in the world to eat than canned goods.

Mister Grocer, as canned goods are an important and profitable part of your business it is to your best interests to impress upon your customers, that canned goods, as put up to-day, are among the choicest and safest of foods.

CLERKS WHO ARE ONLY WAITERS.

Do Not Use Real Salesmanship in Serving Customers.

A manager in a departmental store in a large city recently declared that about half the clerks who secure positions in that particular store are waiters only and seldom salesmen. When a customer comes to their counter they hand out those things asked for in much the same manner as a slot machine when you drop in the coin.

"The slot machine is an improvement on some clerks," said this man, "because it does not drive customers away as some clerks do by the expression on their faces and their curt answers whenever they have to wait on a customer."

"Many of them," he continued, "seemingly have not ambition to achieve anything greater than completing the week's work and drawing their pay envelope. There are, of course, many good clerks who are really salesmen and who put forth a real effort to sell more goods than they are asked for, and who do so pleasantly. These clerks advance rapidly and each year secure a bonus while the others look on and wonder why they do not, as they have been there just as long.

"There are cases when a little talk with the unambitious clerk will improve him wonderfully. If after a talk with a clerk he does not try, he probably never will and he is moved on at the first opportunity."

Preserving Time Window Displays

Ideas That May be Carried Out to Sell Preserving Lines—Now is an Opportune Time to Display Sealers—Good Trims of Associated Lines May be Made — Accompanying Cut Shows One Manner of Display.

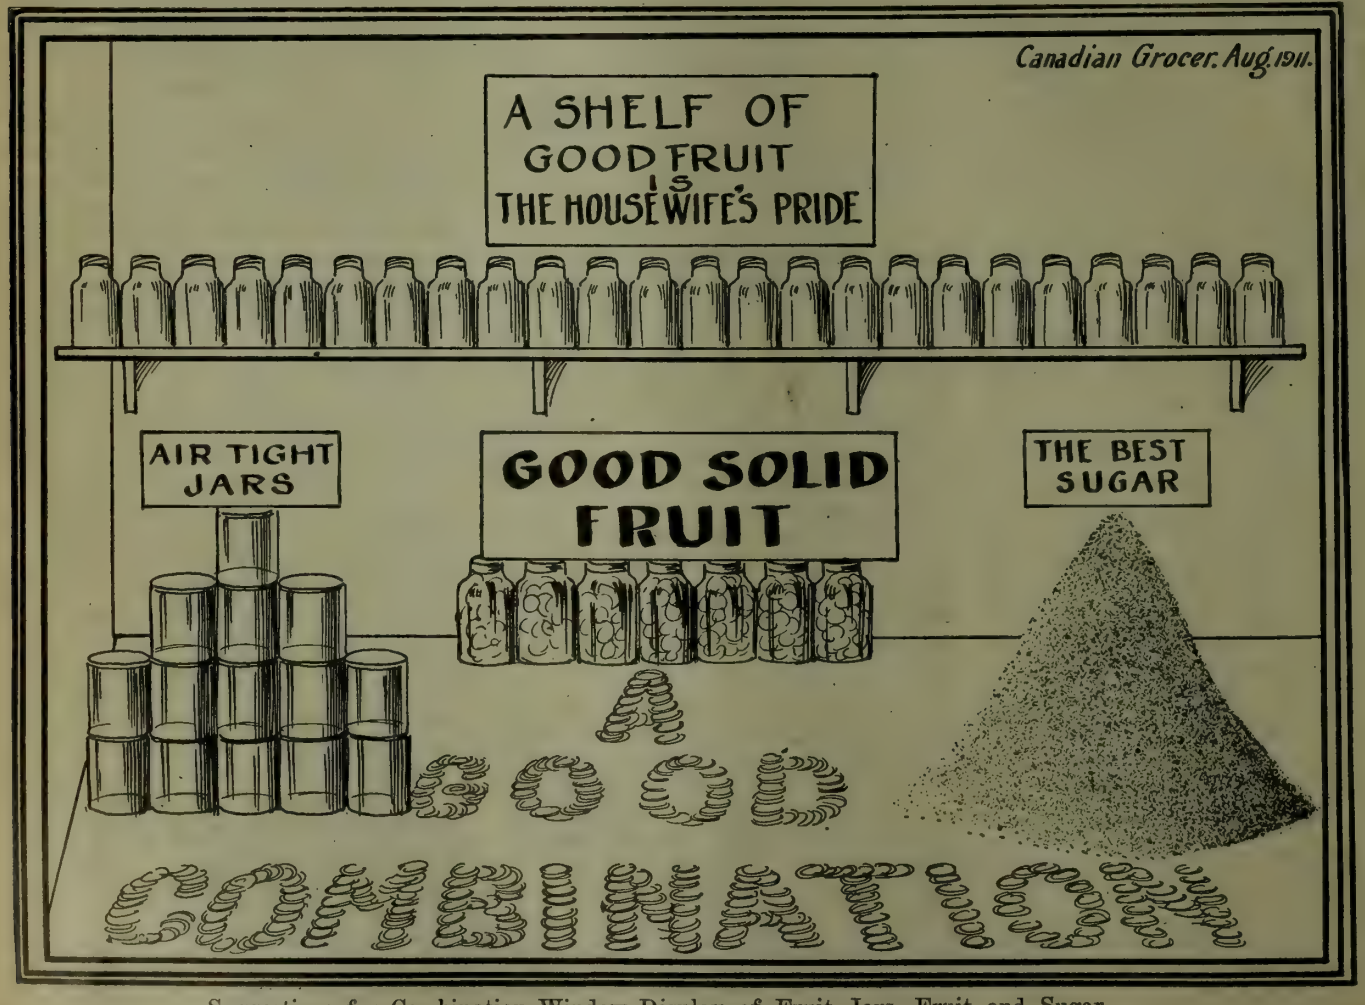
The present is the most opportune time for the display of sealers. Many a housewife's supply of used sealers is nearly exhausted, and with the arrival of late preserving fruits, she will need to make further purchases. It is the dealer with the good display of this line who runs the best chance of getting the trade. Perchance also that the sealers that many a housewife now has are unreliable. Can you present your argument in such a manner as to convince her that it would pay her to discard the unreliable, and purchase some that she can depend on from you?

A Profitable Display.

A display of sealers and sealer rings which a dealer recently had, and which was productive of good results was constructed as follows:

At the front of the window the word "Sealers" was spelled out in capital letters by means of sealer rings, laid flat and lapping over one another. Behind he had a row of pint sealers, followed by a row of quarts and another of half gallons. Next he built two layers, first pints on half-gallons, quarts on half-gallons, and so on, building gradually higher. When he wished to place pints on pints or quarts on quarts, he placed a section of plate glass between to make it solid. In this way he built it gradually from the pint row until the last one was five feet high. A show card at the top read: "Buy the best—you can depend on ours," while price cards told the customer the price of each size of sealer.

Some good window displays showing associated lines, fruit sealers and sugar, may be made. A suggestion for a display is given herewith along this line. In the background raised some distance above the window floor is a shelf covered with sealers—the front ones if at all possible filled with preserved fruit—thus giving the idea of a large shelf of fruit. In front of this, in the accompanying cut, is shown more preserved fruit, but here in the actual trimming of your window it would be advisable to place several baskets of choice peaches or other fruit, with the show card "Good Solid Fruit."



On one side is a pyramid of sealers, with a card, "Air Tight Jars," while a pile of loose sugar on the other side bears a card: "The Best Sugar." At the front of the window spelled with sealer rings are the words, "A good combination," while above the shelf is a card which reads "A shelf of good fruit is the housewife's pride."

This is a window that should bring business to the merchant. It advertises the several lines at the one time, and does so in an excellent manner.

From Tree to Jar.

Other displays of these different lines in demand at the present time will suggest themselves to the window dresser. Another unusual window that should bring good results was described to The Grocer by an expert grocery window trimmer.

A small tree, representing a peach tree, is placed at one side of the window. Sloping downward from its branches to the floor is a trough made of plain lumber, but, of course, trimmed nicely. At the end nearest the tree the trough is filled with peaches. Farther down it is filled with sugar. Still farther down is sugar and peaches mixed together. At the lower end of the trough are sealers, with the peaches and sugar flowing into them, while farther out were some jars with preserved fruit in them.

A show card at the front reads: "From tree to sealer with greatest rapidity." On the tree is nailed a sign: "If you want the best fruit, sugar and sealers, buy at Blank's." This window, if properly arranged, should attract a good deal of attention.

Oyster and Fish Season Now Open for Another Year

The opening of the oyster season in September marks the beginning of another fish year. Following soon after the commencement of the yearly production of oysters, the increasing run of various kinds of fish will bring this branch of trade into greater prominence.

Although it may seem so, it is not too early to give some thought to this line. Plans carefully prepared are the ones productive of best results and the dealer who now begins planning in this regard will be the one who will secure the larger amount of trade during the year.

The oyster season has now begun and dealers should feature this line. It is some time since the consumer has had a taste of this delicacy, and it should be easy to appeal to his appetite. Again, the dealer who is able to interest customers early in the season is the one most likely to secure their trade during the whole year.

In regard to fish, think over your experiences of the last season; and see if there does not suggest itself, some method whereby you could secure a larger patronage. Was your method of handling and keeping fish as good as it could be or was there some flaw that resulted in decreased trade? If there was any bad features in regard to your method of displaying and keeping your fish in first-class condition, now is the time to remedy it. Start the season right.

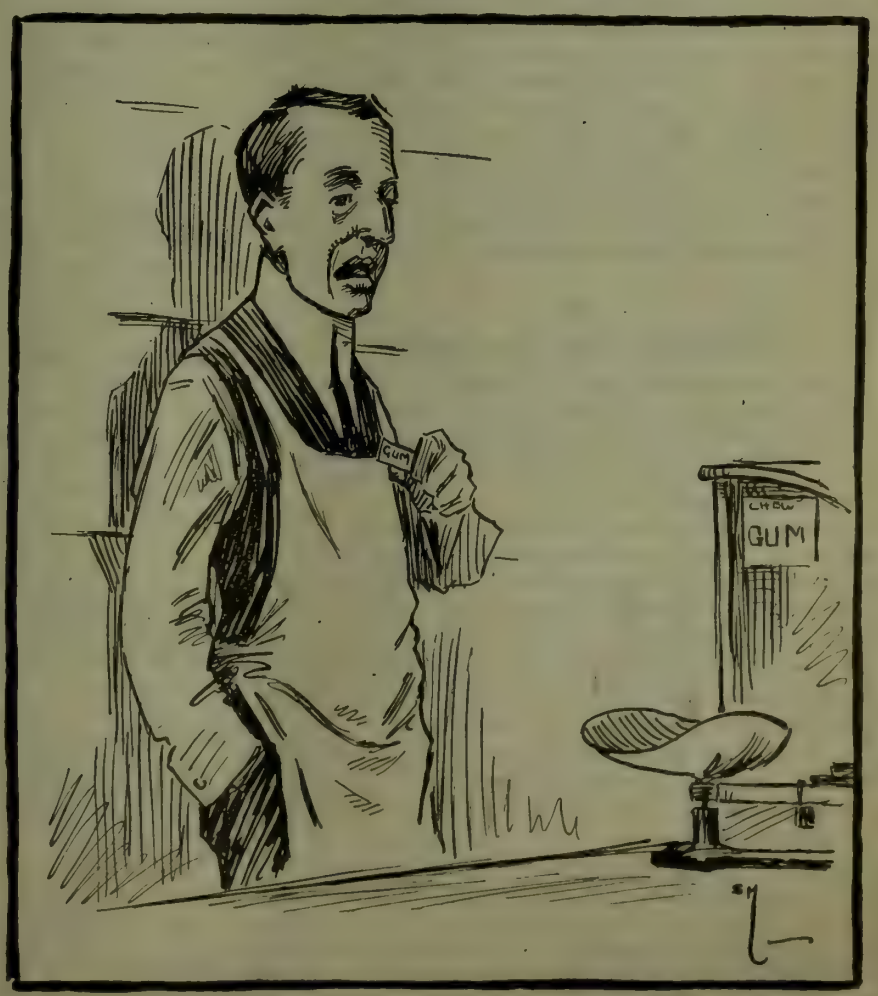
SUGAR UP AGAIN

On Thursday again this week, just at the time of going to press, sugar advanced another 10 cents, making the fourth rise in the past three weeks. Markets in this issue should all be read 10 cents up.

SOME TARIFF REDUCTIONS.

By an order in Council (Department of Customs, Ottawa), the duty on olives in brine, not bottled, to be used in the manufacture of pickles, when imported by manufacturers of such pickles, has been reduced. The tariff now is:

Under the British Preferential tariff, 15 per cent. ad valorem. Under the Intermediate tariff, 17½ p.c. ad valorem. Under the General tariff, 20 per cent. ad valorem.



Crude cotton-seed oil when imported by manufacturers of refined cotton-seed oil for use only in their own factories in the manufacture of refined oil is admitted free. The above changes went into effect August 11.

EVERY DAY ORDERS

By James White, Point du Bois, Man.

Good morning, Mr. Grocer; good morning, Mrs. Brown.
Will you take my order? I'm going farther down.
I want some eggs and bacon, you know the "streaky" kind,
Two pounds I guess will be enough, please remove the rind.
A pound of butter too I guess, you know the last was sweet
I find an awful difference, from your neighbor's down the street
I always dealt with him you know, before I came to you;
But lately he's been terrible, I found he wasn't true.
A pail of jam, the "Bakers'" brand, strawberry flavor or plum,
And something for little Willie, I guess two sticks of gum.
Oh give me a pound of walnuts, the ones without the shell,
And kindly tell the driver not to ring the bell.
Oh will you send me a little box to hold my coal oil can
Last night I stumbled in the dark, and o'er the floor it ran.
How much then do I owe you? my car is coming down.
'Two-fifty,' thank you, much obliged. Good morning, Mrs. Brown.

CARTOON TALKS ON SERVICE

The habit of chewing gum in the store should be eliminated. The particular customer resents it.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN SUGAR.

On Thursday of last week, sugar was advanced 10 cents, and again on Tuesday a similar amount was added to prices. The upward movement since the first reports of the European crop damage has been remarkable indeed, a total advance of 85 cents being recorded to date.

The extent of the shortage of the European crop will not be definitely ascertained until the harvesting of the roots begins within a month. Various estimates have been given out and it will no doubt be at least one million tons short. It is felt that present prices fully discount the crop situation, but with the small stocks of sugar now available to meet the demand, the market is now strong.

When the end will come is a question. It is the consensus of opinion that the strength will remain until something regarding the probable outturn of the Cuban crop is ascertained. At present there is no weakness in sight.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

Once again business men are breathing freely after the cold spell which prevailed for two days and nights last week. The tension to which the average business man of the west, especially the farmer, is keyed at the present time is marvelous.

It is fully recognized that the development of the west for the next few years depends to a large extent on the crop which is at the present time being harvested. Immigrants have flocked into the country this year, and should a bumper yield be received they will invade the west in much larger numbers next year. The result is that the eyes of the business world one and all are at the present time focused on the thermometer.

Harvesting is general throughout the three Prairie Provinces, but there are some fields that are rather late. It has been estimated that the damage done by the slight frost which prevailed last week is immaterial. At one point as much as 10 degrees of frost was registered, but this was an exception. In many points in Manitoba 2 or 3 degrees of frost was registered, which was hardly enough to do much damage. It is also recognized that the existence of frost is only in some localities in Manitoba, and, in fact, if no material frost prevails for the next two weeks a crop above the average will be reaped.

NEW CROP DRIED FRUITS.

It is quite apparent that dried fruits will not at any rate be cheap this year. The short yields last year have left the world's markets at the present time bare of stocks, which has its effect on working for a higher price on general dried fruits this coming year.

Prunes are a fair yield, or, at least, the world's crop is in excess of last year; nevertheless, prices are high, above the figures at this time last year, but not as high as prices eventually went.

Dried apricots are an extremely short crop—only about 50 per cent. of last year—and prices just now are almost prohibitive.

Dried peaches are also short and high in price, although not so much so as apricots. It is generally believed that California will produce only 11,000 tons—probably less—as against 26,000 to 27,000 tons last year.

California raisins are only from 60 to 75 per cent. of a normal crop. Seedless Sultanas are short, while seeded will likely range higher than last year. There is a larger crop of Valencia raisins this year than last, but the market is supported by the shortness of present supplies. They will likely have to go out to the consumer at 10 cents per pound.

Currants are quite a good crop, at least considerably larger than last year, but the same reasons are holding up the market as in raisins.

KNOWLEDGE IS NECESSARY.

To be successful in the grocery business, it is necessary to know something more than the price of the goods. The merchant or clerk should know positively about the quality. He should know where the goods are produced and what conditions affect the market. The better he knows a line or an article, the more of it he will be able to sell.

SELL BEST GRADE VINEGAR.

A vinegar manufacturer recently referred to the fact that while most lines handled by the grocer have increased in value during the past ten years, vinegar prices have remained unchanged.

The lower grades of vinegar are all right for such uses as putting on green cucumbers and lettuce, but for pickling purposes every dealer should handle the better quality. Much depends on the person doing the pickling, and while some might be able to make the lower grade of vinegar do, still in the majority of cases it would not, and so to retain his reputation, it is advisable for the grocer to sell the better grade.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Grocer will pay any dealer or clerk who sends in good, practical methods in actual use in the store, for our page on Wide-awake Retailing.

The question as to whether profits should be figured on the cost or selling price is an important one with many dealers. Our readers will remember the article by Hugh Blain in our issue of August 11. This was read by an interested party in Dayton, Ohio, U.S.A., who has written complimenting Mr. Blain on the logic of his mathematics.

The present is one of the times in the year when it would be especially well for the grocer to feature desserts. Something light, appetizing and easily digested. Look up your stocks of jelly, jelly powder, custards, tapioca, corn starch, rice and other similar lines. Give them some extra attention for a time and watch your sales increase.

The Markets—Sugar Advances Again

Montreal, Aug. 31.—Business is just about normal, but some of the jobbers state that they do not expect a great deal from July and August and await the first weeks in September for a brisker trade. They state that the farmer is busy with his harvest of grains, roots, fruits and vegetables and business must lapse until the tiller of the soil has garnered the results of his summer's toil.

The country merchant is, of course, the first to be affected by the farmer's harvest time and eventually it touches the wholesaler. Such is the present season, but there is a time of reckoning and the trade knows that business will burst forth again when the newly acquired money is being spent. There does not seem to be much interest taken in the political situation except at intervals and that is after the business hours have passed. Of course, it is discussed, but there have been former elections which seemed to draw forth keener attention from the electors of this part of the country. Trade does not register any serious setback. Perhaps it may be causing a little of the quietness now being felt but the trade does not seem to think so.

The retail trade are busy with fruits and vegetables, sugars, spices and, of course, the usual staples. The preserving season is generally a busy one for the retail grocer.

Sugar.—The late advance referred to in last week's issue has been duplicated and sugar is now $5.45 in bags or $5.50 in barrels and the market is fairly active and strong. People must have sugar and they need it particularly just now with the fruit season at its height. One recent summary says: "The estimated loss in the European beet crop, the lessened stocks held to meet consumption until new supplies can come in, and the element of speculation that has based its operations upon this year's unusual conditions, have combined to produce a situation whereby the market is influenced only one way and quotations will continue upon a high range as long as there is a sufficient demand, at the prices asked, for the sugar in sight."

Dried Fruits.—Jobbers say that the trade are purchasing rather freely. There was a waiting tendency noticeable some time ago but that seems to have passed with a realization that the market has about reached a level. There is some spot delivery demand but it is very light. It could not be anything else with the wholesalers, with the merest remnant of a stock left. Seeded raisins, spot, are higher owing to the scant supplies left.

Canned Goods.

Montreal.—Jobbers are receiving shipments of the early fruits and vegetables. Strawberries, peas, spinach and other spring varieties are coming in. Spinach is quoted at an advance by some houses, due largely to the fact that only about fifty per cent. of the orders were filled. The present demand for canned goods is steady and is fairly large. One wholesaler said, "We find in some lines that our heaviest demand for canned goods is when the natural fruit is in season. Take for instance peaches. The boarding houses, hotels and restaurants have peach pie, etc., about this time because they know their guests expect a taste of the peach. It is then that the demand for canned peaches booms. There is the saving of time and labor required in preparing the new fruit and the latter will only keep soundly for a short time." This, he said, was one of the reasons for the present activity in canned goods even though the fruit season is at its height. The same can be applied more or less to the vegetable sales. Spinach is already advanced in price. Receipts of orders were only fifty per cent. of what had been asked for, and with shipments almost in every case lighter than what was expected the price tends to be firmer. Hence this rather sharp advance. If the weather does not turn cold and hurt tomatoes a fairly good pack is expected. However, both corn and tomatoes are still doubtful.

In regard to salmon, the new prices at the coast are in the hands of the jobber but there has been no wholesale figures announced. Apparently the trade is waiting to find out how much of their orders they will receive, this factor, of course, having to be considered. In the meantime, Clover Leaf and Red Spring are higher in harmony with the general tone of this market.

Toronto.—Salmon prices to the wholesaler at the coast have been named but quotations to the retailer have not as yet been set. Prices are high for the pack has been small. Fraser river is $1.25 per case higher than last year's opening price, Northern rivers $1.35 more, red springs $1.00, cohoes $1.25 and pinks 75 cents. One dealer said the prices for sockeye would probably be as high as $2.45 for 1 lb. talls and $2.50 for 1 lb. flats. At any rate the retailer will have to sell it at 25 cents. The total pack of sockeye to Aug. 25 is said to be only 326,000 cases as compared with 566,000 last year. Then, again, the world's markets are bare of stocks and English buyers at the present are clamoring for stocks. With the high prices anticipated and the present scarcity of spot stocks, prices have been generally advanced.

A good authority on canned salmon said to The Grocer this week: "The Fraser River sockeye will be very short in delivery this year, possibly only 50 per cent. or perhaps less. Cohoes are running fairly well, but indications are that there will be a shortage on them. Red springs will be in fairly good supply and the run of pinks is fairly good in northern rivers, but it is just possible that demand will be greater than supply. After the selling season which is now on is over, there will be no supplies to draw on from the coast for the next twelve months. There is a world scarcity of salmon, and the statistical position is the strongest known in many years."

Although it has generally been believed that tomatoes looked favorable, one canned goods broker said that from his information, prospects were quite blue and that he believed the pack would be short. "There is not the fruit on the vines," he said. The delivery of blueberries will probably be only 30 or 40 per cent. Corn, however, looks good. Even now there is an appreciable demand for canned fruits and vegetables.

The Canadian sardine fisheries have been good, in fact, better than usual, and it is expected that with this year's pack prices will go back to normal again. It will be remembered that at the close of last season, prices advanced. Fishing does not end until December.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Another advance.

Salmon—Higher.

Beans—Canadian about done.

Toronto, Aug. 31.—An appreciable volume of trade continues to be done in groceries, despite those circumstances which are apt to affect business just now, namely, harvesting and the approaching elections. The latter, if arousing excitement, is doing so without upsetting trade. Collections are also considered quite good.

"Sugar has joined the aero club," remarked one wholesaler. Its upward movement is at least remarkable. Following the advance of the 24th, another 10 cents was added to prices on Tuesday, a total advance of 85 cents since June 30th. The market is at the moment strong with no weakness at least for a time in sight.

Canned milk is firm, due to the higher cost of material used in its preparation. Sugar, which enters largely into condensed milk, has advanced $1.25 per cwt., since February, and this is regarded as the cause of the present strength.

The advancing sugar market is also having its effect on other lines in which sugar is used. Prices on a number of lines of confectionery have already been moved up by manufacturers as a result of the high price of sugar.

Sugar.—Sugar still continues on the upward trend and following the 10c advance just as we went to press last week, prices were marked up another 10c on Tuesday, bringing quotations on the Toronto market up to $5.55, a total upward movement of $1.25 since February 1st. The market is still strong and further strengthening in prices would not be a surprise. Dealers are wondering where this phenomenal advance is going to end. Many express the opinion that the strong market will continue until something definite regarding the Cuban crop can be learned. Conditions in sugar at present are certainly abnormal and it is felt that present prices more than discount the expected European crop shortage, but there is not enough raws obtainable at the moment to cover the demand. "Like every other bubble," said one dealer, "the time will come when it will burst. When that will be is the question. At present, there is certainly no weakness in sight."

Dried Fruits.—Local dealers have been more inclined to purchase new crop dried fruits at present quotations, showing their stronger belief in the maintenance of prices. Prunes still maintain their strong position, late news from Oregon reporting loss by dropping of fruit. One estimate of the total crops in California, Oregon, Washington, France, Bosnia and Servia is 300,000,000 tons as compared with a normal production of 359,532,000 tons. New crop valencia raisins are firm while currants are stationary. Spot stocks of all lines are scant, and held at firm prices.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Advanced 20c.

Coffee—Very firm.

Syrup—Slow.

Beans—Going higher.

Winnipeg, Aug. 31.—Trade during the week shows little of the usual weakness which generally prevails at this period of the year. The demand is just as strong as ever, and now that the harvest is general and a crop is assured, many orders are being received from conservative country merchants. Many have even increased orders which were given some time ago, and a general feeling of optimism once more prevails.

Canned goods are moving pretty freely, and canned milk has been exceptionally firm, and is likely to advance soon. An exceptionally strong demand prevails in all lines.

Sugar — Following the 10c advance of the 24th, sugar again went up 10 cents on Tuesday of this week. As stated before, merchants refuse to express their opinion on the market as it depends entirely on the action of the raw market in Europe and in the south. Reports of manipulation are current, but it is difficult to secure any definite information regarding the situation. The demand continues to be strong, but it is expected that a falling off in the trade will be noticed for a time at least if prices continue to advance.

Syrup—There is little change in syrup this week, the market is slow, and only a normal amount of trade is being transacted. As stated last week, it is expected that an increase will be noticed in the fall.

Beans and Peas—While no advance has taken place on the local market this week, it is rumored that beans are going higher owing to the shortage of stocks. The supply in Ontario is recognized as being by no means large in view of the demand, and consequently a strong market is expected shortly. Peas are beginning to pick up quite a bit, and the demand is increasing considerably. The presence of the large amount of harvesters in the west is causing a run in both these lines.

Beans, 3-lb. picker, per bushel	2 40
Hand picked, per bushel	2 50
Peas, split, 100 lbs	2 75

Provisions—Considerable trade has been in existence in provisions during the week, and a general advance has taken place. Bacon has advanced ¼c per lb., while medium hams are up ½c. Salt meats of all descriptions are also advancing and the demand is stronger than ever. Lard also shows a slight advance, and 50-lb. tubs are quoted at 5c higher than they were two weeks ago. The advance is due to some extent to the small receipts of hogs which have been coming into the local market on account of the harvesting season. Farmers at the present time are too busy with the reaping of their crop to send their stock to market. Choice live weight hogs at the present time are quoted at $8.50 per cwt. New prices will be noticed as follows:

Eggs—The supply of eggs has been falling off considerably with the approach of fall, and a sharp advance has taken place in the price being offered. Manitoba fresh, selling at 18c a dozen two weeks ago, to-day are quoted at 21c and 22c per dozen. Guaranteed strictly fresh are scarce and retailers complain that they are unable to supply the demand for them.

Butter—An advance of 1c per lb. is noted in the Manitoba fresh made creamery bricks, while boxes are up from 2c to 2½c, and at the present time are only quoted at 1c below bricks. Supplies received in the city have been rather limited during the last two weeks, but are expected to increase as the fall advances. Dairy butter shows little or no improvement in quality, but an advance of 1c has taken place for strictly No. 1, in sympathy with the advance in creamery. No. 2 dairy butter is still quoted at 12c to 14c, No. 3 at 7c to 9c.

Cheese—The market is active and a good trade is being carried on at the present time. The demand is good, and the higher prices which have been expected are beginning to appear. Jobbers are quoting Manitoba new cheese delivered Winnipeg at 11c per lb. Wholesale firms are, however, quoting this at 2c a lb. higher, and Ontario at 14¾c.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, Aug. 30.—Whether or not it is the approaching elections which are responsible for the fact is not known definitely, but this is given by some local dealers as being the cause of the slight decrease in trade during the past week. It has been particularly noticeable in some sections, but it is difficult to ascertain the direct cause. As has been stated, some grocers are of the opinion that the fluctuation is the result of the excitement and diversion growing from the election while others seem to think it is merely a temporary falling off, such as is felt at regular intervals with every dealer.

It is an accepted fact that with the re-opening of the public schools next week, business in general will be more brisk, as large numbers of families will be returning from their country residences to take up their permanent abode in the city.

Cheese is on the upward grade, and eggs are also higher, but with the exception of these and an expected increase in sugar there were few changes of importance during the past week locally. Another advance of ten cents was noted last Thursday in sugar. Prices are as follows:

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Aug. 30.—Firm prices prevail in practically all lines, and in some, prices have been advanced. The most notable instance is in canned salmon. The trade had expected an advance over last year's quotations, but they were hardly prepared for the figures which have been quoted. Sockeyes have opened at an advance of $1.25 per case and Cohoes $1 higher than last season's figures. Humpbacks or pinks are also quoted at 50 cents advance. As a result of these prices, the local dealers have advanced the price of the small stocks now on hand.

Roled oats have been advanced by the millers 25 cents per barrel. Quotations now are $5.25 to $5.50. Following the advance of the 24th, sugar has again been marked up ten cents per hundred pounds on all grades. Extra standard granulated is now quoted at $5.60, United Empire, $5.50, Bright Yellow $5.40 and No. 1 Yellow, $5.10. Cornmeal is five cents higher at $1.65 to $1.75, and beans (yellow eye) are up five cents, $2.65 to $2.75. Spanish onions are firm at three cents and in good demand.

Despite the abundant crop of apples in Nova Scotia this season, prices are high. For fair No. 1, hand picked Garensteins, the jobbers are asking $3 per barrel. The stock offering at these prices is no better than a good number two. Other early varieties are selling from $1.50 to $2.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

St. John's, Aug. 29.—Many lines of foodstuffs, including flour, pork and sugar are on the upward trend. Dried fruits are scarce on this market and local dealers holding any stocks are realizing good prices.

Fish prices have been reduced considerably, as the foreign markets did not warrant the higher prices. A fairly successful lobster fishing season is about over, and prices during the season have advanced from $16.50 to $17.50. New salmon is offered at $5.50 per case of 48 tins but not much has some along as yet.

Laporte, Martin & Co., Ltd., of Montreal, are strongly advising the trade to stock canned vegetables, on account of the short foreign crop. This firm has just been named as agent for the great wine firm, Delor & Co., of Bordeaux, France. This firm is well known for the quality of its Sauternes and red wines. Read the firm's ad. in this issue. —Advt.

KO-KO-BUT

The Perfect Cooking Butter

WHAT IT IS

Ko-ko-but is a perfectly pure vegetable butter made of meats of cocoanuts from Ceylon and Cochim. These two countries produce the finest fruits in the world.

The cocoanut meats are broken up and dried in bright sunshine. In the dried state the cocoanut meat is called copra.

The COPRA is then crushed which makes cocoanut oil. We clarify the cocoanut oil by a process of filtering—after which it is thoroughly sterilized.

The process extracts all odor and every trace of water.

There is nothing added of any nature—the finished Ko-ko-but is pure cocoanut butter—clean, sweet and wholesome.

WHAT IT DOES

KO-KO-BUT makes cooking better, cleaner, more digestible, more nutritious, and more wholesome.

For frying, KO-KO-BUT is excellent. It cooks the food to a nicety and does not spatter in the pan.

Cakes—bakings of all kinds made with KO-KO-BUT keep fresh longer.

KO-KO-BUT does not make the baking soggy, nor ooze out.

KO-KO-BUT does not evaporate, it keeps fresh longer than any animal product, and never turns rancid.

KO-KO-BUT saves money—less KO-KO-BUT used than butter or any other shortening.

REMEMBER KO-KO-BUT is 100 per cent. pure, there is no water, no waste. 1 lb. goes as far as 1½ lbs. butter or other shortening. (Butter contains as high as 20 per cent. water—KO-KO-BUT none). This is KO-KO-BUT economy. Cooking is cleaner and altogether better. This is KO-KO-BUT satisfaction.

Send us a list of names and addresses of your customers and we will mail each of them a useful book of KO-KO-BUT recipes. If you place a trial order with us we will notify each one on list that you are stocking same.

Waste No Time.

Going to Borrow 5c. Again

The plan of borrowing a nickel from everyone we served with a cup of Red Rose Tea at the Toronto Exhibition last year and giving each one a coupon worth 5c. anywhere when buying a package of Red Rose Tea was declared so successful by merchants generally that we are going to do it again this year.

Will you be good enough to accept these coupons again this year as part payment for a package of Red Rose Tea. They will be redeemed at their face value by any Red Rose Tea traveller or when sent to our Toronto Office.

If you are in Toronto during the Fair we will be very pleased to have you call at our new warehouse, 7 Front St. East, or at the Red Rose Tea Booth at the Exhibition, and if we can extend you any courtesy or serve you in any way the pleasure will be ours. At the booth just make yourself known to the traveller in charge. A corner and a couple of tables will be reserved for grocers, their wives and friends, and you will enjoy the tea too.

LONDON GROCERS' PICNIC.

Visiting Members of the Trade From Toronto and Port Huron Were Present.

London, Ont., Aug. 30.—(Special)—The sixth annual outing of the London grocers was a big success from every standpoint. The executive of the London grocers were busy all day Wednesday, Aug. 23. At 9.30 a.m. they met the Port Huron grocers and welcomed them to the city. They then took the officers of the Port Huron Association for a trip around the city in autos.

Next they met the Toronto train to welcome for the first time the executive officers of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association. It was indeed a pleasure for the London grocers to meet such a fine body of men as W. C. Miller, D. W. Clark, R. Davies and R. Matthews.

The mayor and three commissioners of Port Huron accompanied the excursionists from the Tunnel City. At noon the executive officers of Toronto, London, and Port Huron, together with the mayors of London and Port Huron, and also several London aldermen sat down to a luncheon in the Tecumseh House grill room. After the good things had been partaken of, Mayor Beattie, of London, proposed the health of the visitors, and gave them a hearty welcome to the Forest City. Mayor Bell, of Port Huron, responded for the Port Huronites. President Norman McLeod spoke on behalf of the London grocers, and President W. C. Miller and D. W. Clark responded on behalf of the Toronto association.

After the luncheon, the party motored to Springbank, where the sports took place. Fully five thousand people saw the fun.

One of the Features.

The burlesque duel between "Johnny Bull" and "Uncle Sam" was a laughable feature. Uncle Sam was carried off the field with the blood trickling down his shirt. Harry Ranahan was second for "Johnny Bull," and Ed. Ryan looked after "Uncle Sam."

The game of rounders was a literal "scream." It kept the crowds in roars of laughter. Ernie Shaw and Billy Watson could pass as members of the feminine sex any time; in fact, President Miller, of Toronto, one of the judges of the carnival, gave Ernie Shaw first prize as the best made-up lady.

Fred Tobias, of Todhunter, Mitchell & Co., is some tumbler. We leave the story to be told by his companion in the race.

R. W. Davies, of Toronto, is some runner, taking second prize in the 100 yard dash, leaving all the young fellows behind.

W. C. Miller, D. W. Clark, R. Matthews and R. Davies were capable judges and helped the local committee in every possible way. The baseball match between London and Port Huron grocers was won by Port Huron—score, 7 to 5.

Longer Season Is Allowed for the Salmon Run

Vancouver, B.C., Aug. 31 (Special).—With a pack of 50,000 cases on the Fraser River, compared to 175,000 cases on Puget Sound, the Dominion Government has suspended the close season between August 25th and September 15th. This is the first time this has been done. The suspension of the present close season will doubtless result in fewer fish four years hence, but this is understood. The pack of best salmon this year has been smaller than usual, despite spasmodic good runs at different points on the coast.

Victoria Grocers Have Prosperous Annual Pilgrimage

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 28.—(Special)—In perfect weather, a bright sunshine with a refreshing breeze, the wholesale and retail grocers held their annual picnic at Goldstream, some twelve miles by rail from Victoria.

The time until the main crowd arrived, was occupied with a baseball game, "Wholesale vs. Retail Grocers" which after nine long hard fought innings resulted in favor of the former by 12 to 8.

Races for all ages of boys and girls filled the period before lunch, and on resuming at 2.30, three-legged race, fat men's race, tug of war, biscuit race, shoe race, etc., etc., rapidly succeeded each other until 4.30 when the baby show competition was held—without doubt the chief attraction for many proud mothers. Eighteen baby boys competed and after a prolonged consideration the judges selected little Francis McKenzie Gibbs as the handsomest baby boy. From fourteen baby girls Miss Olive Baker obtained the coveted honor.

Numerous committees with plenty of active workers ensured success, and nothing but satisfaction was heard on all sides.

Praise is due to each, and especially to president E. J. Wall, vice-president J. D. Jay; Treasurer, S. Kirkham, Secretary V. K. Gray, and convenor of refreshment committee, Thos. Lee.

Cheese at an Extremely High Figure

Steady Advance in Price Since Early in June—English Market is High, With Big Advances of Late—Conservative Dealers Operating Cautiously—Provisions and Lard are Steady—Butter is Higher—Eggs are Steady.

General steadiness in provision prices prevails. Demand continues on the whole at a good figure, a considerable trade still being noticeable in the summer lines such as smoked and cooked meats. Long clear is in better demand with the cooler weather, while the farmer being busy is not able to secure his supplies of meat elsewhere and is forced into the market. Lard is also in a position of steadiness, but as yet there has been no great improvement in demand.

Live hog prices have not changed materially during the past week but continue fairly steady, under rather stinted supplies. The English market is firm and high, recent cables being from 66s. to 70s. for Canadian as compared with 62 to 66s. at the first of the month.

Butter is firm and generally higher. There has been a good demand for creamery for export and a continuance is expected until new make Australia and New Zealand starts to come forward in October. Winnipeg reports a general advance of 1 cent due to present limited supplies. Recent rains in parts of the Dominion may help the production.

Advances in egg prices have taken place at several centres. There is a good demand, especially for selected stock. Production may begin to fall off at any time. Cheese continues at the high level. Conservative dealers are operating cautiously. The English market is high, the dry pastures there having seriously affected production.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—The present is not the busiest season for provisions. There is a normal trade, but the market is featureless. Prices are unchanged, but the figures for live hogs are a little higher.

Provisions.—The general feeling in provisions is one of steadiness. Trade is quite good in general lines, the same brisk movement in smoked meats being in evidence, while there is also a fair demand for lard. Prices on this latter have been advanced ¼ cent per pound by several firms. Live hogs remain unchanged at last week's higher figure, prices now being the highest since last October when prices were just descending from their position of last year, when in one instance, namely in April, $9.60 was quoted by Toronto dealers. Prices this year have been gradually stiffening since May, when as low as $5.75 was recorded. Long clear bacon now in fair demand is quoted higher this week.

Butter.—Prices on creamery and farmers' separator butter are higher this week, fresh creamery prints being quoted at 26 to 27 cents. English markets have been taking considerable creamery butter which may be responsible in part of the strength in the market. The production of butter is at least not improving, although the recent rains may be helpful in increasing the flow of milk.

Eggs.—Fresh gathered eggs are ranging higher at 20 to 21 cents per dozen. There is no over-plus of deliveries, while a falling off in production may come at any time. Then there has been a good demand stimulated in part perhaps by the tendency in meats to seek a higher level.

Cheese.—The cheese market still continues strong, the result of a firm English market. On Aug. 3, the price in London was 60 to 61s. for Canadian, while late cables set it at 67 to 68s. Its steady upward movement since early June has been remarkable. Late rains should help the pastures, on which cheese production largely depends.

STORE PHILOSOPHY.

There would be many top notchers in salesmanship if nothing but the "gift of the gab" were needed. You must put brains into your talk.

Do not expect to build up a big business in a short time. The steadily developing business is the one that will last.

Saying just what you think may be all right in some cases, but it's mighty poor policy when you are in business.

Most people reason that the condition of a man's show window shows the condition of the inside of his store, and in this they are pretty apt to be right.

Rolled Oats Advance 20c. Per Barrel

Following Strength Reported Last Week Prices Advance on Monday—Good Fall Trade in Cereals Anticipated — Slight Frosts in the West Firm Wheat Market—Flour at the Moment is Steady, but Trade of Routine Character.

The feature of the week as regards price movements was supplied by the rolled oats market, an advance of 20 cents per barrel, taking effect on Monday being recorded. A combination of circumstances was responsible for this new strength, one factor being the reports of slight frost in the west, while the visible supply of this cereal at present is appreciably lower than a year ago. The fact that the United States crop of oats is expected to be short close on 300 million bushels as compared with last year is no doubt exerting some influence.

Estimates of the yield of wheat in the Canadian West still vary from 180 to 200 million bushels. Reports of frost in sertain sections are the cause of some anxiety. Harvesting received a temporary set back as a result of the showers at the early part of the week.

The International Agricultural Institute, Rome, Italy, estimates the total world's production of wheat this year at 3,518,887,000 bushels, as compared with 3,616,416,000 bushels last year.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—The market remains firm at former prices. Demand is reported brisk both from the country and the city and a healthy tone is the result. Of course it is impossible to tell what the next move will be, but at the present time prices are holding firmly.

Rolled Oats.—On Saturday afternoon last an advance of twenty cents a barrel was quoted on rolled oats and immediately there was a scramble to book orders before the advance went into effect and from several reports the booking was rather heavy. A number of factors must be considered as being responsible for the advance. The beginning of the fall season is being felt in general trade and the cool weather has revived interest in rolled oats. Again the visible supply at present is appreciably lower than at this time last year, and reports of slight frost in the west recently, possibly had a slight influence. There has been a better demand for rolled oats of late and the market appears to be firm just now.

Flour.—The flour market this week is unchanged and steady. Reports of frost in the west have lent strength to the wheat market, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba is now quoted at $1.07. "Another factor in holding up the market," said a local dealer, "is the small deliveries of wheat. While there is no reason for any change in flour prices at the moment, still when arrivals of new crop begin to get heavy, I would not be surprised to see the market ease off." The rainy weather at the beginning of the week was beneficial to many mills run by water power, many of which according to one dealer have been standing idle for want of power. "It will keep the farmers from the harvest," he said, "and therefore work for a better delivery of Ontario wheat."

Cereals.—The strength in the rolled oats market referred to in our last issue has brought an advance of 20 cents per barrel, which went into effect on Monday. This is due partly to somewhat less favorable conditions in the west and also in sympathy with the markets in the United States where the yield is claimed will be close on 300 million bushels less than last year. A good fall trade is anticipated in this line, but no marked briskness will be felt for a time yet. Other lines of cereals are steady.

Flour—Trade is exceedingly strong at the present time, and both the export and domestic trade is very brisk. A large amount of eastern business is being transacted, while the west is as heavy a buyer as ever. The months of July, August and September are generally the brightest for western trade. Prices quoted in barrels show that an advance of 20c per barrel has taken place during the last two weeks. Canadian Fruits Now in the Limelight Biggest Share of Attention Directed to Domestic Lines—Fruits Going Out for Preserving Purposes—Orange Trade is Naturally Curtailed—Prices, However, are Steady—Some Markets bare of Spanish Onions—Potatoes are Easier.

Domestic fruits still occupy the centre of the stage in the several fruit markets, imported lines, for the time being in the background. Fruits for preserving are being given due prominence by both the wholesale and retail trade, and sales amount to an appreciable figure. Early Crawford and St. John's peaches are being taken up well; plums are doing nicely, while grapes as yet are being sold for the most part for table use only. On some markets, especially those where Canadian fruits are not in big supply, California fruits are still meeting with a good reception.

The heavy arrival of all small fruits, and especially peaches and grapes, naturally cuts into the trade for oranges. The market is fairly steady, however. A despatch from New York says that it seems to be the impression there that oranges will be on the market well into the next crop, and so far as can be learned, there are no signs of a material falling off in shipments from the coast. It is certain that there will be enough fruit to go around before the shipments from other sections are on the market.

There is no exceptional briskness in lemons just at the present time. A good trade is expected during September, if the weather is at all favorable. The production of watermelons is growing smaller.

Some of the markets are at present bare of Spanish onions, shipments having been delayed by the strike in the Old Country. Shipments here are received by way of Liverpool.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits—Canadian fruits from the Niagara district are arriving and the quality improves. New grapes, peaches, pears and plums are offered at reasonable prices. There is a good demand for fruits of all kinds. Apples are receiving considerable attention, and the Canadian-grown articles are bound to occupy the centre of the market for some time now.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits—Trade still continues large in volume on the Toronto market, domestic lines still in the limelight, and accordingly a slackness in imported goods. Lemons are being offered at $4 to $4.50 per case, with $5 in some instances being asked for fancy stock. While stocks just now are quite plentiful, it is pointed out by some dealers that there is yet a considerable period before new crop arrives. Oranges remain stationary in price, their movement being curtailed just now by the large supplies of other fruits. California peaches, pears and grapes are still arriving, stock running fancy and being sold for table use.

Preserving fruits are receiving considerable attention. St. John and Early Crawford peaches are offered at considerable range in price, 75c to $1.25 per basket. Common peaches may be had at 40c to 55c. Grapes rule around 30c, while pears are unchanged in price. Apples are quoted at $3 to $3.25 per barrel.

Vegetables—Potatoes are lower again this week, being offered at $1.25 per bushel. Shipments are arriving regularly from New Brunswick, while Ontario is also helping to some extent to supply the demand. The market is bare of Spanish onions, the strike in the Old Country having interfered with shipments. American cooking onions are being offered at $2.75 to $3 per 100-lb. sack. Egg plant, green peppers and beets are easier, while green corn is slightly higher.

Vancouver, Aug. 30.—The crop of Okanagan pears is reported short, and while the Kootenay has a good crop, there will be none for export. On the coast the crop of crab apples will be medium, with less than a medium crop of early apples. Late apples on Vancouver Island will be light, and on the mainland short, with practically none for shipment. Lytton and Spencer's Bridge report crops one-third of last year. WINNIPEG.

Fresh Fruit—No new lines are being offered this week and prices show little change from last. The demand is strong for all classes of fruit, cantaloupes and blackberries being used extensively for the city trade. Peaches, plums and pears are also in steady demand, but show a slight decline in price.

Green Vegetables—Trade in this line continues as active as ever, and a general decline of 5c per dozen may be noted in some lines. Lines sold by the pound also show a sharp decline, as larger supplies are being received every day on the market.

Potatoes—Supplies have been reaching the city in considerable quantities during the week, with the result that a decline of 50c per bushed has taken place in two weeks. Last week prices showed a decline of 15c, while this week they are 35c lower. It is expected that they will continue to decline as stocks in the city become larger.

FRUIT MARKET NOTES.

The tone in limes is easy in New York under liberal stocks and slow demand. Dealers are discouraging shipments from Dominica until the market is cleared.

Opinions as to the Florida orange outlook are diverse, ranging all the way from 75 per cent. of last year's crop to 25 per cent. excess.

The first shipment of early variety of Almeria grapes has been received in New York. One report says that the crop will be good, exceeding last year's by perhaps 200,000 barrels.

No new crop Jamaica have been shipped as yet, but some lots will be coming forward in the coming month.

The market on cocoanuts is not active at the present time.

Fish - Oysters

Opening of Oyster Season Now at Hand

Shipments Will Soon be Coming Forward—Marks the Opening of Fall Fish Trade—Improvement is Anticipated as Weather Becomes Cooler—Codfish Prices on Eastern Coast are Reduced—Herring Plentiful on Nova Scotia Coast.

The oyster season is about to open. Shipments of new crop will be beginning to arrive on Canadians markets. This practically marks the opening of the fall fish trade, and with the cooler weather which is already beginning to be felt, an improvement in trade is anticipated. Dealers would do well to prepare their plans to secure their share of the activity which will soon be in evidence.

As a result of conditions in the foreign markets, the price of codfish has been reduced in both Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. The prevalence of cholera in southern Italy, Greece and Turkey seems to be interfering with the demand for cured fish. A fairly good demand is in evidence from the West Indies and Cuba.

Herring are plentiful along the Nova Scotian coast and good catches are being made, but few mackerel have been taken and prices are high.

QUEBEC.

MONTREAL—The market has not yet developed real fall business appearances. This is expected with the first week in September. Demand during the past week has not been a feature. Prices have changed slightly, Some are higher, others are down, but the market on the whole is steady, and uneventful. It should only be a short time now when an improvement is noticed.

ONTARIO.

TORONTO—Trade in fish still continues on the quiet side, but as the weather becomes cooler, an improvement is anticipated. Prices are unchanged, as well as the general situation. Oysters will begin to arouse interest in the near future. It is generally reported that the quality this year will be good. In regard to this year's output of oysters, Chas. Platts, representing a firm of Connecticut oyster growers, who was in the city this week, states that this year's supply is not any too plentiful. "During the past few years," he said, "the set has been small. It is practically five years since we had an average oyster set, and as it takes about four years for this to develop, the effect is just now beginning to be felt, while next year it will be even more so. The production of oysters this year will, accordingly, show a decrease over last year, and prices will be higher. In Connecticut they are now asking an advance equal to 10c to 15c more than last year. In the northern oyster grounds the yield will be small, but in the south an average output can be expected. There is a good set this year, but it will not be developed until 1915, a period of four years being necessary."

NOVA SCOTIA.

HALIFAX—As a result of conditions in the foreign markets, the price of codfish has dropped in the local market, and also in Newfoundland. In both markets this week a decline of 50c per quintal is recorded. At a conference of the Newfoundland buyers it was decided to fix the price of Madeira fish at $5.50 per quintal. This is a drop of 50c. Other grades dropped correspondingly. Unless the foreign condition improves, prices are expected to go still lower.

Herring are plentiful along the western shore of Nova Scotia, and some of the fishermen are reaping a harvest. Hundreds of barrels are being taken. The big catches of herring have caused a revival of the salt fish trade, which is now quite brisk.

Local dealers report dry codfish in better supply. This is one of the results of the easing up in prices. Reports from Labrador show a poor fishery. The chief cause of the drop in prices is the prevalence of cholera in southern Italy, Greece and Turkey, which is interfering with the Mediterranean demand for cured fish. Shipments at the present time are practically nil, and the outlook is not promising. Dealers report a fairly good demand from the West Indies and Cuba.

WINNIPEG.

Fish—Much interest is being taken in the fish market at the present time owing to the shortage that is existing in some lines of fresh fish. The season at the present time is closed for pickerel, and as a result there is little being offered on the market. Trout is also scarce, as the catch has been very light. Fishermen claim that they are refusing to bite. Prices are holding steady and no advance is looked for. Compared with last year, trade shows considerable increase in all lines. Salmon continues to be high, but a fair amount is being received. Halibut is the only line which is being received in large quantities. Quotations are as follows:

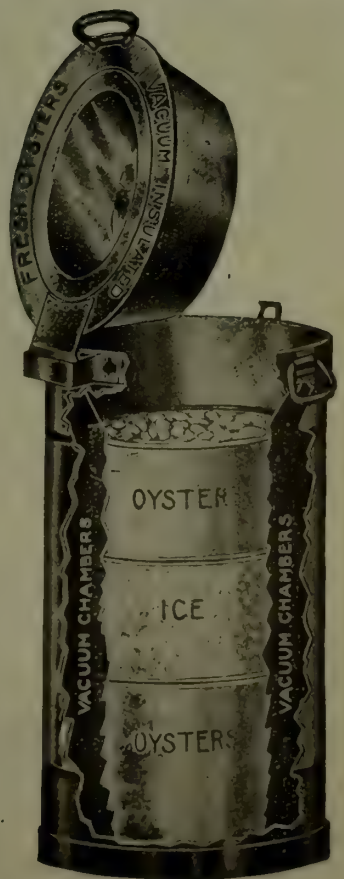
ABOUT BERMUDA ONIONS.

There are Bermuda onions and Texas Bermuda onions. Until a few years ago, one of Bermuda's chief industries was the production of onions but it was found that the soil of Texas was most suitable for the growth of onions and since then the demand for the Bermuda product has been steadily falling off.

WEST INDIES TRADE.

A booklet entitled, "West Indies in Canada," has just been issued by the Imperial Department of Agriculture for the West Indies. It has been published primarily for the purpose of placing manufacturers and merchants in Canada in possession of reliable facts and statistics about the British West Indies and British Guiana. Trade to the value of $8,896,758 was done between these two countries and Canada last year, Canada importing $7,118,960, and exporting $1,677,798 to them. Among the food products produced by them and sold to us, are sugar, molasses, cocoa, limes and lime juice, bananas, oranges, grapefruit, pineapples, arrowroot, cocoanut, nutmegs and rice.

THE PRICE OF REPUTATION.



Reputation is the estimation in which a person or thing is held by others. The price of reputation is square dealing but once established, it is priceless.

Advertising the Retail Business

Every Merchant Advertises His Store, Goods and Service Every Day in Many Ways — Some Fundamental Principles Laid Down to Make Advertising Effective—What Each Sale Means to You.

By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Some of those questions brought up at a recent Convention of Grocers were certainly sweeping in their scope. Note this one: "What is the Best Method of Advertising the Retail Business?" Nothing small about that, surely! Why, a treatise could be written on that subject without fully covering it; for if there is one single factor which really and literally ramifies into every corner of an entire business structure, that factor is Advertising. And thus, to cover not merely the best way to advertise the grocery business in all its varying phases of city, country and cross roads, but to cover the whole Retail Business in that connection, it would be necessary to write up the entire business as relates to it in the country and elsewhere.

Hanginfi up the Sign.

What is Advertising? One may answer, the use of printers' ink. Another may say, demonstrations. A third may choose show windows. Others may—and quite properly—include all of these. But the fact is that advertising is business promotion, no matter what agency or agencies may be employed. The day you hang up your sign you begin to advertise. Did you ever stop to critically examine the sign now over your store to see whether it correctly reflects the character you wish to bear before the public of your town? It was probably hung up there without your having given it much thought. It looked fairly good, as it came from the painter, all fresh and glossy—not to say "flossy"—and, if some of the touches were not quite what you had expected or wanted you still accepted it, feeling that you did not want to "act like a crank" about it.

Yet here is your daily, hourly, weekly introduction to all who look your way. It is your calling card; and any experienced man will tell you that a tastefully planned, engraved card, introducing a broom salesman will command more respect and gain a quicker audience than the best printed card will gain for a steel magnate—and a slovenly bit of card-printing is simply a whistle for emergency brakes. Better look into that matter and see that your sign is of the right sort.

You Advertise Every Day.

The day you open your doors, and every day thereafter, you advertise. You may do it positively for good or bad; or you may merely do it negatively, against yourself, through showing the obvious absence of careful merchandising. Your windows may have been washed up and dressed the first day, or you may have been "too busy" to see that this was done. They may be kept neat, clean, filled with interesting attractive displays, or they may be neglected, filled with "swatted flies," dirty, unattractive from any view-point, positively repellant to any up-to-date housewife. This agency is there, you cannot do without windows; and it will work either for or against you all the time, for there is no middle ground. It is strictly up to you to so handle it that it will work for you, in a positive way, ever reflecting the best that is in you.

Making the First Sale.

The minute you make your first sale, you advertise. That "ad." at least, is apt to be favorable; for you will probably take great pains to please that first buyer in goods, prices and services. I hasten to say that this does not mean you may have more than one price on any article. What I mean is you will carefully select the right goods, at suitable prices, for this first customer. But do not overlook the fact that you must advertise with every sale you make after that first one; and remember that, in this regard, you have from 150 to 350 and up into the thousands of chances every day to make yourself "solid" or in a measure lose your grip on each customer served.

If you will think over this point you will feel the force of the "Eternal Vigilance" idea, and you will probably conclude that you must occupy yourself with the active superintendence of your business, constantly supplying the brain-work, rather than putting up orders, or filling shelves, or sprouting a few bushels of potatoes with a false notion of economy.

It may thus be seen that a well introduced, cleanly, orderly, intelligently managed, attractively decorated, liberally lighted store is already advertised automatically, as it were, and in some of the very best, most effective ways; while the other kind of store may spend a lot of money in what is usually called advertising and succeed only in attracting the cheap, less desirable, less discriminating, bargain-hunting trade. You want to take deep thought of all this in order that you start from the right angle and begin with the correct view-point; for Advertising is really and truly about the most important work you can undertake.

Some Rules to Follow.

Now to get down to what is generally called Advertising and the "best way" to advertise the Retail Business, let us recall that "one man's food is another man's poison;" for what is the right way for one retail store may be absolutely and disastrously wrong for another. But some fundamental rules may be laid down.

1. Get your own psychology right to begin with. Why do you feel a present interest in advertising? It is because Jones, down the street, has stirred you up through some of his ads., so that you feel like getting back at him? Or do you feel a sort of "itch for publicity" which leads you to yearn to stand in the local spot-light for a while? In short, search yourself well to see just WHY you have concluded to study advertising. For there is just one proper object in advertising, and that is to build up your business intelligently and on a lasting foundation.

2. Get your ideas firmly into the channel of positive, affirmative statement. Think of everything you plan to do and say as a leading onward, never in the slightest degree of holding back. Plan your thoughts, as the foundation, and your ads., as the building, of something which is going to be attractive because optimistic; carrying always the suggestion, whether written, spoken or only implied, that your mission in life is to better the condition or enhance the enjoyment of all who trade with you. Forget everything about competitors; the shortcomings of others; any unpleasantness about your business or personal experience.

Tell the Truth Always.

3. Plan to tell the absolute truth about everything you advertise, whether through speech, display or the written word. This is almost the primal requisite, if any point can be superlatively important; and the reason is, that an analysis of your goods with an honest intention to tell the truth about them, will lead to your acquiring goods of such character that the truth will recommend them to everybody. This means that your entire business will be bettered in every particular. Maybe you can see now why I consider this matter of advertising as about the most important work a merchant can enter upon.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia — Vanilla

Vanilla of Commerce Secured From Vanilla Beans or Pods—Grows on a Trailing Vine, Which Appears to be Little Dependent on Soil for Nourishment—Other Interesting Facts About the Growth of This Popular Essence.

The vanilla plant is a species of trailing or climbing orchid, which produces the fragrant vanilla pods or beans of commence from which is made the essence of vanilla found upon the grocer's shelves. The vanilla plant is the only orchid of any industrial value.

The home of the vanilla planifolia, which is its full name, is in Central America and Mexico, but it also grows in various parts of the West Indies and in the Fiji Islands, merely requiring a mean temperature of 75 to 80 degrees. It is also cultivated in plantations in other parts of the world, being easily propagated by planting cuttings at the foot of trees selected for the purpose, and bears from three until thirty or forty years old.

How Vanilla Plant Grows.

It is not wholly a parasite, although it appears to be little dependent on the soil for nourishment, yet thrives best in a light soil, rich in humus, like ivy. It climbs from the ground, but once established has feeding stations on the bark all along the line. The leaves—long, very smooth and light green—are alternate; and at the axil of each is a sucker a few inches in length that fastens itself securely to the tree, lying flat against the bark. It climbs to a height of eighteen or twenty feet. The blossoms are inconspicuous.

Vanilla Comes From the Pods.

It is the resultant pods that are the vanilla of the industrial world. They are slim pods six or eight inches long, and when dried for the market are a rich, deep reddish brown. These are called vanilla beans but really contain no bean, the seed in them being as fine as dust. These seeds are the black specks that are sometimes found in ice cream when the bean is used instead of the extract.

These pods are gathered when just turning yellow, and before they are fully ripe as they are then liable to split in two. If picked too green they keep badly and contain little perfume. When dried in the sun the pods turn to dark brown or almost black and shrink to about a quarter their original bulk.

The Yield of Pods.

Law's Grocer's Manual says: "In Mexico, 100 vines at three years old yield on an average, without any cultivation, 50 to 65 pods: at four years 165 to 200 pods: at five years, 325 to 500 pods: after this the yield diminishes to the tenth year when it is necessary to destroy the vines and replace them with new ones.

"From the third to the tenth year each plant may thus average two pods a year: but, if properly cultivated, the crop of pods is infinitely larger, say 20 to 30 pods to the vine. The Tuxpan Valley is evidently the home of this valuable orchid, for there is more exported from Tuxpan than from any other port in the world."

Has Extensive Sale.

Vanilla essence is the form in which vanilla is most commonly used, the sale of this flavoring being, perhaps, larger than any of the other extracts.

While it is largely used, but a small percentage of people really know anything of it source. For this reason the above should be interesting reading for the grocer and his clerk, as both may be able to turn it to good account, if they will remember that customers are often interested in just such matters.

PITHY POINTERS

Continue your campaign against the fly. The pests are still plentiful.

Now is the time to push your sale of fruit jars. You don't want to carry them over.

Window displays of picnic goods are still good business getters.

Keep ice tea before your customers. Mention it to them.

Don't let up on collections. Keep after the slow-pays or the mill will stop.

Move your spices up where they are handy. It will save many steps in the next two months.

Don't let your money run away through a leaky vinegar tap. Buy one that will hold it.

Better arrange that ad. for the paper when you get spare time.

Crescent BM&Co. Brand
TRADE MARK.

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

The most economical high-grade oil ever sold in Canada.

FOR SALE EVERYWHERE

Wanted— Something Better

Once for all time, Brother Grocer, realize this basic fact.

That the housewife is always an unwilling user of the inferior product. Using it only because she knows no better.

But deep down in her heart is the Desire for Something Better.

If she buys cheaply, it's because her mistaken idea of economy has been fostered by the price-cutter, with his just-as-good-for-less arguments.

In the nerve-racking hurry of every-day selling, perhaps you have not had leisure to consider all this.

Why is it that to-day women all over are such anxious readers of innumerable cook books; why do they devour countless pages of domestic lore in city and farm papers; why are they such earnest students of culinary science; why do they beg, borrow or steal one another's recipes?

Simply because they want Something Better.

Not something cheaper.
Would you better your trade, Brother Grocer?

Then better your grade.

Who are making the big successes to-day?

Look about you—isn't it the quality man, he who serves his trade better than it can be served elsewhere?

Isn't it the man who sells Something Better?

Based on this idea, the FIVE ROSES sales have grown tremendously.

Meeting the universal craving for Something Better. FIVE ROSES sales couldn't increase if to-day we lost the customer we made yesterday. Ultimately, Brother Grocer, your flour sales will be just as large and just as profitable as you deserve. Just as easy to sell better flour, Brother Grocer.

And much more satisfaction to know that your goods will meet the user's every requirement.

Don't cater to the price trade—it's overrun with merciless competition—and you only make a customer to lose her again. This is the trade that is constantly decreasing, Brother Grocer.

But the FIVE ROSES patronage is always increasing, making new converts both directly and indirectly. And behind you is the confidence-building force of efficient advertising, matchless quality of product, prompt service, and the reputation of a house that prizes square-dealing beyond any other consideration.

Five Roses:—

IF MRS. SMITH ONLY KNEW that in making gravies, sauces, custards and soups she could make them thicker, smoother and richer by using just think how soon she would be telling all her friends about it. You might suggest this to Mrs. Smith and all the other Mrs. Smiths and get them started. Explain to them that Benson's Prepared Corn makes these sauces and gravies free from lumps and without the insipid raw taste that flour imparts. You will find your sales of Benson's Prepared Corn will increase.

They Ask for Their Saleslips

The seventy thousand merchants in all lines of business who use

With Only One Writing The McCASKEY SYSTEM The End of Drudgery

find that their customers ask for their saleslips—the itemized accounts of their purchases---showing the total amount due. They want to know what they owe.

¶ The McCaskey System saves time, labor and money for the merchant. It protects him against forgetting to charge, (if he fails to write the slip the customer asks for it.)

¶ It is an automatic credit limit.

¶ The McCaskey System cuts out useless bookkeeping. It keeps every account posted and totaled to date. It is an automatic collector. It furnishes proof of loss in case of fire.

¶ It flags the merchant at every danger point.

A SOURCE OF PROFIT IN ARROWROOT

One of the best gifts of the New World has only recently come to its own in a large way. For a century or more St. Vincent has shipped the bulk of the world's supply because St. Vincent Arrowroot is the best.

Recently, the enormous increase of the use of cocoa and chocolates and the study of domestic science and nursing have brought it into common use among a much larger portion of the people.

There is a large profit for the dealer in handling Arrowroot as it rapidly makes its way among the consumers.

Arrowroot makes delicious Blanc Manges, Puddings, Biscuits, Cakes, etc., and is invaluable as a diet for invalids.

GET A REPUTATION FOR SELLING GOODS OF CLASS!

You can sell and honestly recommend the SHIRRIFF EXTRACTS. They will give your customers the greatest satisfaction, being purer, stronger and more true in flavor than any other make.

It stands to reason that if you hand a confiding customer a trashy extract, she will buy that commodity somewhere else next time. And while she is buying that, she will most likely order something else if your competitor is wide-awake—as he most likely will be.

More Than Ninety Flavors

More Than Ninety Flavors

ALL SHIRRIFF'S EXTRACTS are best in their line, but the greatest success of all is

Shirriff's TRUE VANILLA

Made from the real Mexican vanilla bean, it has the true vanilla flavor. This flavor is almost unknown now, because of hundreds of chemical concoctions on the market under the name of "vanilla."

So, if you sell SHIRRIFF'S TRUE VANILLA, you will be giving your customers an extract that will be a revelation to them.

You will please them and add to their confidence in the goods you sell, generally.

WE GIVE YOU A GOOD PROFIT ON EACH SALE WITHOUT LOWERING OUR STANDARD OF QUALITY.

New PEAS (with MINT) in Cooking Nets (Farrow's Patent)

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

FARROW'S 'Patent Net' PEAS

are the finest early green peas, gathered at the beginning of the season when peas are sweetest, most tender and delicious. Our process preserves ALL their natural flavour. When cooked they are so delicious and tender that you cannot detect them from fresh garden peas. They are very easily cooked and remarkably cheap —a 10 cent Net provides liberal portions for 8 people. Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas are English grown, absolutely pure, free from all preservatives and colouring matter.

The grandest 10 cent line the Old Country has ever sent us.

To the Manufacturer or Wholesaler——

If it were possible to employ a traveller who could call on thousands of the best dealers all through Canada every week, what salary would you figure he'd be worth—even supposing he did nothing more than go in and shake hands with these dealers, under such circumstances they'd be glad to see him.

Would he be worth $200, $300 or $500 per week? Many a house would pretty nearly let him fix his own salary.

Equip an advertisement in this paper with a verbal handshake for every dealer in Canada, and a frank, brief, pointed talk about your goods and you add a traveller to your staff who will make thousands of calls a week for you at a salary of $4 to $8 a week—less than you would pay a first-class stenographer.

Of course this traveller won't displace any of your regular salesmen, but he will help them to sell more goods and open up more new accounts.

Ko-Ko-But

THE PERFECT COOKING BUTTER

What it does

KO-KO-BUT makes cooking better, cleaner, more digestible, more nutritious, and more wholesome.

For Frying, KO-KO-BUT is excellent. It cooks the food to a nicety and does not spatter in the pan.

Cakes—bakings of all kinds made with KO-KO-BUT keep fresh longer.

KO-KO-BUT does not make the baking soggy, nor ooze out.

KO-KO-BUT does not evaporate, it keeps fresh longer than any animal product, and never turns rancid.

KO-KO-BUT saves money—less KO-KO-BUT used than butter or any other shortening.

REMEMBER KO-KO-BUT is 100 per cent. pure, there is no water, no waste. 1 lb. goes as far as 1½ lbs. butter or other shortening. (Butter contains as high as 20 per cent. water—KO-KO-BUT none.) This is KO-KO-BUT economy. Cooking is cleaner and altogether better. This is KO-KO-BUT satisfaction.

Send us a list of names and addresses of your customers and we will mail each of them a useful book of KO-KO-BUT recipes. If you place a trial order with us we will notify each one on list that you are stocking same.

Institute of Certificated Grocers

Vice-President From London, England, in Canada—Tells The Canadian Grocer the Aims and Objects of This Worthy Organization—The Value of the Clerk Who Has Passed Examinations in This University of the Grocery Trade.

Montreal, Sept. 6 (Special).—The Institute of Certificated Grocers is an English association the objects of which have been referred to in these columns from time to time, but the visit of the vice-chairman of the Institute, J. A. Sharwood, F.G.I., to Canada enabled The Canadian Grocer to secure directly an idea of how the association was formed, and how it has been achieving those results which it set before itself to accomplish.

Mr. Sharwood is a practical grocer himself, of J. A. Sharwood & Co., Ltd., Eastcheap, London, E.C., and understands the general problems that confront the trade. The fact that he is an advocate of the examining of clerks as conducted by the Institute of Certificated Grocers, after their methods have been put to the test is a guarantee of their practicability. Readers of The Grocer understand how the examinations are held, but it is interesting to learn how the English grocers laid the foundation of their association. Mr. Sharwood is of the opinion that the Canadian trade could easily adopt this idea and is confident that within a few years beneficial results would be observed in a larger number of capable clerks and a more general degree of efficiency.

How to Begin.

As an illustration of the plan, suppose it were to be tried in Quebec. Some one would have to take the initiative, as in all matters. Manufacturers' assistance would be enlisted and a certain number of prizes would be offered to those who show the highest efficiency. In the various towns and cities the grocers would have to select an examining committee composed of proprietors who by experience and otherwise are regarded as capable. The clerks in each town desiring to try for the prizes would have to present thmeselves before the local committee.

Those who passed this primary examination, for such it would be, received the honor of being Associates of the Institute. There is another examination—this a little more difficult than the first. The successful clerk becomes a member, and finally tries the last and principal examination. To those who stand the highest in the results prizes are offered, and in England the first prize is $500, presented by a large cocoa firm. The clerk thus completing his examination becomes a Fellow of the Association, and in a general sense he should be a thoroughly capable grocer..

Members Appointed.

The initial membership would likely have to consist of experienced grocers who would be willing to interest themselves in the association work and especially the pioneering for naturally it is the difficult part.

Mr. Sharwood states that the Institute of Certificated Grocers is governed by a president, vice-president, hon. treasurer, three trustees, and a council of forty-five members, elected at the annual general meeting.

He says that if any Canadian grocers took up this question the Institute in the Old Country would gladly render and assistance in their power.

Objects of the Association.

The Institute of Certificated Grocers has the following aims:—

(a) To band together all bona fide members of the grocery, provision and allied trades for the fostering of the reputation, usefulness and efficiency of those trades.

(b) To recognize the established position and long service of able and honorable members of the trade—the distinguishing letters of the Institute membership, together with its certificate being a guarantee to the general public that the member of the Institute is fully worthy of its confidence.

(c) To further the practical and technical education of the young men in the trade in conjunction, where possible, with apprenticeship; to hold examinations and grant certificates and prizes; and thus generally to increase the interest of the assistants in their work and their esteem of the trade, while promoting their usefulness and ability.

Its Value to Clerks.

"Do you not believe that a clerk who has become a Fellow, passing all the examinations, possesses something of real value," Mr. Sharwood asked, "granting that he has the personality and his certificate shows that he has the experience? Grocers have expressed their approval of his ability. This is surely an asset to a young clerk."

If it will arouse their interest in the business, and awaken them to an appreciation of what they have to learn the gain will not only be to the clerk but also to the proprietor. The Institute furthers the establishment of practical and technical classes for the study of the details of the trade in preparation for its examinations.

The Institute Appreciated.

Sir William Anson, Bart, M.P., president of the Institute, said at the annual dinner of the Oxford Grocers' Association: "I feel it a great honor to belong to a body which had for its main object the insistence on the development of the education of those connected with the grocery trade on lines which were practically necessary if persons were to be successful in trade. He believed they were expending their influence over the United Kingdom and that the classes which were provided were becoming more numerous and largely attended, and if they could really interest the young men in the scientific aspect of their profession, they would make them not merely successful tradesmen, but would give them that interest in their work which they would not otherwise possess." (February, 1911.)

Cyril M. Love, F.G.I., of Gregory, Love & Co., Ltd., Reading, said he thought they might describe the Institute as the "University of the Grocery Trade." He hoped the time would come when no man would be allowed to open a shop as a grocer unless he was a member of the Institute.

These and other commendations which might be cited testify to the regard in which the Institute and its work is held throughout the United Kingdom.

Lesson 3--Course in Card Writing

The Third of Series of Twenty Complete Lessons Constituting the Edwards Short-cut Course—Plate Three Shows the Single and Double Stroke Block Capitals—One of the Best Alphabets for Pronounced Headlines.

By J. C. Edwards. (Copyright applied for).

The three cuts showing the right way to hold the brush while lettering, while drawing a line and the equipment necessary will appear in almost every lesson of this course for the purpose of impressing on the mind of the student the importance of holding the brush correctly always. Watch your grip on the brush and do not get the fingers cramped, otherwise your lettering will be stiff and cramped as hand-writing often is.

Always see that the paint is not too thick and sticky and have it work nicely from the brush.

The alphabet illustrated is a very important one for strong headlines and can be used where the single brush stroke, if made heavy, would take up too much room and would have a tendency to be too black, and not readable. The single and double stroke block can be made normal, extended or condensed.

The normal letters take a space about square, the extended letter is longer than it is deep, and the condensed is narrow and more words can be put in a line than by using either of the former letters.

The letters used in this plate are more of the condensed style; every move is illustrated, showing the strokes in their proper order, with arrows indicating the direction the brush was moved in executing each stroke.

How Letters are Made.

The letter A was made in four moves, No. 1 is the first stroke of the first lesson. No. 2 is the second, but No. 3 widens stroke 2, making it double width, and No. 4 finishes the letter, as in the lesson on brush stroke block.

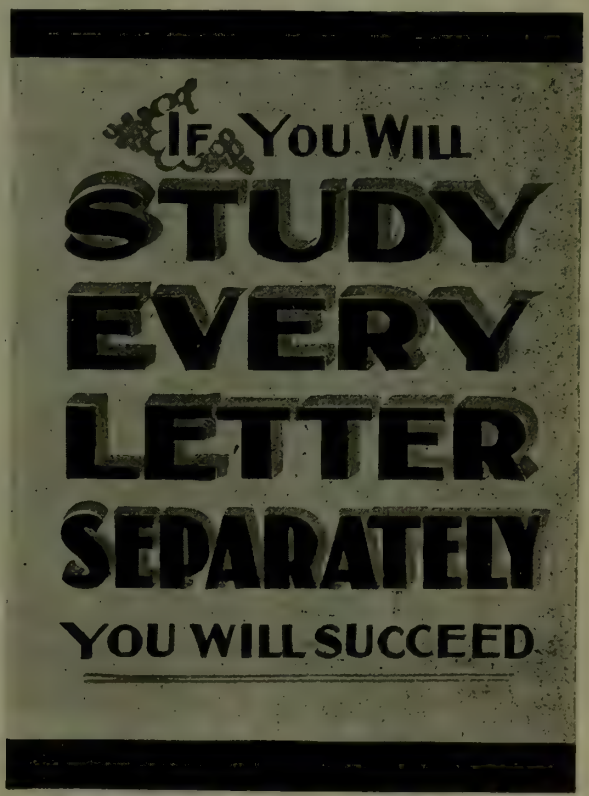
Letter B consists of seven moves or strokes. No. 1 is the same stroke as No. 1 in plate 1; No. 2 widens or makes it a double stroke; Nos. 3 and 4 are also the same as in B of the brush block, but No. 5 adds the double stroke to the curve.

The C is finished in four strokes, the first three being exactly the same as those of the single stroke block with the fourth to give the double stroke on the curve.

D, P and R are along the same lines as the B. The strokes are plainly indicated and will be easily understood if a close study of the plate is made.

Letters E and F are very simple and precisely the same, except that the F has one less stroke and stroke 5 in E is the fourth in F.

The strokes 1 and 2 in letter G repeat the first two in C; stroke 3 is the duplicate of 4 in C; the 4th and 5th in G finish the letter.



H and I are very simply made and easily understood.

J, L and T are easy, while K, M, N, V, W, X, Y and Z are the reverse to the letter A, necessitating the practice of the inverted angle, but will be mastered by practice.

Always keep the card directly in front of you to avoid leaning letters.

The Difficult Letters.

The O and Q are quite difficult letters to make in this style of letter, but the instructions are explicit enough if the writer is careful to keep the letters from taking on a laying-over appearance. The small or single stroke should be at the top and bottom, the cyma or spur which is added to the O to make the Q is made in two strokes only, as indicated by the arrows and numbers.

Card showing effective application of the single and double-stroke black capitals.

S is, without a doubt, the most difficult of all letters and should be practised a great deal to get it perfect. Stroke one in the S may be made so that the second stroke will come either at the top or at the bottom. In fact, it is often necessary to add half a stroke above and one-half below to

B.C. Merchants Meet in Convention

Many Important Problems Discussed—Dead-Beats, Price-Cutters, Liability of The Wife in Contracting Debts, Fake Advertising, Collection of Accounts and Other Matters in the Limelight—Relations Among Retailer, Wholesaler and Manufacturer.

Special Correspondence.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 7.—The fourth annual convention of the B.C. Retail Merchants' Association, held here on August 28 and 29, brought together many representatives of the trade both of this province and neighboring cities, and matters of mutual interest were taken up. Among the visitors were officers of associations from Seattle, Victoria, New Westminster, Kelowna and Lethbridge, indicating the co-operation of many cities of the west in association work.

It is hoped that in a short time the whole of the western part of Canada will work together for the protection of the retail merchant, and being affiliated with the associations in the cities south of the border the territory will be fairly well organized. This has been made more possible in the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association and the B.C. Hardware Dealers' Association having a common secretary in R. D. Dinning.

Prominent Men Present.

When the convention opened on the afternoon of the 28th there were present beside local members: T. S. Futcher, secretary of the Victoria Retail Grocers' Association; J. J. Higgins, secretary of the Washington Retailers' Association; B. L. Cope, secretary of the Lethbridge, Alta., Business Men's Association; C. B. Deans, of New Westminster; G. M. Thrift, of Hazelmere, and George S. McKenzie, of Kelowna. The president, F. W. Welsh, occupied the chair.

It was a coincidence that the acting mayor of the city, who delivered the address of welcome, should have been Ald. James Ramsay, biscuit and candy manufacturer, who has been identified with the grocery trade for years. It is seldom that an association at its annual convention has one of its own people to welcome the members from the highest civic position.

In extending to the visitors the freedom of the city, Ald. Ramsay believed the idea of getting together was a good one, and should be endorsed by every one in the trade. Co-operation meant the stamping out of unfair and detrimental competition, which after all did more harm than good to the community. The organization did good work also in bettering conditions both for tradesmen and consumers. He believed the time was not far off when the grocery clerk, to attain the highest efficiency, would have to serve an apprenticeship, just like any one learning a trade, and when this came to pass it would mean a great deal in raising the standard.

The president replied on behalf of the association.

Better Conditions Wanted.

The address of welcome of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association was extended by T. F. McDowell, vice-president, and a Vancouver grocer in the absence of the president, Thomas Duke. He pointed out the progress that was being made, so much so that now this association was one of the best and strongest on the Pacific coast. It had been an uphill fight, but results were now showing. He said the principal aim was better conditions instead of better prices.

Response was made by B. L. Cope, of Lethbridge, the only representative present from Western Alberta. He said the work being done was excellent and although their association at Lethbridge was new it had 58 members. He had come out to get ideas and assure the organization on the coast of the co-operation of the association in Lethbridge.

To Make the Wife Responsible.

After the roll call, the president reviewed the work accomplished during the year. This included the enlarging of the scope of the organization to take in all retail dealers, and the forming of new associations at Nelson, Cranbrook, Revelstoke, Kamloops and Nanaimo. He declared that "dead-beat" lists of all the nearby provinces should be maintained and kept up as admirably as they have been in the past; that the peddlers should be restrained from cutting too deeply into the trade of the retailers, and that legislation should be sought which would make the wife jointly responsible with her husband for the family debts, so that the head of the family could not dodge the just obligations incurred for the maintenance of the family. He suggested the establishment of associations in the large business centres of the Dominion.

Combating the Dead-Beat.

R. D. Dinning, secretary for the mainland, in offering his report, characterized the roving dead-beat as the greatest menace to the retailer. The remedy he thought, was in closer union. City and country merchants should stand together, as their interests were identical and the danger a common one. Some plan should be devised strong enough to compel the irresponsible, incompetent and dishonest to tread the paths of rectitude and of safety, and to be wisely enough conceived to be self-supporting.

Other reports were read from the treasurer and secretary for Vancouver Island, T. S. Futcher.

That the dead-beat is the cause of the loss of more money to the retailer than any other feature of trade was shown in the discussion eagerly participated in when the president suggested the appointment of a committee to look into the securing more information as to the maintaining of a dead-beat list of the Western provinces of Canada. Many of the members related personal experiences and all were agreed that this trouble should be stamped out. The committee appointed consisted of W. H. Walsh and T. F. McDowell, of Vancouver, and G. S. McKenzie, of Kelowna.

Thomas Duke and J. A. Henderson, of Vancouver, and A. C. Tait, of Victoria, were appointed a committee to suggest a method of raising funds so that the organization would not depend entirely on the goodwill of the grocers' association.

For the purpose of promoting legislation along lines tending to better protect the retailer against the dead-beat, a legislative committee was appointed, composed of T. F. McDowell, R. D. Dinning and T. S. Futcher.

For Extending Organization.

Another committee, comprising G. S. McKenzie, Thomas Duke and T. S. Futcher, was appointed to make suggestions for extending the organization throughout the province, the meeting being of the opinion that this work should be carried on as much as possible.

C. B. Deans told how the work was progressing in New Westminster. The dead-beat was not so much trouble there, as the floating population was not so large.

In the interval between the afternoon and evening meeting, an automobile ride around Stanley Park was enjoyed, five machine loads making the trip.

Manufacturer and Wholesaler.

"The Relation of the Manufacturer, the Wholesaler and the Retailer" was the subject of a paper given by J. D. P. Malkin, of W. H. Malkin & Co. He showed how these three branches of trade had to be well organized and in perfect running order before even the smallest manufacturer could carry on business successfully. To get the full benefit of the combination the three branches should be worked separately, even if all are controlled by the same organization. But all should work in harmony, that feature being at all times essential. Each branch of the trade should be conducted as well as possible by the man engaged therein and for mutual benefit he should work as close as possible with not only other members in his same line of business but with the members of the other two branches.

Opposition to Fake Advertising.

Mr. Cope told of the work against fake advertising that was being done in Western Alberta, and also the steps being taken to protect merchants against dead-beats and beggars. He said it was a good plan to watch the habits of those who were slow in payment, and a little quiet observation of this kind would often suggest to a dealer when to draw a tighter line on a customer's credit before he became too deeply involved.

Developing Salesmanship.

Mr. McTaggart read a paper on "How Can We Increase the Efficiency of Our Salespeople?" He discussed ways and means of building up trade and keeping it, of getting good men, training them right and keeping them. He declared the whims of customers should be as carefully observed as the more decided opinions, for often these mere whims, if properly considered, will make lasting customers of their possessors. Employes should be regarded as gentlemen and encouraged to have an interest in the business. He believed in the old saying, "Honesty is the best policy," and cautioned the dealer to observe it. It used to be "Let the buyer beware," but now it was "Let the seller beware."

The Price-Cutter is Scored.

Mr. Higgins, of Seattle, concluded the evening session with a paper on "Our Common Enemy," referring to the price-cutter. He instanced the havoc wrought by the man that undertook to always try to get the best of his competitor, and he held that man responsible for all of the short weights and adulterations of foods that are practiced. To provide "bargains" he had to do so at a profit to himself, and to maintain his own record he had constantly to adulterate or short-weight, else he could not keep on. The price cutter was also responsible for the higher cost of living, since he forced the manufacturer and producer to cut in every way possible to compete with him. On an improvised blackboard he showed the retail grocers how they were losing money on the sale of staple articles of food, such as bacon, ham, flour and sugar, and his conclusions gave some of his audience a surprise.

Reports of committees were made at the Tuesday morning session, when officers were also elected and general business wound up. The committee appointed to suggest a way of raising funds for extension work recommended that the members of the different associations be asked to contribute $2 each. It was thought this would be enough for the year, and in the future less money would be required for this purpose. The report was adopted.

Some Legislation Wanted.

The committee on legislation reported as follows: "Your committee on legislation to whom was referred the question of joint liability of husband and wife for household necessities used by either recommends that a petition be prepared setting out the various points requiring amended legislation and be sent to the various affiliated associations for their support and asking the local members of the provincial parliament to support the same when brought before the house at the next session. With regard to peddlers' licenses, the various municipalities have each their own set of licenses, but we recommend that a petition be prepared setting forth the unfairness of the present conditions affecting the various business enterprises carried on, and asking them to be amended in accordance with the present standards of the business men of the city."

Some of the workers who made the Victoria, B. C., picnic at Goldstream a Success.

The committee on extension suggested that Mr. Dinning circularize the merchants of Victoria and Vancouver as to forming an association of the merchants of Chilliwack and New Westminster.

Regarding the handling of dead-beats, the committee reported: "Your committee recommends the adoption of the plan used by the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association and would advise the sending out of the forms used to all the other associations in British Columbia. We also heartily approve the action of the above association in establishing a collection agency and would recommend all merchants in British Columbia to send accounts to the agency for collection."

These reports were all adopted.

Mr. McDowell discussed the subject, "What is the best way to collect accounts from the customers who are well-to-do but slow pay and still retain their patronage." He pointed out that if all the merchants applied the same policy of handling their customers with a firm, but polite hand, many of the difficulties of the well-to-do but slow-pays would soon disappear. He gave much good advice on the ways and means of keeping accounts and records of promises made.

The New Officers.

Officers were elected as follows: President, F. W. Welsh, Vancouver; vice-president, H. C. Martin, Vancouver; treasurer, L. L. McTaggart, Vancouver; secretary for the mainland, R. D. Dinning; secretary for Vancouver Island, Thos. S. Futcher, Victoria; directors, George S. McKenzie, Kelowna; W. C. Stearman, Vancouver; A. C. Hampton, Vancouver; G. M. Thrift, Hazelmere; W. H. Walsh, Vancouver; A. C. Tait, Victoria and T. F. McDowell, Vancouver.

Vancouver was selected as the next meeting place, the time to be exhibition week, 1912.

LESSON THREE IN CARD WRITING

bring the whole finished stroke in the centre of the letter.

The other two strokes are the same as the second C stroke and the second J stroke.

U is really two reverse J's with the heavy stroke always on the left side as shown.

The small letters preceding the strokes of the various letters are shown, shaded with the upper right hand shading. It is done with grey paint, mixed as described in the lesson No. 1, with a single stroke of the brush and always at the same angle. The accompanying card shows this alphabet in card form with the lettering spaced properly and shaded with a striking illumination in the form of heavy black lines at top and bottom of the card, and a little scroll effect around the first word.

NOTE.—Use a flat brush—a red sable in albata, size 7, as this is a very useful size. Draw the brush flat by dipping in the paint and rubbing back and forward on a piece of cardboard until the edge is chisel-shape. Hold the brush as indicated in cuts shown. Use letterine in black.

HINTS FOR GROCERS.

Having a new line to offer your customers once in a while, impress on them that you are up to date.

Don't hold suspicions against a clerk without taking the pains to verify them.

The time to go after business is when business conditions are bright.

The man who is too busy to change the advertisement in the local paper is too busy to be a merchant.

Make every effort to secure as many new customers as possible, but do not neglect the old ones.

The time to push an article is when the selling season first opens. Do not wait until the people's appetite for it has been appeased.

To be a successful merchant, a man must be able not only to sell goods but manage the business. Salesmanship is, however, a big asset.

Taking pains in teaching the junior man how to wrap parcels well and weigh correctly, is energy well expended.

TRADE NOTES.

G. M. Gemmill, Almonte, Ont., has opened a grocery store in the Forgie block.

E. E. Linnell, grocer, East London, Ont., has sold his business to D. H Mennill.

J. F. Smith & Sons, Napanee, Ont., have sold to W. H. Milling. The former are leaving in the near future for the West, where they will enter business again.

T. H. Janes, grocer, London, Ont., has sold his business on the Wortley Road, South London, to G. McKay & Son, of Chicago. Mr. Janes, it is understood, is taking an interest in the I. X. L. Spice & Coffee Co.

SOME FIGURES ON CALCULATING PROFIT

Fort William Dealer Gives Interesting Figures for Perusal—Says Turnover May Increase or Decrease, But Cost of Doing Business Will Remain Same.

By Wm. A. Moore, Fort William, Ont.

I have been greatly interested in the different opinions and comments that have been published in The Canadian Grocer in regard to percentage made by retailers on certain prices set above cost.

In many issues has the question been asked that if goods cost a certain amount, how much must be added to make a certain per cent. profit, but I notice some of the writers have never stated whether the per cent. was to be regarded on the cost or selling price. For instance, if an article cost $4 it would have to be sold at an advance of 25 per cent. in order to make 20 per cent. on selling price, on which price I consider is the only safe way to figure.

It seems that a great deal of discussion rises as to whether the percentage should be figured on the cost or on the selling price. A certain ratio exists between the two prices, and it is immaterial which one is used, but in order to get the cost of doing business we must know what profit is made on the selling price. For instance, a merchant may do a $5,000 business one month, and say it costs him $500 to do it; next month he may do a $7,000 business and the cost would be the same, while the next he might do $4,000, and still the expenses would be the same, for it is not likely his staff will change as his turnover rises and falls.

On $5,000 business with expenses $500 it cost him 10 per cent. to do it; on $7,000 business with expenses $500 it cost him 7 1-7 per cent. to do it; on $4,000 business with expenses $500 it cost him 12½ per cent. to do it.

If the above statement is figured at 25 per cent. on cost or 20 per cent. of the selling price, then $5,000 business with expenses $500 gives a net profit of 10 per cent.; $7,000 business with expenses $500 gives a net profit of 12 6-7 per cent.; $4,000 business with expenses $500 gives a net profit of 7½ per cent.

This, of course, will work out at any per cent., but it is inevitable that the per cent. is to be figured on the turnover, for the cost of doing business can never be ascertained until the business has actually been done.

SUGAR CONTINUES TO SOAR.

Following last Thursday's advance in sugar, another 10 cents was added to quotations on Tuesday, thus repeating the previous week's movement. This makes a total advance of $1.05 since June 30th.

The reasons for the advance are mainly the same as have been set down before. A new phase has however entered into the market of late. Up to now, speculation has apparently been due to fairly well confirmed shortage in European beets which come in from October to December. The amount of this shortage has been growing larger and the sugar market accordingly advancing, until now the shortage in Austria and Germany is estimated at 1,450,000 tons. Now comes unconfirmed rumors that the Cuban crop of cane which comes in in January will not be the bumper crop expected, on account of lack of rain. If this is true it will no doubt work for a still stronger tendency.

With abnormal conditions such as now ruling there is always the danger of extreme views. While conditions in Europe are indeed getting worse instead of better, still the cane crop in Cuba has to be reckoned with, but it will be a while yet before anything definite regarding it is ascertained. At the moment, the market is firm with no apparent weakness in sight as yet.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

Frost has at last arrived in damaging severity in the West, and the strain under which many farmers of the West have been living for the past few weeks has at least been broken for a few. Cool weather, combined with heavy showers, prevailed over many parts of the West last week, and as high as 8 degrees of frost were registered in several localities. The exact damage has not been estimated, and in fact will not be known till the grain is threshed. Manitoba at present appears to be the hardest hit.

In the three provinces, however, there is a large area of late grain. All early wheat has escaped the damage from rust and frost, and has been safely reaped. Late fields are by no means out of danger yet. Many escaped last week, and if the hot weather which has been prevailing for the last two days will only continue instead of being broken by cool days and rain storms, which are seriously delaying harvesting operations, fair yields will yet be obtained.

In spite of all the adversities however it is recognized that a large crop will be harvested in Western Canada. While the predictions of phenomenal yields made in July might not be fulfilled, it is agreed by all that a large increase will be noticed.

ANOTHER ADVANCE IN RICE.

Another advance in Rangoon rice is recorded this week, thus making a 25-cent rise within a comparatively short time.

This advance has been due to the extremely short crops in India owing to the want of rain in many districts and as the shortage became more apparent, primary markets have been advancing with a consequent rise here.

The new crop Java is also understood to be a small one, and at the present time Java is reported to be buying Rangoon rice in large quantities, a fact which has doubtless helped to strengthen the market. The shortage in these two lines will naturally have a tendency to strengthen rice prices in general.

COMMISSION ON TRADE AND COMMERCE.

There has been considerable discussion on a "Commission for Trade and Commerce" since The Canadian Grocer first took up that question. The dissolution of Parliament and the imminence of a general election, have, however, rendered impossible an early consideration of the matter by the authorities at Ottawa.

Beyond a shadow of a doubt the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild will endorse such a commission as the Ontario section already has done. Wholesalers realize the advisability of having some responsible body pass on trade matters in which they may happen to be concerned. The position to be taken by the manufacturers remains unknown, but it is probable that some of these men will see good points in being able to lay their distribution plans, ratio of profits, and so on, before some such permanent organization for approval, before new lines are placed on the market.

But the trade section vitally interested is that of the retailers. Were such a group of men, as outlined in a previous article in this paper, appointed by the federal government and given the necessary authority, dealers would be placed in similar relations to them as is the public to the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada. For that reason it would undoubtedly be a good thing for grocers throughout the country to set forth their opinion on the appointment. No great reform can be accomplished without the pressure of professional and popular opinion being exerted on its behalf. The columns of The Grocer are open for the airing of the views of its readers, and, as they will be the most important of those to pass opinions, it is urged upon them to do so without delay.

HOW A CUSTOMER WAS LOST.

In a certain Canadian village, the stores close on Wednesday afternoon during the summer months. One Wednesday last year a farmer drove into town just as the stores were being closed. He went to the grocer from whom he generally bought his supplies and found he had just locked up. He asked if he could get some goods and the merchant who had already been disturbed from his mid-day meal a couple of times, curtly replied that the store closed at 12.30 and nothing could be purchased afterwards. This being the only store at which he dealt regularly the farmer had to go home without his groceries. The result was, he withdrew his trade from this store that had refused to accommodate him.

It is indeed somewhat trying on the merchant to be disturbed several times during a holiday but he can not well afford to be discourteous to good customers on whom he depends for his trade. And when he does accommodate them in this manner, it is just as well to do it pleasantly instead of in a grouchy manner.

The merchant must try to hold his trade, even if it does put him to a little discomfort.

BE FULLY AND WELL INSURED.

The real business man is the one who always has an eye on the future and, as far as lies in his power, prepares for any obstacles or possible loss that may affect his business.

The large losses by fire that are annually being met should furnish food for thought on the advisability of being well insured.

The folly of conducting a business without having the stock fully insured is being plainly demonstrated every week. A merchant not only owes it to himself but to his creditors also that his stock be well insured. He should give sufficient protection to the men from whom he purchases his goods, against possible ravages by fire. A man's business, credit, prospects and ambitions may be wiped out in the twinkling of an eye unless he is fully protected in this regard.

When a merchant insures he should put on enough so that loss in case of fire will be covered as fully as possible. He should also make certain that the companies with which he does business are reliable, and that when he takes out a policy he is really insured.

PENNY WISE AND POUND FOOLISH.

A merchant had a splendid window display. He closed his store at seven in the evening. He turned out his window lights. He said he did it to save money. Did he save money? Possibly between four and five hundred people, all probable customers, passed his store between seven and nine o'clock. How many would have stopped to look at an unusual window display?

The window could not fail to impress a large number if the lights had been on. Sales, the next day or the days following would have undoubtedly followed. Then, again, did he save money? No, he certainly did not. He lost.

Just another case of a merchant being "penny wise and pound foolish." This same spirit of false economy has a hold on many merchants of to-day. They cannot see far enough ahead to realize when an expenditure is in the end going to be to their advantage. They can see only immediately ahead, with the result that they save the cent and lose the dollar. This particular instance is only one of many in which by spending a little money, more money can be made.

"It is certainly disgusting," said a woman to the writer the other day, "the manner in which some of the food we eat is handled in the store. I was just down to that store on the corner and I simply wouldn't think of buying anything there, the store is so dirty. The goods look all right, but the appearance of the store is enough to drive a person away. The counter, the scales, the floor, in fact, the whole store is repulsive. They had the cooked ham lying on the dirty counter, one corner of the cheese was on a sticky fly pad, while the bread, which I went to buy, was piled on the back counter with several bunches of half decayed vegetables at the side and a big swarm of flies hovering about. I simply walked out without buying."

The rules of cleanliness were certainly not obeyed in the store described above. This may seem a particularly bad case but there are many other stores in both the small town and the cities equally as bad. The particular features of uncleanliness may be different in some instances, but appearances in many cases as judged by the consumer are just as bad.

The dealer should ask himself, "How does my store compare with a model of cleanliness?" "Is its appearance such as would attract customers or has it as in this case some features of uncleanliness which is liable to drive customers away?"

In the modern grocery, it is not only needful, but necessary that cleanliness be maintained in every particular if the store wishes customers to continue to trade.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Get away from the idea that the methods used years ago cannot be improved upon.

Don't be afraid to criticise an employe when he really needs it. But be sure he is in fault before you do.

Keep your credit accounts within a reasonable limit. It is one of the essentials of a solid business.

Visit the other stores occasionally and see how other merchants conduct their business.

If you doubt that cheerfulness is a valuable asset in the store, recall some of your own shopping experiences.

Let the cheap help do the cheap work. Do not have a high-priced salesman delivering goods when he might be making sales.

Give clerks all praise due them. If they make a good window display or a good sale, show them you are pleased.

If your sales so far this year have not come up to expectations, now is the time to determine to make up for it during the remaining months of 1911.

Some employes seem to expect a steady increase in salary without any corresponding increase in the quantity or quality of the service they give for it.

A grocer in Ontario who is still advertising groceries for Dominion Day in his ad. space will likely declare that advertising does not pay. Undoubtedly when conducted in that manner it does not.

Seldom does the grocery clerk have such an opportunity of increasing his efficiency as is presented by the card-writing course now running in The Grocer. The clerk who has the ability to write cards or price tickets is of mucs more value than the one who has not. Clerks should take the matter up with enthusiasm, while merchants should encourage their clerks to take advantage of this opportunity to acquire a valuable accomplishment.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—Labor Day found few if any of the retail and wholesale grocers closed. The staff of clerks may not have been complete in every case, but there was still a majority at work in the houses that were open. People must eat and they must have eatables and it is probably upon this principle that the purveyors of groceries donned the accustomed apron just the same as other days in the week. A prominent grocer remarked that there was a lamentable scarcity of good clerks.

The various houses report business highly satisfactory. Even collections are giving no trouble, in fact they seem to be coming forward as regularly as the bills are received. Everything points to a splendid business during the fall. There is apparently nothing on the horizon to cast a shadow over the grocery business during the near future, and the more distant looks safe.

Sugar.—The advance in sugar at the time of going to press last week was followed by a further 10c rise on Tuesday night, bringing granulated in bags up to $5.65.

The market remains firm and despite the apparent fact that the European beet crop has suffered, there is a feeling that speculative action has been partially responsible for the continued upward movement. Reports state that in Germany and Austria there was a loss to beet sugar of 1,300,000, while in Cuba 300,000 tons are given as the estimated shortage. Naturally this strengthened the position of buyers. There is a feeling that sugar should hold firmly for some weeks to come, while others are inclined to think that the limit has been reached. Locally, sugar is firm and is in good demand.

Molasses.—The Cuban molasses producers are possibly tearing their hair over the profits that passed them by but which they were unable to provide for. Naturally in January last they did not imagine that sugar was going to soar to a near record price. If they had possessed only a suspicion of such an occurrence they would have made sugar not molasses from their cane. Then there might have been a double profit to them. Instead of molasses being cheap, it would have been dear and the sugar which they would have held would have sold now at a handsome price. But such is the game. Molasses remain uneventful, the higher grades retaining their firmness.

Dried Fruits—The dried fruit market shows no material change. Jobbers report news to the effect that recent rains in Greece have been responsible for an advance of one shilling in the price of curants valencia raisins, also show a slightly higher price. Rice.—Another advance in the price or rice is announced this week, making a total of twenty-five cents in but a short time. Rangoon rice is principally affected as in India recent drouth has hurt the crops. Naturally there will be a sympathetic effect on other varieties of rice if this movement is more pronounced. It it believed that the market is likely to show something of the tendency of sugar and to advance still further. This, however, is but conjecture based on the strength of the situation.

Canned Goods.

TORONTO—Prices on new pack salmon to the retailer are named, and, as expected are high and considerably in advance of last year. Sockeyes in 1-lb. talls are $2.45 dozen, 1-lb. flats $2.50, and ½-lb. flats $1.55. In 5-case lots these are 2½ cents per dozen less. The prices of other lines of salmon are found in our list below. There can seemingly be no relief and steady prices are generally anticipated. The world's markets are bare of stocks, the pack this year has been small, and the result can only be a steady tendency. Sockeyes will have to go to the consumer at 25 cents per tin.

All lines of canned goods are firmly held and even now with the presence of fresh fruits and green vegetables in large supply, there is a brisk demand for many lines. There have been some new pack tomatoes on the market. Dealers are now wondering what the opening price on this line will be. It is one of the grocer's big sellers and he is accordingly greatly interested. There has been practically no change in conditions of the crop. As pointed out before much depends on the latter part of the season and the time that the frost puts an end to packing.

Prices on Canadian sardines and herrings are lower this year, the catch being quite favorable and in excess of last year considerably.

Montreal.—Spot peas are quoted at from $1.25 to $1.35; tomatoes at from $1.40 to $1.45, and corn at $1.00. One jobber stated that some of this season's canned tomatoes had already been received in order to supply the spot demand and prices had in consequence shown a little easiness. However, the market is firm practically without exception. There is a steady demand for the vegetables, apparently no break in business resulting from the arrival of the farmers' fresh supplies, and the continued firmness of the market. Blueberries to arrive are quoted at $1.20, and it is expected that shipments received will be no more than from 30 to 40 per cent. of the orders. The new prices of salmon are quoted this week and will make interesting reading for the retailer. It also bears out the prophecy of a Toronto wholesaler who about this time last year remarked that salmon was bound to increase in value while its consumption continued to increase as it has done within the past few years. He did not quote figures but he did assert his assurance that salmon would reach higher figures than ever and recent announcements have borne out his predictions. Clover Leaf and Horseshoe salmon are now so near to retailing at 25 cents a tin that the difference, if there is any, is not worth consideration. And salmon is not going to become cheaper, in fact the prevailing opinion is that prices will gradually advance as the coming business year rolls by. One wholesaler remarked that he did not believe it was good for the trade that prices should be at the present level and his reasons were similar to those that have rather frequently appeared on this question. One advance will automatically occur on Dec. 1 next, when prices will go up 2½c per doz. It is stated that quotations for 5-case lots are 2½c per doz. less than the list price.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Salmon—Prices on new pack.

Rice—Lower grades up 10c.

Tomatoes—New pack on market.

Toronto, Sept. 7.—Trade in general lines of groceries is of a steady character, with wholesalers apparently satisfied with the present movement. The lines in demand are changing somewhat from summer goods back to staple lines. While there is as yet a certain trade for those lines in special demand during summer, it is naturally not quite so heavy. Customers are returning from their summer homes and this no doubt is the main reason.

Sugar has certainly got the habit, again repeating last week's performance. Following the advance on Thursday last, another rise of 10c was recorded on Tuesday. The consumption with the present plenitude of fall fruits is large. Kindred lines as well as those in which sugar is largely used show signs of strength in a number of cases, the result of the present high prices. One wholesaler pointed out that the consumption of sugar has increased enormously of late, not so much in the increase in the sale of the article itself through the grocer, but in the several lines of confectionery.

Sugar.—The strength in the immediate sugar market on which we laid stress last week was well warranted. Following the 10-cent advance on Thursday last, reported briefly in our last issue, another rise of 10 cents on Tuesday of this week brought Toronto quotations up to $5.75. The advance since the first reports of damage in Europe has certainly been remarkable, amounting in all to $1.05 since June 30th. Beet quotations are now 16s. 7½d., the highest since the European crop damage in 1904, when in the following January prices reached 16s. 3¾d. Of late, a new phase has entered into the market, in unconfirmed rumors that the Cuban cane crop which comes forward in January will not be the bumper crop at first expected, but on account of lack of rain will show a loss from estimates. If this is true, it will work for a still stronger tendency.

While the general opinion is that sugar will continue firm with an advancing tendency, the more conservative refiners think that the speculative stage is being reached and that there may be a reaction when something definite regarding either Europe or Cuba is known, if it is in any way favorable. When conditions are abnormal as in this case, there is always the danger of too extreme views being taken. The market at the moment is strong, however, with no weakness in sight as yet.

Syrups and Molasses.—With the high sugar market the tendency is naturally towards strength in the kindred line, molasses. Trade just now is not particularly brisk. High sugar will also have a tendency to strengthen other lines such as compound maple syrup. Corn syrups are enjoying a favorable demand for the reason that an improved trade is anticipated as the weather becomes cooler.

Dried Fruits.—In new crop dried fruits currants and Valencia raisins are both strong. Raisins which earlier in the season were quoted at 23s. are now at 27s. The opening in Smyrna for new crop Sultanas has been extremely high. "The crop is small," asserted one wholesaler, "probably only 25,000 tons as compared with a normal crop of 45 to 50 thousand tons. Last year's crop was also small and there has been practically no carry over." The fig crop is reported to be the smallest in many years, and naturals are now selling at 3s. above prices a year ago.

In California, prunes are still steady but buying has slackened off. Apricots, which were at a prohibitive price, have eased off somewhat, and will no doubt have to go lower to induce free buying. Peaches are maintaining their position. While raisins are not firm at all there appears to be a lack of present orders.

Tea.—The general situation is one of continued steadiness. Ceylon and India markets are strong due to a brisk demand from all sections of the world. Demand locally continues good despite the advancing prices.

Coffee.—With coffee options showing marked strength, the general situation is naturally one of firmness. Trade locally continues favorable, although there is no particular briskness at the present time.

Rice and Tapioca—The firmness in Rangoon rice was referred to last week. This week a further advance of 10 cents per cwt. was announced, bringing quotations at mills, Montreal, for Standard B to $3.15. The drought in India is responsible for this advance in price. The Java crop is also reported short, so that there is a steady tendency in all lines of rice.

Beans.—Unchanged.

Winnipeg, Sept. 7.—"Couldn't be any busier," was the reply given by one of the largest wholesale firms this morning, when asked as to the conditions of the grocery trade during the week. "We have hardly time to turn around to fill orders which are arriving for hurried shipment since harvesting has been in progress. Prospects for the fall did you say? Well I never saw them as good, and if the rush which we are having at the present time is any indication of the yield or harvest expected, there should be little trouble in the collection department this fall."

Such is the feeling of the wholesalers on present business and this can be heard from all sides. Advances in price make no difference. The farmers of the west want the lines and are willing to pay for them. Growing in one direction, and expanding in another with the development of the country, is at the present time the slogan of the grocery trade.

In the various lines sugar formed the feature of the week, advancing 10c on Thursday and again on Tuesday.

Canned goods are also moving freely. One house reported that they could obtain no quotations on tomatoes, in fact independent canners have, they claimed, withdrawn their quotations. Other lines are active.

Sugars.—Last Thursday's advance was followed by another 10c rise on Tuesday. Stocks are of good size, and some jobbers who were fairly heavily stocked are reaping the benefit at present. In spite of the advance a certain number of orders are being received steadily, although trade is not as brisk as it was some months ago. Present quotations are:

Coffee.—Firm and still firm is the tone of the coffee market. Trade is active and several retail merchants have stocked up heavily on the chance of an advance. Prices, however, remain unchanged as yet, and are quoted as follows:

Coffee, standard Rio.	0 15
Coffee, choice	0 15
Coffee, extra choice	0 17

Beans and Peas.—The prediction of an advance failed to be fulfilled during the week, but there is little change in the situation from last week. Stocks of beans in Ontario are recognized to be low, while the demand remains firm.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 7, 1911.—The sharp and continued advances in the sugar market have made themselves felt in molasses, which is also beginning to show marked increases in sympathy with sugar. Molasses this week advanced two cents a gallon, and further increases are looked for. Sugar, as had been expected, made further advances on Thursday last, and again on Tuesday. A rise of $1.45 in six months is the record in St. John, the price having been going up since February very steadily.

In the opinion of a reliable local grocer, the scarcity noticed in canned salmon will be heavily felt in St. John. He would not be in the least surprised, he said, to see before long half-pound cans of salmon on the market, because of the fact that the price of the pound size has increased beyond the reach of the average working man, and has really ceased to be commonly used by all classes. Even now, he said, salmon is coming into favor as a salad, rather than as a principal course at table in many homes, just as has been the case with lobsters.

Aside from the change in sugar, molasses and flour, there were few alterations in market prices, but with eggs and cheese the tendency is upwards. Both these staples went up in price during the past week. The following are the quotations:

A NOVELTY STORE IN MONTREAL.

Seventeen Ounces to the Pound and Thirteen to the Dozen, in Vogue.

Montreal, Sept. 7.—Seventeen ounces to the pound on all goods sold by weight, and thirteen article for the usual dozen are two features of a new grocery store opened on St. Catherine street. The name of the store is the "Seventeen Oz. 1 Lb. Grocers." In addition they give one cent with all bottle and can goods.

The store is bright and atractive from the show windows to the back door, and the goods displayed are of fine quality. Electric lights have not been spared in the windows nor within the store proper. On the opening day a large advertisement appeared in a leading paper introducing the store to the public. An orchestra was engaged for Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings. In their statement the new store says: "The 17 oz 1 lb. grocers give you 17 ounces to the pound on all goods sold by weight; 13 to the dozen on all goods sold by the dozen, such as eggs, oranges, ginger ale, etc.

"And on every bottle of canned goods or bottled goods one cent is pasted."

The new company has been using newspaper space freely since their opening and have certainly attracted considerable attention. They promise an automobile delivery service at once. E. C. Strugnell is the general manager and L. A. Gareau is the proprietor.

WIDENING OF BANANA HABITAT.

A fruit authority looks for the gradual widening of the habitat of the banana. The limits of its successful development have long been given as 30 degrees north and 31 degrees south of the equator, and within this wide zone it flourishes in plantations around the globe; and in the Old World, especially in Africa, many of its varieties grow wild.

There is no doubt that the history of banana cultivation will be much like that of many other edible fruits. Hardy varieties of apples are growing to-day in districts where 40 years ago, it was declared they would never endure the long winters.

Authorities in plant geography aver that as experience is gained and the cultivation of the banana widens, varieties of it will be developed that will withstand even considerable degrees of drought and frost and enlarge the area of cultivation to an important extent.

FOR MORE PROFIT

Scores of people who had a cup of Red Rose Tea at the Toronto Exhibition would hardly believe that the price of the tea we served was only 40c. per pound. The most of them had been using 30c. tea and had no idea that 10c. per pound could make such a difference in quality.

Now 40c. Red Rose Tea gives you much more profit. Three-quarters at least of your customers would willingly pay the price if they only knew there was such a difference in quality.

Half a dozen words from you or your clerks when selling a package of 30c. tea would sell a trial package of 40c. instead. I know merchants who have done this. They have found it easy and profitable.

I hope the suggestion may prove profitable to you.

Cut Prices and Special Reductions

The Difference Between Them Shown—Why One Is Poor Business Policy and the Other Is Recommended — "Cut Prices" Leads to the Disorganization of Trade.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

One merchant asks: "Does it pay to have cut-price sales?" That depends on what you mean by "cut-price." If you mean the selling of advertised goods at less than the advertised, or established prices, I advise against it. If you mean the temporary reduction of prices on goods over which you have control, as a special inducement to the consumer to try those goods, then I advise you to do it.

Here are the reasons against cutting advertised brands:

1. This is unnecessary because a demand has already been established for such goods at regular prices which prices are known to consumers and there will be no suggestion of lower prices from consumers unless a cut is first made by a retailer.

2. The margin on advertised brands is seldom wide enough to justify any reduced price except in the possible reflex, and dubious, benefit to be derived through your ability to induce buyers to purchase other goods along with those offered at less than a profitable margin.

Benefit is Not Lasting.

3. Any such benefit must be transitory and temporary because your competitor can follow you at once, and thus what was intended to be a temporary cut becomes a permanent reduction, thus curtailing your profits without any compensatory advantages.

4. It is unfair to the maker of the goods who, often at great expense, has assisted you greatly in creating a consumer demand. You immediately put him into the anomalous position of stating that his goods sell at one figure whereas they actually sell at another; which is a demoralized condition which can result only in harm to both of you.

5. Likely enough you are one of those who bitterly complain about the total want of adequate margin on advertised goods; yet here you are becoming a prime mover in the creation of a condition which will tend to lengthen the list of well-known goods which you will have to handle with insufficient margin.

6. All of which tends to add one more to the circle of manufacturers who, after such experience with retailers, are inclined to feel, if not to actually say: "The retailer be damned; we have had to establish our goods without his help; he has been fool enough to give away the fair margin we allowed him; and now, by cracky, he can go hang, for he's simply GOT TO HANDLE our stock—and we get ours in any case." So, as far as these goods go, you, yourself, have reduced yourself to a slot machine which the maker loads up once in so often and the consumer unloads by simply pressing the button of demand. It should be remembered that the new article of to-day, which seems to present such a tempting opportunity to "get ahead" of your competitor, may readily become a staple. It will become a staple very quickly—and one to be sold without margin—if many dealers pursue the price-cutting tactics herein outlined.

Everybody Reaps Advantages.

7. This kind of advertising—so-called—is not advertising yourself. It is really advertising everybody who carries those brands; and the brands themselves are getting the benefit of your money without any return benefit accruing to you.

8. Chickens come home to roost. It pays to observe the GOLDEN RULE; or perhaps better, the Confucian rule of "DO NOT unto others that which ye would NOT that they do unto you." It pays to play fair; to keep faith with EVERYBODY.

By the temporary reduction of prices on goods which you control all this is reversed, for you turn every point to your advantage and you give nobody just cause to complain. Let us take up the same order of consideration.

1. You control those goods and therefore you can make your statements good. You describe one or two items from your fruit or fish department, or your own canned goods, if you carry them under your own name—say "No. 1 Sifted Early June Peas"—going into full details so your reader may know about, and therefore look for, their particular points of excellence; and you say: "Regularly 15c a can; 14c a can, $1.55 a dozen, THIS WEEK." You can withdraw that quotation at the end of the week, selling at 15c and $1.65 per dozen thereafter—and nobody can make your statements look foolish by continuing your special low-price offering. Also this method serves to introduce not what anybody can sell, but what you only can sell, and is properly chargeable, therefore, to advertising, or the legitimate cost of creating a demand for your goods.

Profits are Fair.

2. The margin on such goods is wide enough to admit of your making temporary reductions and the benefit is direct, all centered in your business, and permanent.

3. Covered above.

4. This is unfair to nobody, since it is entirely your business, applies to your own goods, leans on nobody's advertising expense but your own and does not demoralize anything, since you have a recognized right to dispose of your own goods on any terms that suit you.

5. In no way does this method interfere with your getting regular, full-quoted prices on all advertised brands. In fact, you are strengthened in your ability to get full prices on such goods, as you have never led any of your customers to look for cut-prices in your store and, in many instanees, if the buyer objects to the payment of full prices for advertised goods, you can offer her your own not as a substitute, not as something "just as good," but as an improvement over the goods she may have asked for.

Not a Slot Machine.

6. This method will gain you the direct good will of all manufacturers and, as your way of doing business becomes so well known that you may be said to have established a business character—something which takes time—you will gain substantial benefits through occasional concessions, or favors, or being singled out for demonstrations, or by being named as special agent, or in other valuable considerations from manufacturers who know that you will not give away advantages granted you, nor talk about their concessions; all of which will result in your advantage. Finally, under this head, you will never be a Slot Machine for ANYBODY!

7. Every bit of this work is done exclusively and solely for the man who is spending the money—that is YOU.

8. There is no chance for a "comeback" from anybody. You are playing in your own back yard. You are doing as you would be done by. You are playing fair; keeping faith with everybody; and every evening you can feel that your are prepared to "look any man in the face and tell him"—precisely the station at which he gets off? And all this without ill-will or legitimate bad feeling anywhere.

Under the method which I recommend—and which I have scrupulously follow-

*The writer of this article is one of the most successful dealers on the continent. He has spent almost 30 years in the retail grocery business and is well equipped to answer questions and smooth out difficulties with which others may have met.

ed out for years—there is only one thing that your neighbors can say of you, and that is, that you are a smart man to be able to build where they could not find even the building materials. And believe me, it is much better to have neighbors who say that of you than competitors who feel towards you as competitors are mostly apt to feel; for the establishment of neighborly relations in your community leads to the interchange of helpful information; the furtherance of association work and benefits; the promotion of good feeling and that helpful harmony which makes profit for all through eliminating needless friction.

Does this look sound to you?

HINTS TO CLERKS.

The clerks of to-day are the business men of to-morrow.

It is well for the clerk to be ambitious, but he should learn to tell the difference between ambition and discontent.

The clerk who wishes to win success must travel the same road that those before him have trod. There is no short cut to success.

The clerk who makes his employer's business his is the one who will reach the top of the ladder first. Taking an interest in the business helps him to acquire knowledge that he otherwise would not get.

Do not be content to sell only those lines asked for. Make an effort to sell over and above actual demand.

There is so much to do in any grocery store that the clerk need never stand idle. There is always a counter to dust, a shelf to arrange or some other matter that needs attention.

When you have taken a customer's order, show her some new line that you think will interest her. Try to increase your sales.

Try to learn as much as possible about the goods you have for sale. It will help you a great deal in making sales.

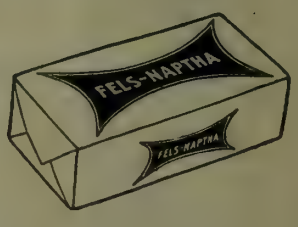
Care in weighing is essential if you wish to be of value to your employer. Remember that every time the scale swings down by overweight, you are making yourself so much less valuable to your employer.

Ramsays, Ltd., Montreal, have removed from 29-31 Vitre St., Montreal, to their new premises at 330 Nicolet St., where all communications should be addressed.—Advt.

GROCER IN TROUBLE AGAIN.

"I want to complain of the flour you sent me the other day," said Mrs. Newlywed severely.

"What was the matter with it, madam?" asked the grocer.



"It was tough. My husband simply wouldn't eat the biscuits I made with it."

Use the phone freely to solicit business. Make the instrument pay for itself.

Encourage the clerks to read the trade papers. There is much in every issue that will make them better employes.

There is not only satisfaction but pleasure in selling goods that are well known to the public. In selling Fels-Naptha, there is also the satisfaction of knowing personally that the quality of the soap is everything that the makers claim.

Decline in English Bacon Market

Live Hogs in Dominion are Lower in Sympathy — Prices Steady at Decline, However—Steadier Tendency in Lard—Butter is Generally Firmer—Good Export Demand—Cheese Market Still Continues High—English Market is Slightly Lower.

The English bacon market, as expected, has dropped back a certain extent. No doubt the high prices reached were caused by abnormal conditions induced by the strike. While on Aug. 24 quotations on the London market were 66 to 70 shillings, cables on Sept. 2 indicated 64 to 67 shillings. Live hog markets in Canada have accordingly been affected, and quotations are lower. The lower prices have curtailed the delivery of hogs, and prices at the moment are steady, but any further reduction in English bacon, which would not be a great surprise, will no doubt work for lower live hog quotations.

Trade in pork products continues quite favorable in volume, a good sized trade still being transacted in smoked and cooked meats, although a slackening can naturally be expected at this time. Lard has a steady tendency in anticipation of a better demand with the fall and cooler weather.

Butter is generally steady on most markets. There has been a good export demand while the home trade is good. On the other hand, production is not large, although a fair September yield with the present moisture is expected.

Cheese still continues high, with operators cautious. A decline of 1 shilling has occurred on the English market. One report from England says that the drought has caused a decrease of 20 per cent. in the production of cheese.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Lard is in an unsettled condition this week. While some firms are quoting it at ¼c advance, others maintain the present quotations. The tendency is, however, towards strength, a better demand being anticipated with the cooler weather. Smoked meats and cooked hams are enjoying a fair trade as yet. Live hogs, with a weakening of the English bacon market, declined 30 cents at the beginning of the week, bringing quotations at country points down to $7.40 per cwt.

WINNIPEG.

Provisions.—There is little difference in the provision trade this week from last, except that lard had advanced 5c during the week. The demand for all lines has been exceptionally strong as harvest is at its height, and the presence of many thousands of harvesters in the west demands a considerable amount of cured and salt meats. The advance in lard was hardly expected, and figures out to about ½c per lb. The supply of cattle and hogs being received at the present time on the market, shows little difference from last week, but the price for carcasses shows a decline of ½c per lb. The rush of fall cattle and hogs to the market is not expected for another three weeks, when the rush of harvesting will to a certain extent be over and farmers will have time to market their stock. New prices will be noticed as follows:

Hams, large	0 16½	Tomato sausage per lb	0 10
Hams, medium	0 19½	Pork sausage	0 09
Breakfast bacon backs	0 20½	Beef sausage	0 08

Mess pork, ½-bbl	13 50	Compound, 20-lb pails	2 10
		Steers, heifers, abattoir killed	0 08

Eggs.—The egg situation remains unchanged from last week, and the same price, namely, 21c and 22c per doz. for Manitoba fresh, cases returned, is prevailing. A scarcity still exists for guaranteed strictly fresh.

Butter.—Manitoba fresh made creamery made bricks are selling this week at 24c per lb., while boxes are quoted at 1c lower. Supplies of creamery butter from various sections of the province are being received in fairly large quantities, and Shoal Lake butter in prints is being offered by many of the large retail firms. Dairy butter remains unchanged from last week and shows little improvement. Prices quoted are: 17c per lb. for strictly No. 1; 12c to 14c for No. 2; 7c to 9c for No. 3.

Cheese.—Activity is the keynote of the cheese market at the present time, and prices have advanced ½c per lb. during the last week. The demand is good and jobbers are quoting Manitoba new cheese at 11½c this week. Shippers' prices remain unchanged.

GOVERNMENT SHOULD PAY SCALE INSPECTORS

Writer Maintains It Isn't Fair to Pay for Keeping Honest Scales—"Keep Everlastingly at It," He Advises—Doesn't Believe in Late Hours.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—There was a matter taken up in The Grocer some time ago, but which has apparently been allowed to drop dead, simply, I presume, from lack of support from those who should be the ones most deeply interested in it, viz:—the retail grocers.

The article I refer to was in regard to free scale inspection. Personally, I have no fault to find with the inspectors, as they are simply doing their duty, but what I do object to is for us retailers to keep our scales right and honest the year through, and then have a Government inspector step in and demand a good-sized fee from us for being honest and giving just weight, etc. Now by all means give us scale inspection, but I maintain the inspectors should be paid by the Government, as I maintain there is a lot of money spent by them more foolishly than the paying of scale inspectors would be. I should like to see this matter taken up in earnest by the retailers, as I see no reason why we should not stand to gain our point if we keep EVERLASTINGLY AT IT.

There is also another matter which I think is also a very important one, viz: that of keeping our stores open to all hours of the night, under the false impression that we are making money by doing so. I firmly believe that we would be just as well off at the end of the year if we would all close our doors at 7 p.m., instead of hanging out until 10 o'clock or after, as we do at present. We are simply spending about 15 hours to do what could be done in 10. What I think is needed is a little more friendship and co-operation along this line.

Marked Interest in Flour Prospects

Dealers Wondering What the Outlook for Fall Flour Prices is —Variety of Opinions on the Matter—Market at the Moment Shows More Strength—Better Demand for Cereals Anticipated—High Sugar Prices Strengthen Confectionery Prices.

There is a marked interest in the prospects for flour prices when something definite regarding this year's situation is ascertained. Not alone is this interest shown by the retail trade, but millers themselves all over the country are trying to discern in the distance the true situation. At the moment, the market is stronger or at least wheat quotations are higher. During the past week small deliveries of wheat, the war scare, unfavorable prospects in certain foreign countries, and somewhat reduced estimates for the Canadian crop, have all served in turn to keep wheat prices strong.

Opinions regarding the flour outlook are plentiful and extremely varied. One dealer expressed the opinion that when deliveries of new wheat begin to come forward that an easiness in prices will result. He pointed to the large Canadian wheat crop, in excess of any ever harvested in the Dominion. On the other hand, we have those who predict a higher market on account of the shortage in United States and Russia.

One conservative dealer summed up his opinion as follows: "Canada this year has a large yield of wheat, although estimates are being somewhat reduced of late. When deliveries begin with the good yield anticipated, I would not be at all surprised to see an easing off in prices. Still, Canada is not such an important factor in determining values as some believe. While the crop here has been large, elsewhere it has been somewhat disappointing, especially in United States, and the world's statistics indicate a smaller total than last year. For this reason I do not expect prices to fall off to any great extent."

With the arrival of the cooler weather a better demand for cereals will no doubt be in evidence.

Under the higher sugar market, confectionery prices are stronger with slight advances in a number of cases. Trade at the present is quite favorable.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—The market continues steady, with the demand showing a little improvement, although there has been no particular complaint from this quarter during the summer. With the returning colder weather, there is bound to be more bread consumed. Prices are unchanged.

WINNIPEG.

Flour.—There is no change in flour this week, although the nervousness of the wheat market, on account of the adverse climatic conditions for the harvesting of the crop would indicate that higher prices can be looked forward to. Large orders are still, however, being received from the east and west, and considerable export trade is being carried on. Prices quoted in barrels are as follows:

1st Patents	5 80	3rd Patents	4 90
2nd Patents	5 20	1st Clares	4 30

Cereals.—The demand for cereals and chopped feeds has fallen off somewhat owing to the season of the year. The wet weather has supplied the farmer with green feed, and although prices have not declined to any considerable extent, it is not expected that as strong a market will exist as that which prevailed last winter. Bran and shorts are quoted at $18 to $18.50, and $20 to $20.50 respectively. In chopped feeds, barley per ton in sacks is worth $25 per ton, oats $26, barley and oats mixed $25.50. Rolled oats in 80 lb. sacks is quoted at $2.

Peaches Now a Feature of the Market

Special Prominence Being Given Them—Quality is Generally Good—Other Late Fruits in Good Demand Also—Oranges and Lemons are Quiet, But Prices Fairly Steady.

Peaches are now a prominent line on nearly every fruit market and a good trade is being transacted in them. While there is considerable demand for them for table use, the larger proportion now being purchased is for preserving purposes. The quality is generally good, with prices fairly reasonable. There is also an abundance of other late fruits, such as plums, pears and grapes, with a good trade in evidence.

The trade in oranges with the present plentitude of domestic fruits is still quiet, and prices are unchanged. While the quietness would naturally tend toward easiness, on the other hand the season in late Valencias, the only kind on the market, is drawing to a close. Some lots of new crop oranges should be on the market before the end of this month. The Florida crop, according to report, will be fairly large.

The demand for lemons with the cooler weather of late is none too brisk There should, however, be a fair movement during September, if the weather is any ways favorable, and in such a case, prices should rule steady. Much depends on the weather, however.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—The demand for green fruits is brisk, and the various Canadian goods are moving freely. Apples are at present being asked for freely, and grapes, pears, peaches and plums are favorites. Lemons are only in fair demand, but the market is generally vigorous.

Green Fruits.—Abundant supplies of peaches, pears, plums and grapes continue to arrive on this market from the Niagara district. The quality on the whole is good, and a big business is being done in the several lines. There is a big range in the quality of peaches, and while the common grades can be secured at from 40 to 55 cents, early Crawfords and Elbertas range from 75c to $1.35 in leno-covered baskets. There has been a brisk sale for fruits of all kinds in Toronto during the Exhibition, with a certain demand from outside points also.

Tomatoes in 11-qt. baskets range from 30 to 40 cents, and are meeting with ready sale. Canadian sugar melons are also in good demand at unchanged prices. Lemons are not extra brisk, while oranges are quiet, but prices unchanged. Supplies of watermelons are about cleaned up.

Vegetables.—Potatoes, with supplies continuing to increase, are easier this week at $1.65 per bag. Other lines show no particular change. Trade is fair in volume in vegetables, but a large percentage is not done through the commission man, sometimes through the grower and a certain amount direct from grower to consumer. The market is still bare of Spanish onions, but there are some shipments on the way, and should be here by the first of the week. Canadian onions are quoted at $1.65 per bushel.

Fresh Fruit.—There is little new in the fresh fruit market this week and the demand owing to the cooler weather has fallen off slightly. The blackberry season is almost past, and supplies being received in the city are not as good as those shipped in two and three weeks ago. Cantaloupes, chiefly from Ontario, are being used in large quantities, and are forming one of the chief lines at the present time. Hardy pears have arrived

Fish - Oysters

Improvement in Fish Trade Expected

With Cooler Weather and Larger Supplies Better Demand is Anticipated—Interest Being Shown in Oysters—Salt Cod Fish Has Declined in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland—Due to the Poor Demand From Foreign Markets.

There has as yet been no great marked improvement in general fish trade, but a better demand in the near future is anticipated. Prices show no particular change. Supplies are none too large in any of the lines. Interest is beginning to be shown in oysters.

A further decline of 50 cents per quintal on salt codfish has taken place in both Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, due to the continued light demand from foreign markets. Unless there comes an improvement in trade, further easiness in prices would not be a surprise.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—The fish season is now open, and gradually as the weather becomes cooler, there will be a steady increase in the demand for fish and oysters. Orders show some improvement already, and the trade are looking forward to a good season. Haddock and cod are not as plentiful this week as they have been, owing to the appearance of dogfish in the fishing grounds.

B. C. salmon are scarce and higher. Brook trout on the other hand are beginning to come in a little more freely. Halibut are coming along regularly from the West. The trade is now offered Labrador salt herring in barrels and half barrels. They have just arrived this week.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—There has been no marked improvement in the demand for fish as yet, but with cooler weather, an increase is anticipated. Prices show no change from a week ago. Interest is beginning to be shown in oysters. A dispatch from New York in regard to oysters says that the stock is large in size, fat and of fine flavor and color and that prices in that market would be higher than in previous years, as there is only a limited supply of oysters to be had.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Owing to the continued light demand in the foreign markets, the fish trade at the present time is not active. Prices are easier in the local market and also in Newfoundland, another decline of fifty cents per quintal on salt codfish being recorded during the past week. The first big shipment of dry fish for some time went forward this week, one vessel sailing from Halifax for Pernambuco with a cargo valued at nearly $40,000. Unless the foreign demand increases, it is expected that prices will go still lower. With no markets in sight for the fish, the outlook is not favorable for the dealers. Small cargoes of dry fish from shore ports are now coming along, several having arrived here this week.

Fish are reported scarce along the Western shore of Nova Scotia. Some large schools of mackerel were sighted during the week, but the weather was so unfavorable that none of them were taken. Some small catches of haddock have been made. Several large stops of herring have been made, several of the local fishermen getting as many as 2,000 fish at a setting. These fish are selling on the local market at seven cents per dozen.

LIKED MARITIME ISSUE.

New Brunswick Dealers Express Appreciation—Date of Fruit Fair Decided.

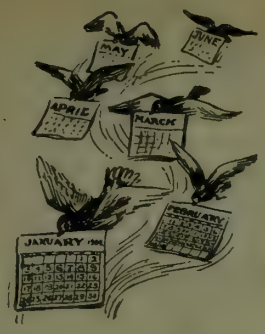
St. John, N.B., Sept. 7.—(Special)—Local dealers, many of whom are members of the St. John Board of Trade, heartily praised the Maritime issue of The Canadian Grocer, giving so much attention to the Maritime Provinces, and the Maritime Board. Although the local body is not affiliated with the larger one, yet the local merchants appreciated the attention paid to this territory and were not slow in saying so.

The dates for the fruit exhibition to be held in St. John under the auspices of the N.B. Department of Agriculture have been set and the time chosen is from October 30 to November 2.

FARRINGTON PHILOSOPHY.

If you believe in different degrees of honesty, it is a pretty safe bet you are not particular which one you adopt for yourself.

The man who spends much time looking for an easy way to Success won't have to go any farther than the looking glass to find a failure.



Among the things never yet found are the philosopher's stone, perpetual motion and the man who can't be spared.

Advertising should sell goods of course. But it should not stop with that. It should constantly and consistently build up reputation for the store.

Don't forget that your newspaper advertisement is intended for the eyes of all classes of people and should be simple enough for anyone to understand.

THE SALMON RUN.

The salmon catch runs in cycles of four years, a "fat" year, followed by three "lean" years. The last fat year was in 1909, and the next one will be in 1913. This year as well as next year are "lean."

Time Is Flying

Dealer Opposes Order-taking Method

Thinks Merchants Should Remain in Their Store, and Criticizes C. H. Crysdale's Advice on This Question—Adds Expense to the Operation of the Business, He Says—Compares it to Cutting Prices.

By M. Moyer.

I read the article in a recent issue of The Grocer, written by C. H. Crysdale, on "Order Taking," and saw that he looks upon the custom with considerable favor as an up-to-date method of doing business.

I would like to say to all merchants that they should not allow themselves to be carried away by every fad that is introduced, which adds expense to the business and lowers the standard of merchandising instead of elevating it. In some towns it has become a positive nuisance, and merchandising has lost all its dignity, and has become a species of peddling with a craze to get to customers first.

Thinks It Extra Expense.

Why should the grocers add this extra expense to the business, which is not demanded nor wanted by the people? More than half the people would much rather not be bothered at their houses. This is admitted by Mr. Crysdale when he says that it is a "delicate phase of the business, and requires diplomacy and tact. The order taker must know when to call on the woman, that the time is opportune, so as not to bother her."

For that reason he recommends that either the proprietor should go out himself, or else send his best clerk. It is also true if one starts it the others will soon follow; after all, if they all stayed in their stores, they would do just as much business. It works exactly the same as if one merchant starts to cut prices and the others follow him. None of them will make anything, and, on the whole, will sell no more.

Have the grocers not expense enough? Is it not enough when they deliver the goods, which not many years ago was not done? If they keep on like this, some one may start to do the cooking, and to go one better, another will wash the dishes. There is no telling where this will end, as long as some can lead the others, and whose influence should be strong enough to lead the people to refuse to support unbusinesslike methods.

Should the Proprietor Take Orders?

Mr. Crysdale points out the importance of a good man to take the orders, and even goes so far as to say that the proprietor himself should do it. Suppose he does half his business by the "order taking" method, what about the customers who call at the store? Is it not of the greatest importance that the proprietor is there to show his appreciation of their trade? How long will customers call at the store if they never see the proprietor? Are they not losing more from this source than they are gaining by stampeding the town for orders, and neglecting their stores?

If the people were consulted, fully 75 per cent. would rather go out and buy what they want than to be bothered, very often when they required no goods. If the merchants in towns throughout the country would decide between themselves to agree upon fair and economic methods instead of hustling to get ahead of each other in reaching a customer at his own home, they would command more respect, give the public better service, and make store-keeping what it ought to be.

Editor Canadian Grocer,—Some vinegar (speaking of "malt" in all cases) I bought a few years ago was bought for "50 per cent. over proof" and tested 14 per cent. by the hydrometer.

The last two years I bought from another firm what was represented to be the same vinegar, and is invoiced at 50 per cent., but tests only 10 by the hydrometer. Barrel marked "Double strength."

As this latter costs practically the same as the former, have I not been "soaked," and giving my customers the worst of the deal?

Kindly tell me the difference between XXX, proof, 50 per cent. over proof, and "vinegar extract."

"VINEGAR."

Kalso, B.C.

Editorial Note. — The hydrometer method of testing the strength of vinegar is apparently not reliable and is not used by vinegar manufacturers. A Government tester, similar to those used by Government officials, and which tests the vinegar by grains, is the method now in practice. "I would say," said one vinegar dealer, "that the hydrometer method of estimating strengths is very unreliable and is rarely, if ever, used now, the normal soda solution adopted by the Canadian Government being the only test recognized by chemists."

"Proof" vinegar is the standard adopted by the Canadian Government for the purpose of levying customs and inland revenue duties, and all vinegars are spoken of as being "over-proof" or "under-proof" as they are stronger or weaker than the standard.

There is no Government regulation regarding the brands known as XXX and XX, although manufacturers in Ontario have adopted a strength which is fairly uniform and that strength for XXX is known as 25 under-proof. That is, three gallons of "proof" vinegar and one gallon of water would make four gallons of XXX vinegar. There is, however, no Government standard for these brands, and their strength will depend entirely on the reputation and honesty of the manufacturers. Samples of vinegar marked XXX have been tested and found more than 50 under-proof. A vinegar of a strength of 50 over-proof could be diluted with an equal amount of water and the result would be a XXX vinegar of the strength adopted by Ontario manufacturers, hence it could be correctly marked as "double strength" if the contents really were 50 over-proof.

"Proof-vinegar," the standard, tests 118 grains, while 50 over-proof accordingly tests 50 per cent. more, namely, 177 grains. Then, XXX, according to Ontario manufacturers, would test 25 per cent. under-proof, or 88 grains, and while there is no standard for XX, reliable dealers generally make it test 70 grains.

What is Vinegar Extract?

All dealers are not acquainted with "vinegar extract." One dealer says it is a term usually used for acetic acid, which is about 14 times as strong as proof vinegar, that is 80 per cent. acetic acid. "There is no product," said another manufacturer, "which can be legally called 'vinegar extract' and that which is sometimes sold under that name is a more or less concentrated acetic acid, and it is illegal to sell either the acid itself or a dilution of it under the name of 'vinegar.'"

A suggestion has been made by the chief analyst of the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, that any vinegar over 50 over-proof should be called 'vinegar extract' or 'concentrated vinegar,' but it has not yet been adopted.

If there are any dealers who wish to have a test of any vinegar made, if they will communicate with The Canadian Grocer, information will be given of how they may have it tested free of charge.

The Best Proposition!

Looked at any way you please, no line of goods holds out the same inducements to the Grocer as

UPTON'S

Jams, Jellies and Marmalade

First, they are made from the finest fruits in the world---Canadian Fruits---selected by experts and preserved and bottled in an up-to-date, sanitary factory, which is a model of cleanliness. Second, the "Upton" line never 'sticks,' because our extensive consumer advertising has created a demand for these goods; and third, selling "Upton's" specialties invariably leaves a satisfaction and profit-margin behind that makes trading a pleasure.

Are you featuring "Upton's"? If not, fall in line with the 'wise' ones.

Please do not suppose that

are only suitable for invalids and children. They are delightful biscuits for afternoon tea —with butter or cheese at lunch—or when taken as a light snack by themselves.

The fact that they are so much more easily assimilated than any others is in great measure due to the large quantity of rich, fresh milk used in their manufacture, combined with a certain proportion of specially prepared malt.

What's to be done? Will the customer pay again? Or will the merchant cancel the charge, satisfied he's a loser? Or will they both profit by the lesson and insist that a receipt be given with every transaction? Successful merchants put a receipt in every parcel. National Cash Registers provide the quickest and safest method of issuing receipts. Remember that!

STOP

LETTING GOOD MONEY SLIP

THROUGH YOUR FINGERS!

Of course, you don't mean to let your profits leak away, but why don't you STOP IT?

If you let an item of $1.00 each week slip by without being charged that means a loss of $52.00 for the year.

If you let $1.00 each week SLIP THROUGH YOUR FINGERS in settling DISPUTED ACCOUNTS that means you must sell $260,00 worth of goods to make up for it.

If you are using some drop-leaf SLIP system where several accounts are exposed at the same time and lose slips (representing money) get accounts mixed, bring forward wrong past accounts and possibly to cap the climax lose all your accounts in a fire, you may not be able to estimate your loss,—but why bother then—it's too late.

CUT IT OUT—NOW!!

BUY A 1911 MODEL KEITH ACCOUNT SYSTEM.

It will stop FORGOTTEN CHARGES on account of the NUMBERING FEATURE. No other system has this feature.
It will absolutely prevent disputes—ask us why.
It will positively prevent losing of slips, mixing of accounts, and manipulation of charges.
It will protect your accounts against fire.

Millar's Jams

Where Purity is the First Demand Millar's Jams Excel

The keynote of the immense success and popularity of this brand of Jams is the notable purity of its manufacture. Every ingredient which goes into it is of the "first water;" every utensil or article used in its production is the essence of cleanliness, and the strictest supervision is kept over it during the process from the picking of the ripe fruit until it is packed. ORDER A SAMPLE LOT of Millar's Jams. They will bring you trade.

Millar's Jams are real Irish make, and are noted throughout Great Britain and Ireland. They are very popular in Canada where introduced.

Supplies may be had from the following:—Warren Bros. & Co., Ltd., Toronto. A. M. Smith & Co., London. W. G. Craig & Co., Ltd., Kingston. The F. J. Castle Co., Ltd., Ottawa. Lumsden Bros, Hamilton. "Turn Your Spare Time Into Money."

When you read this paper do you ever think of the opportunity open to you if you have spare time to look up new subscribers.

We publish other trade papers and require representatives to push circulation.

If you show business-getting qualities, we can always offer you promotion. Consider the opportunity of further extending your business education, and adding to your income at the same time; because, to be successful in canvassing for trade papers, you must study and understand them; to study and understand them is to absorb practical information, and to increase your earning power, by getting a grasp of every day actual business happenings as they occur and are disposed of.

This work, while affording valuable experience in modern business methods, will substantially increase your income, as our commissions are liberal.

When applying give references and state your qualifications for the appointment.

Ko-Ko-But The Perfect Cooking Butter

WHAT IT DOES

KO-KO-BUT makes cooking better, cleaner, more digestible, more nutritious, and more wholesome.
For Frying, KO-KO-BUT is excellent. It cooks the food to a nicety and does not spatter in the pan.
Cakes—bakings of all kinds made with KO-KO-BUT keep fresh longer.
KO-KO-BUT does not make the baking soggy, nor ooze out.
KO-KO-BUT does not evaporate, it keeps fresh longer than any animal product, and never turns rancid.
KO-KO-BUT saves money—less KO-KO-BUT used than butter or any other shortening.
REMEMBER KO-KO-BUT is 100 per cent. pure, there is no water, no waste. 1 lb. goes as far as 1½ lbs. butter or other shortening. (Butter contains as high as 20 per cent. water—KO-KO-BUT none.) This is KO-KO-BUT economy. Cooking is cleaner and altogether better. This is KO-KO-BUT satisfaction.

Send us a list of names and addresses of your customers and we will mail each of them a useful book of KO-KO-BUT recipes. If you place a trial order with us we will notify each one on list that you are stocking same.

A Merchant's Remarkable Statement

His Loss and Gain Account Presented for Criticism—Net Profit of 11¼ Per Cent. on Sales and Cost of Doing Business is 6.63 Per Cent.—Hugh Blain's Rule for Computing Margins Commended.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Here is a statement which looks almost too good to be true. In fact, I should like to have more details, as it seems to me that something must have been left out. At any rate, it sheds a lot of light on the simplicity of the problems of the dealer in the country town as compared with those the solution of which vexes the city grocer.

September 1, 1911.

Store Management Editor,
Canadian Grocer;—

Dear Sir:—We herewith enclose statement of our Loss & Gain account for your criticism.

Telephone charges,	$ 57.70
Rent, 1 Year,	150.00
Expense,	1,896.00	$2,104.03
Profit on Mdse.,	5,575.80
Discount,	121.60	5,697.40
Net Profit		3,591.37
		($3,593.37)
Sales for 1 Year,	$31,865.00
Inventory of Stock,	6,200.00
Less Depreciation	500.00
Net Stock on hand,	5,700.00

Our gross Profit on Sales, 17½% (17.88 % plus)

Our net profit on Sales, 11¼%.

Everyone working in the store is under a salary; namely, a manager and one clerk; and another clerk for about four months.

This is a little country town of about 100 people; but our trade is all with the farmers. Competition is keen. We charge all freight direct to merchandise. Our discount account is really larger than what appears, possibly near $200, but many bills are not entered on books, but as soon as checked are paid for less discount, and merchandise charged with the actual amount of the check. Do you think that the gross profit shows up large enough? We intend to get a fair price on all our goods, but cannot see where we could get a larger margin. We handle a general merchandise line, such as groceries, shoes, dry goods, also flour and feed.

You can answer through your paper, keeping name confidential. If any other information necessary, will be promptly given.

Yours very truly,
C.M.S.

Expenses seem low.

There are slight errors in the figures, or maybe the writer has cut certain fractions to make "round numbers." The net profit item figures $3,593.37—$2 more than he shows; and the gross profit figures out to a percentage of a little over 17.88, instead of 17½%, as he has it. But the almost incredible item in his expense of just about 6.63%. That is almost 5% less than I have ever seen or heard of; as is also the net profit of 11¼%, 6% more than the average good grocer makes net. Making all due allowance for the conditions which may prevail in shoes and dry goods, I yet cannot understand how such a business can be handled by two people regularly and only three at rush times.

A Merchant to be Admired.

In any case, he seems to have mastered all local problems; the keen competition he mentions would seem to have no terrors for him. And it might be said right here that profit, like riches, is relative, not arbitrary; and the man who can clean up 11¼% net profit on a gross percentage of 17⅞, is strictly all right. He is better off than the man, supposing such a man can be found—for I have not yet found him—who might make a net of 11¼% on a gross of 22%, or any higher percentage, for he certainly has less worry, less help to bother with, less details to watch. Think of being relieved of the delivery problem alone! That one feature is worth 1% on any man's net profit, just to be rid of the vexation and care of it.

As to whether the gross profit is large enough, I say "let well alone" for surely you are to-day entrenched safely beyond the reach of the most active competition and you are realizing a net profit such as very few merchants anywhere, in any line of merchandising, are able to earn.

Wants Fuller Information.

Now, if my correspondent will send me his balance sheets, showing all the details and just how he has arrived at all these figures, I shall go into all questions further. I want to know just how that item of "Expense" is made up. I want to have the total investment; amount put into fixtures and other equipment—give full details of this item; what stock on hand was at previous inventory; whether there are any book accounts, and how much previous inventory and this one.

It is right to charge freight and any other cost of getting supplies into your store, to merchandise account, as part of the cost of goods, since your cost must lay the goods into the store. It is right to discount your bills and credit these discounts to a special account. Merchandise must be charged with full face of the invoice and the credit against that charge must be divided between Discount and Cash, to balance. Now, if I can have the further information I ask for, I shall be able to go into fuller details.

Rule for Computing Margins on the Selling End.

I am deeply indebted to Hugh Blain, wholesale grocer, Toronto, who, in The Canadian Grocer for August 11, reviews one of my talks on the correct figuring of profits. This is not only because he approves of my method—for he does that—but because he gives us the Rule which I did not give for the excellent reason that I did not know it! But now let us add it to our meagre collection of basic principles, for future guidance and that we may further scientize this business of ours. Here it is; cut it out and file it for daily use until you have assimilated it so that you use it with unconscious mechanical precision:

The Rule.

Subtract the percentage required from 100; multiply the cost by 100; divide the result by the sum obtained from the first subtraction. Example: To make 25% margin on the selling price of an article which costs $3.75. Subtract 25 from 100 and you have 75; multiply $3.75 by 100; divide by 75; result, $5. To prove this: 25% of $5 is $1.25; subtract $1,25 from $5 and you have $3.75—your cost.

For all ordinary purposes you can use ¼, ½, 1-3, etc. To make 20% on the selling price, divide cost by 4, giving you ¼ of the cost; add result to cost and you have a gross margin of 20%. Example: Cost 12c; divide by 4 and you have 3c; add 3 to 12 and you have 15c, which gives you a gross margin of 20%.

Begin Fall Housecleaning Campaign Now

It is Business Suicide to Wait for Demand—Extra Efforts Will be Well Repaid as There is a Splendid Business Passing —Articles That Will Sell Well—Methods for Making Sales.

Grocers should now be preparing for the fall housecleaning season. The trade throughout the country have the opportunity of annexing some of this business during the next six weeks while the housewife is putting her house in order before winter sets in.

There are numerous reasons for this repetition of the spring campaign and the fundamental cause is the fact that the average woman is never satisfied unless she is moving things about the house, and of course a regular top-to-bottom campaign affords a great opportunity.

The Demand Exists.

There is no doubt of the fall demand for articles used in housecleaning. Dealers are already beginning to receive orders that indicate the opening of the season. People are returning from the summer resorts. Their houses have been closed during the past few months and require attention. Those who have remained in the city know that the dust of many weeks has filtered through unseen openings to settle on furniture, carpets and hangings. This must be removed during the fall for the winter siege will soon be upon us.

The Thing That Will Sell.

There should be a good demand for brooms. Women want only new brooms for their best carpets and the average house will need a new one.

Carpet beaters, dust collectors used on the floor before sweeping, cleansing powders and preparations for polishing brass, silver, window panes, furniture, powders used in cleaning floors and ceilings, washboards, scrubbing brushes, ammonia powder and liquid, etc., all these articles will be asked for, and the grocer who unites with the demand should attract more than the normal share of trade to his store.

The Best Means.

The methods of securing this fall trade while it lasts are known to the most grocers. Window displays, interior displays, newspaper advertising, and the usual combinations of the outside and inside salesmen while they are performing their regular work of selling staples.

Suggest to the housewife in your advertising, window displays and personal conversation that housecleaning should be attended to before the cool weather sets in. It is remarkable what little effort is necessary at most times to influence the mind of the woman. If you even call her attention to the fact that housecleaning is general she will nine times out of ten realize that she ought to be doing something as well as others to brighten up the home. And so she should.

Suggestion for Arranging a Fall Housecleaning Window. A Good Window Display is Bound to Sell Goods Which Otherwise Would Not be Asked for.

A window card such as "Fall Housecleaning Season Is On," will go a long way to make sales, particularly if the dealer follows up the matter with a neat, attractive window display, and in his personal talks after serving customers with what they ask for.

To Wait is Business Suicide.

A good business is undoubtedly passing. To wait for it is business suicide. To simply supply demand will never make a merchant rich. He must create demand himself, and this he undoubtedly can do with some extra efforts.

TENSE SITUATION IN SUGAR.

Since our last issue, sugar quotations have again been increased, this time by 20 cents, which places it higher than it has been in 22 years.

It also makes a total upward movement of $1.25 since Europe first commenced to send out unfavorable reports regarding the beet crop.

The situation is tense, the market at the moment strong and further upward movements in price would not be a surprise. They may not come, but on the other hand they may. Just what the outcome is going to be would be welcome information by all connected with the grocery trade. While there is nothing in sight at the moment to break the market, there are what conservative dealers regard as dangerous spots. Conditions are abnormal and if any weak spots become apparent, speculators would probably attempt to take their profits.

Russia has a large surplus of sugar which in case of necessity can be exported to convention countries by a vote of the Brussel Commission, and should prices advance to extreme limits and be warranted by actual shortage, it is natural to expect the Brussels Convention will relieve the situation.

With the definite shortage in Europe unknown, although considerable, the American beet and Louisiana cane crops about to come forward, the possibility of Russia affording relief, the uncertainty of the Cuban crop which comes in in January and the approach of the post-preserving season, the future of the sugar market is certainly problematic.

About all that can be said is that the market is abnormal, in control of speculators, and at the moment no apparent weakness at hand.

RICE UP 50c IN A MONTH.

Twenty-five cents per cwt. has been added to rice quotations this week, making a total upward movement of 50 cents within a month—an unusual occurrence.

Conditions responsible for the rise are unusual also. In India a period of great drought has brought about an almost complete failure of the crop and reports say there is not enough rice in India this year to supply the home demand. Crops in other rice-producing countries are also short, floods having caused damage in Korea and China.

As these adverse reports continued to come forward increasing the estimated shortage, prices began to move upward, bringing about a total rise of 50 cents. Under the apparent shortage the market, even at the advance, is strong.

WESTERN CROP SITUATION.

Cold weather accompanied by frequent showers continued to interrupt the successful harvest of the Canadian West, but in spite of this drawback, great progress is being made. Several shipments of new wheat have been received, the first cargo leaving Port Arthur at the head of the Lakes last week. The majority of wheat received so far has been graded from No. 1 to No. 3 Northern, No. 2 comprising the largest quantity. It is expected that the majority of the early wheat will be graded fairly well, but the later wheat is expected to fall down to lower grades.

Cutting is by no means over in some of the late districts, and as frost has prevailed in many sections a lot of this grain has been caught.

Winnipeg papers of good standing are advertising the cutting and threshing of every bushel of grain as it is stated that there is likely to be a serious shortage of crops in other wheat-growing countries of the world and consequently high prices are expected to prevail.

STUDY EXHIBITION EXHIBITS.

In this issue will be observed the photographic reproductions of many foodstuffs and store equipment articles and others closely allied to the grocery trade, exhibited this year at the great Canadian National Exhibition.

Dealers are advised to study these carefully. They provide an opportunity for the merchant who was not in a position to attend the Exposition of seeing a portion of the exhibits in which he is interested; they illustrate what manufacturers are doing to interest the public in goods the retailer sells; they provide subjects for window dressing; but, of greater importance, they give to the salesman the chief talking points for increasing the sales of the articles exhibited.

This latter phase is the most important because the dealer who understands his goods thoroughly, who knows they are of a quality he can safely recommend, can undoubtedly create demand for them on his own account—and if a dealer cannot create demand himself he is not long for this world as a retailer. His success in these days of competition is directly proportionate to the quantity of goods he sells over and above the actual demand, providing, of course, he does not give them away.

Study the exhibits. They mean money to you.

ROLLED OATS ADVANCE ANOTHER 30c.

This week a further advance in rolled oats of 30 cents per barrel is recorded making a total upward movement of 50 cents per barrel in the past three weeks.

This advance has been brought about by the higher prices for the raw material attributed to the world's condition in this cereal, while the big shortage in this year's crop of oats in the United States is no doubt having considerable influence on prices. Then, again, the fall demand for cereals is beginning to make itself felt, while the export demand for oats is good.

Western Canada will produce a much larger amount of oats this year than last, around 223 million bushels being the estimated yield. With the big shortage in the United States and the demand from other foreign countries, it is a question just how much this enormous yield will affect prices.

However, just now the market is firm, with an improvement in demand being felt.

VALUABLE COURSE IN CARD WRITING.

Many dealers and clerks are taking advantage of our course in Show-Card Writing, written by a member of our staff, J. C. Edwards. This course consists of 20 complete lessons, three of which have been given in past issues, and they cost the subscriber nothing.

The Canadian Grocer has always contended that showcards are necessary in the grocery store and there are few now in the trade who believe otherwise.

Mr. Edwards is giving a superior course on this subject. Begin now and follow up carefully. If, however, you have not the opportunity just at present be sure to save all copies of The Grocer containing the lessons so they may be followed up at any time.

EXCELLENT CANNED CORN.

A report has just been issued by the Dominion Analyst on 146 samples of canned corn inspected, all of which were found to be in excellent condition of preservation. There was a great uniformity in the weight as well as the contents of the cans, which naturally leads to the inference that the work of preparing canned corn is carefully and systematically conducted.

The actual weight of the contents varied from 20 to 22 ounces. In many samples acid sulphite of lime, doubtless added for bleaching effect, was found while a non-sugar sweetener (usually sacharin) was noted in many samples.

In his report, the chief analyst says that the question of the use of sulphurous acid (the acid present in sulphites) in foods is a very important one. In the last five years, a great deal of investigation has been carried on; and a good deal of legislation has resulted. Much of this has been proved to be hasty, in the sense of having been undertaken without full knowledge of the matters treated, and has had to be amended or has remained inoperative.

That sulphurous acid is a poison, is perfectly well ascertained; but that it acts deleteriously on the human system in the minute quantity present in corn, has not been demonstrated. Much of the sulphite introduced as a bleaching agent is oxidized to sulphate, and thus rendered harmless. Free sulphurous acid is further got rid of in the process of cooking the corn, and it is certain that only very minute traces can remain in the article as served at the table. While he did not think we are in possession of incontrovertible evidence to justify legislative interference in the matter of the employment of sulphites in food, he believed the question to be of such consequence as to demand further, and careful investigation; and in the meantime recommend that, in all cases where acid sulphites, or sulphurous acid has been used in the preparation of food products, a declaration of such fact should appear on the label.

The question of the employment of saccharin (or a similar article) to give sweetness to the product, is another moot point. In this case also, he was unable to regard the evidence in the matter as conclusively proving danger to the health of the consumer. Germany has forbidden the use of saccharin, but this is evidently a matter of fiscal policy, rather than a declaration of the dangerous character of the article. The United States has declared against the use of saccharin in foods, basing its action upon the report of a Board of Consulting Scientific Experts. This decision was to have come into force on July 1, 1911; but an inhibiting decree was issued on May 23, postponing the operation of the decision against saccharin, until July 1, 1912.

The Chief Analyst considered it desirable that manufacturers employing saccharin in food products should be required to announce the presence of the article; since while the evidence available is not such as to justify the condemnation of saccharin, there exists among physicians and other qualified judges, a conviction that, in some cases, it is capable of doing harm.

CONDENSED MILK GOES UP.

As intimated by The Grocer two weeks ago, most firms have advanced prices on condensed milk. Higher prices for the ingredients used in its manufacture, especially sugar, is the cause of the advance.

Condensing companies have entered into an agreement designed to eliminate price-cutting among wholesale houses on this line. In the future, every case of milk is to be sold at the price listed.

Manufacturers state that the consumption of canned milk shows a steady increase.

HOW TO VIEW YOUR STORE.

It is policy for the merchant to frequently take a look at his store from the standpoint of an ordinary buyer to ascertain, if possible, in just what regard its appearance could be improved. Being in and around it all the time, he has become accustomed to its defects and does not see its inferior qualities as a stranger or a customer would. He should try if possible to shake the familiarity off and view it as he would another store on which he was asked to pass judgment.

Stand at the front of your store and ask yourself if you were a buyer would you be attracted or repelled by its appearance.

Note if the windows are trimmed in such a manner that you, a customer, would stop to look and remain to buy. Step just inside and cast your eye around. Is the interior attractive? Are the goods shown up to the best advantage or is there any manner in which they might be re-arranged so as to be presented to the buyer in a better way?

It is indeed well for the merchant to view his store thus at intervals. He will most likely find many improvements that are necessary which could be easily made.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Lack of ambition is responsible for more failures than lack of opportunity.

When you employ a new clerk tell him at once what his duties and responsibilities are, and leave nothing to be guessed at. It is easier and pleasanter to prevent errors than it is to correct them.

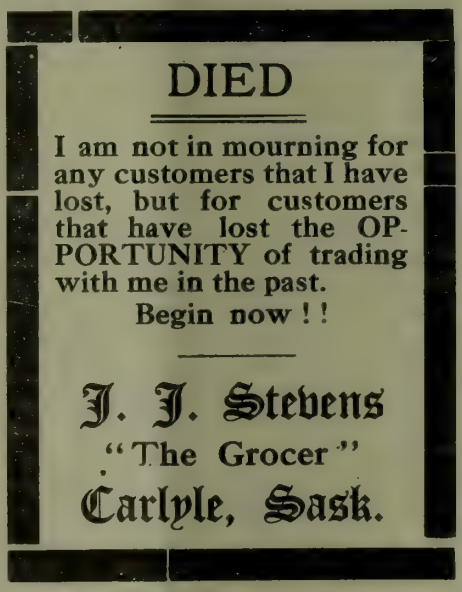
Wide Awake Methods of Retail Grocers

How a St. John Merchant Handles Confectionery — An Unusual Ad. Used by Saskatchewan Grocer—The Value of a Good Memory to the Merchant—Good London Vinegar and Pickling Spice Display.

How He Handles Confectionery.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 14.—"I have tried to be quite methodical in my confectionery department since I installed that new silent salesman, and I have found that it pays me well to do so, because while for a long time I regarded candy as a rather dead sideline, I now look upon it as an established feature of my trade, and a regular fixture in stock."

This was the statement made this week by a local grocer who has given some study to practical methods of doing business, and who has established a name for his store and himself through the stock of candy which he carries and the way he features it. In addition to having a silent salesman to keep his better class of goods in, he has two glass shelves above the case suspended from the ceiling, on which he places his attractive lines of boxed candies and chocolates. Besides this, in order to withstand the losses incurred by customers 'nibbling' or picking at his goods, sampling them, as it were, he has placed a slanting glass sheet along the upper front edge of the showcase, sloping backward, and meting at the top with another glass strip not so wide. In speaking of this he said: "Some people might be inclined to stamp a man as being of a mean disposition because he took such precautions against persons sampling his goods, but it is no little amount that is lost in this way by customers while waiting for their orders testing the different lines of candies on your counter. It is not much in a day, but let me tell you it amounts up in a week."



Value of a Good Memory.

Perth, Ont., Sept. 14.—"A good memory is something to be desired by a man in business," says a local grocer, "and those who do not possess one should try to cultivate this important addition to a man's ability. Besides the many ways in which it is useful in keeping tab on prices, orders and business generally, a good memory for faces and names is of great value. How much better it is to be able to recognize a customer at once and call her by name, as the customer is naturally flattered by the fact that you remember her.

"Then there is another way in which a good memory is of value, and that is in remembering the class of goods that a customer uses. For instance, when one sends you an order, it is desirable that you know the kind and price of tea she uses or the brand of soap she likes, etc. In this way a merchant will escape many mistakes and a great deal of trouble with customers from this same cause."

Unusual Ad. on Envelopes.

Carlyle, Sask., Sept. 14.—J. J. Stevens of this town uses an advertisement on his envelopes that is certainly unusual. He mourns for those customers who have lost the opportunity of trading with him in the past. The advertisement he uses is produced below:

An Automobile Delivery in London.

London, Ont., Sept. 14.—(Special).—Cohoon & Patterson are the first grocers here to invest in an automobile delivery. They use it for taking meat orders and delivering hurry-up or long distance orders, and find it works splendidly. It covers a lot of ground in a remarkably short time.

It is a two-seated runabout with a box on behind which is removable, making it convenient to use for a pleasure car for evenings or Sundays. The driver who looked after the horses now runs the car.

Deliveryman as a Factor in Service.

Fort William, Ont., Sept. 14.—The store's responsibility does not end when the clerk has taken the order. There is another portion of the store's service that needs to be perfect. "The deliveryman," says a local grocer, "is an important factor in giving perfect service to the customers. We had an instance of this a short time ago. A new customer came in and gave an order. The taking and wrapping up of the order was well done by the clerk in charge. It would seem that the customer should be well pleased, and we were anxious to get her as a regular patron. However, we had neglected to consider the delivery end. The customer did not receive the goods at the time she wished. They had been delivered, but by some mistake to the wrong house. The result was that we made a bad start in our effort to secure this customer's trade simply because we had not reckoned on the important part that delivering takes in the service, good or bad, rendered by the store."

A Vinegar Display.

London, Ont., Sept. 7.—A seasonable display, and one suited to a small or medium sized window, is that which W. G. Elliott, manager of the T. A. Rowat grocery store at 250 Dundas street, has selling vinegar for him. Almost all the varieties of vinegar for sale in the store are represented by generous samples in large glass display jars such as druggists use. Two grades of cider vinegar, differing greatly in color, are shown, with XX and XXX White Wine, malt vinegar, special pickling and all the rest of them, each one priced and named on a neat card. Space about the feet of the glass receptacles is used for samples of bulk and package spices.

The display cost nothing but the work of cleaning up the glasses, and Mr. Elliott's time in arranging the window. Even the vinegar is just as drawn from the barrels, and its perfect clearness is a tribute to its quality.

"It is increasing our vinegar sales," is Mr. Elliott's opinion. "It appeals to people who always buy the best; of articles at two prices they take the higher-priced every time."

WHAT THE SALESMAN SHOULD KNOW.

That meat or butter should not be placed on the scales without paper.

That the lids on canisters should be closed down tightly each time after use.

Big Exposition Again Surpasses Itself

Canadian National Nearly Reached a Million in Attendance—Many Additions Contemplated for Next Year—Manufacturers Want More Space — National Scope of Exhibition Again Well Illustrated—Many Attractive Foodstuff Displays.

Staff Correspondence.

Toronto, Sept. 14.—With an increase of more than 87,000 over last year, and a total attendance of 926,500, the Canadian National Exhibition of 1911 has passed into history. These figures would have been greatly exceeded, had the weather been on its best behavior during the two weeks the exhibition was open. Next year there is every prospect of a larger attendance, and with satisfactory atmospheric conditions, the exposition of 1912 will more than reach the million mark—the heart's desire of the directors for so many years.

The Canadian National Exhibition is known all over the world; it is probably the greatest annual exhibition held anywhere.

Paved Streets Appreciated.

Many improvements have been made since 1910, among the most important of which were paved streets—a great convenience to the thousands who attended, and more particularly to those who were present on the two or three rainy days experienced. One of the important additions to the exhibition grounds' scenery was the Gooderham Fountain, standing among the Manufacturers', the Administration and the Horticultural Buildings. This was admired by all eyes. A large new building was also erected, known as the Manufacturers' Annex and the Women's Building. Of course, everyone knows that the location of the grounds is ideal, being pleasantly situated on one of the most beautiful sections of the northern shore of Lake Ontario.

Its National Scope.

Probably the greatest feature in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition is its national scope. This was particularly evidenced in the Manufacturers' and Industrial Buildings, where goods sold all over Canada were exhibited; and in the Horticultural and Railway Buildings where products from the farm and garden from every province of the Dominion were shown. British Columbia was there in miniature with its splendid display of fruit; Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, with their wheat and other grains; Ontario and Quebec, with the products of their farms gardens and mines, and the provinces down-by-the-Sea also sent their exhibits and people to complete the national importance of this great annual event. Public spirited citizens have good reason to be proud of the splendid culmination of the exhibition.

For next year, many improvements are already talked of. Manufacturers want more room and they will likely get it. With the expansion of the Exhibition more restaurants are needed; there should be more attention given to aquatic sports, and there will no doubt be more permanent pavements. A new police station, a new fire hall, and a building for provincial exhibits are being talked of, but probably the greatest change will be found in a new eastern entrance, with electric cars running into the grounds. The directors are working with a view to improving everything needed, and there is every reason to anticipate a great future for this exposition.

Products of West Indies.

The British West Indies were again represented, as usual, with two exhibits. One of these showed the products from the Islands, including St. Vincent, Jamaica, Antigua, etc., in charge of Mr. Pickford, of Pickford & Black, Halifax, N.S., and another, in charge of the British West India League, showed the products of the Bermudas. These exhibits were admired by thousands, and will do much to bring the West Indies into closer touch with the Dominion of Canada.

In the pages following will be noticed the exhibits of a number of important Canadian, British and United States manufacturers. These were arranged with great care and forethought, and should be given every possible attention by the retail grocer. In them he will find many points to assist him in arranging window displays, and in explaining the importance and quality of the goods to his customers. The retail dealer is a salesman who can create a demand himself, and the higher the point attained in salesmanship, the greater will be the profits from his business.

THE COWAN CO.

When the "Canadian Grocer" man was "doing" the Ex. he ran into a crowd in the Manufacturers' Building that threatened to crush out his young life—albeit in a friendly way. You who were there will remember the crowd—a happy smiling crowd, jostling each other this way and that to get the good things, the people were getting up in front.

Now the "Canadian Grocer" man had certain plans for the future, and other things that had to be attended to (we believe he had tickets for the grandstand). In any case he did not care to be snuffed out even in a friendly way, and then the stuff smelled good to him.

So he stayed.

While working his way up to the counter, he used his eyes and this thinker to this effect:—

Here was a Canadian cocoa and chocolate company—The Cowan Company—making new customers for grocers all over Canada. People were there getting a taste—a delicious taste—of pure cocoa. Some had never tasted a good cup of cocoa before—some used to drink it and had half forgotten how delicious it was. Some had the idea that it was just a cold weather drink and found it refreshing on the warmest days.

Back home they are going to buy some of Cowan's Cocoa.

The whole thing was in line with the Cowan advertising policy. The cards displayed in the booth were the very cards and hangers used in the stores of grocers all over Canada; the idea being to connect up the Exhibition advertising with that done in the stores where the goods are sold. And right here, we would advise you to have some of those cards hanging around. They will remind your customers of the delicious cup of cocoa served at the Ex. and will make sales for you.

In thousands of homes souvenirs of the Cowan exhibit are rejoicing the hearts of the younger generation. Cut-out animals bearing the Cowan advertisements were distributed in enormous quantities. The small Maple Bud stick-pin, which looks like a "sure enough" maple bud, was very much sought after, and we believe it will result in larger sales of that already strong seller—Maple Buds.

A good many people learned for the first time of the completeness of the Cowan line of Chocolate products. The exhibit served to connect up in a forceful manner, all their chocolate products. The company realizes that there are people buying Maple Buds who should use Cowan's Cocoa and that the same applies to the whole list of choice chocolate confections and icing powders. The high standard of all the Cowan products is calculated to make a permanent customer of every one who tries them.

For those who are not familiar with our Canadian manufacturers, we may say that the Cowan Company are the oldest and largest cocoa and chocolate manufacturers in Canada. Their ever-extending business is due to the high quality of their products—a quality maintained by the use of only the best cocoa beans and the most modern chocolate machinery.

The exhibit was in charge of Mr. C. Dimmock, to whose good judgment in effective stock arrangement its success was largely due.

SYMINGTON'S SOUPS.

One of the new exhibits at the National Exhibition this year which deeply interested the crowds of visitors was that of Symington's Soups in the Manufacturers' Building.

Symington's Soups are put up in concentrated form in nine different varieties. A package makes a full quart of delicious soup and the cost is only ten cents. Another point which especially appeals to the housewife and which is a strong talking point for the dealer is the fact that they are so easily prepared.

Grocers are beginning to realize that Symington's Soups are a good line for them to handle because they show a large margin of profit and invariably bring repeat business. Another point that will find favor with the grocer is that the goods are packed in tin lined cases, thus guaranteeing delivery to the dealer in the same condition as they leave the factory. Their packages are very attractive both in regard to color, design and size of package and these are all points which count in boosting its sale.

Messrs. W. Symington & Co., are an exceedingly progressive firm, and give special attention to all the points which go to make their lines a phenomenal success wherever they are introduced. The company are extensive advertisers, more especially in specific advertising, thus assuring to the dealers who will co-operate with them, a large sale. The firm are at all times ready to give special assistance in advertising to any merchant who will make a special feature of Symington's Soups.

At the National Exhibition this year their attractive booth was visited by large numbers. The manager stated that they had served 4,300 dishes of Symington's Soup to visitors, a surprisingly big percentage of whom left orders. They were impressed with the quality, the feature of the soups which brings return trade to the grocer.

Now is the time for every progressive grocer to start selling Symington's Soups. The season for soups is just starting. Whether you intend handling Symington's Soups or not, mail a post card to the agents, Frederick E. Robson & Co., 25 Front St. East, Toronto, and they will send you a 10c package free. You will be delighted with it—and so would your customers.

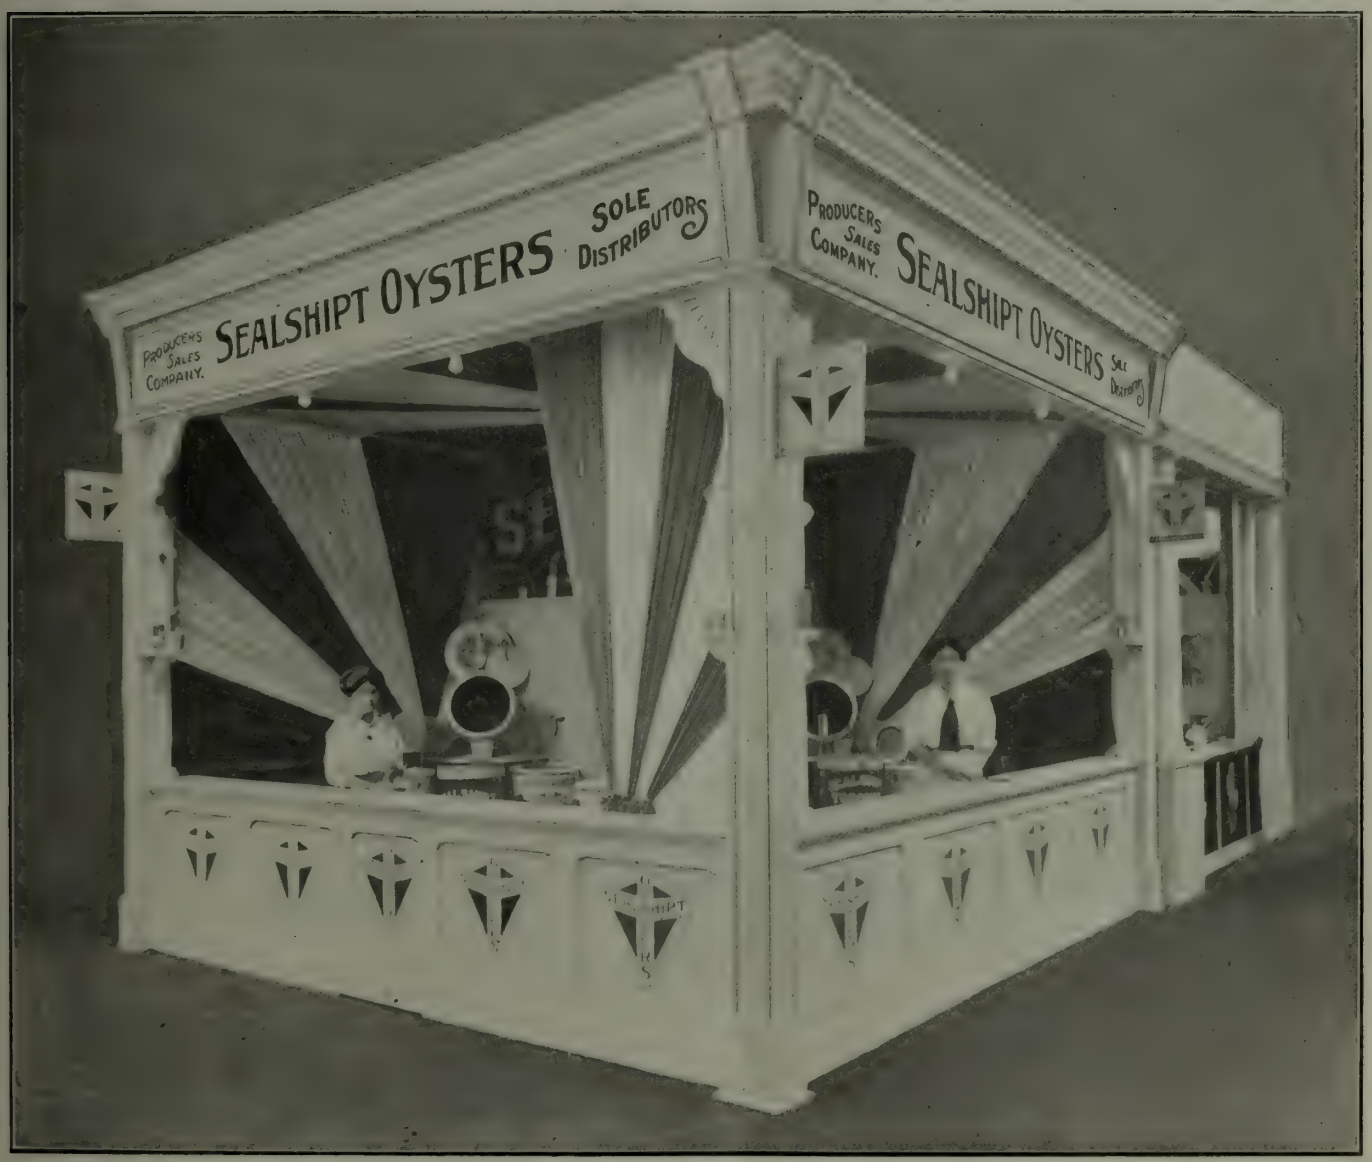
SEALSHIPT OYSTERS.



Months that have the letter "R" in their names, are, believers in signs will say, the proper months in which to eat oysters. But there are many oyster lovers who are anxious to eat this delicate food at other times, if they can get the right brand. This was clearly shown in the manufacturers' building, where was the display of the Sealshipt Oyster System.

patent sealing refrigerators, was given by those in charge.

But in a moment or two little could be said of this wonderful system which guarantees the oyster reaching the consumer absolutely unadulterated. Little could be said of the thirty thousand acres of producing Blue Point Oysters which have recently come into the possession of the Sealshipt System. That nearly the entire production and sale of shipt System guarantees the oyster's absolute purity. That educational work must be done by the dealer who handles the goods.

He should know something of the system which supplies affiliated packers with "sealshiptors" under conditions which compel them to follow the methods of the company which insure absolute cleanliness and freedom from adulteration or addition of water. He

From early morning until late at night men and women of all ages eagerly gathered here, and consumed with relish the oyster cocktails which were dispensed. To many the Sealshipt Oyster was an old friend, to some a new acquaintance, but one which will be cultivated.

There were oysters everywhere in the exhibit, and to the many who asked some explanation of the way in which this delicacy is secured, and shipped in Blue Point Oysters will be handled by the Sealshipt System could not be explained, nor could it be stated that the system controls the output of all the beds from Narragansett clear down to Chesapeake bay—one of the finest oyster beds in the world.

But least of all could the demonstration give the passing crowd more than an idea of the way in which the Seal-should know that the company has gone so far as to have the water in which its beds lie analyzed regularly, to prove its purity. He should know of the cleanliness of the packing plants, where the materials of a corrosive character are used.

The plants of the Sealshipt System are models of sanitary efficiency, and the many dealers who handle this line should bring the fact home to their customers.

GORMAN, ECKERT & CO.

Ten years ago the olive was practically unknown in Canada. To-day it is used in well nigh every place from coast to coast. But that people may still more come to realize its value, as a delicacy and a preventative medicine, Gorman, Eckert & Company devoted all their space in the manufacturers' building to display olives of various kinds, and olive oil.

Nothing could have been more tasty than that exhibit. On the walls hung pictures—pictures showing the olive as it grows about Seville in Spain, pictures showing men picking the crop and other men bottling and extracting the oil. On the floor stood three tall pyramids—olives, nothing but olives and olive oil. Then on the counter were more olives, and more bottles of the fine oil. The display fairly made one hungry.

It is the olive oil to which the company wished especially to draw attention. The Gorman, Eckert concern was the Canadian pioneer with the olive, and it now purposes to make olive oil as popular, and as increasingly popular, as it has made the original product. To do this the "Club House" brand has been placed upon the market, and was prominently displayed in the fair exhibit.

In the "Club House" brand of olives Gorman, Eckert use only the best selected Spanish product. As the people come to realize this the sales of the company become larger and larger. The same careful selection is made of the olives to be used for oil and from the time the fruit is gathered until it is finally ready for use under the "Club House" label, the utmost watchfulness and care is exercised that it shall retain its virgin purity and natural delicacy of flavor. Only first pressure oil is used in the "Club House" brand, and there lies the great difference between the products of Gorman, Eckert & Co., and many other brands, which are often second or third pressure, and are, in many cases, cheapened with other inferior oils which leave a greasy and unpalatable taste and give many a consumer a distaste for oil.

Not so the "Club House" brand. Being made from the first pressure it is light, natural, pure and tasty. It is of such oil that doctors speak when they urge its use as nature's great assistant in warding off disease, and as an invaluable article of diet during convalescence.

R. G. Bowie, who was in charge of the exhibit, and his assistants, were kept busy answering questions about olives. The ladies were especially interested in the display, and they eagerly took the little booklet called "Olive facts." This, as well as giving a brief history of the olive, and a summary of its food and medicinal values, contained a number of recipes, salads, tomato toast, stuffed eggs and other delicacies being described. In every case it was shown that olives or olive oil should be employed to ensure the finest flavor.

SALADA TEA.

The "SALADA" Tea Co.'s booth in the Manufacturers' Building proved to be one of the most attractive in the Exhibition. Designed and decorated in Eastern fashion, it presented a unique and unusual appearance, the Oriental effect being enhanced by imagines of the God Buddha and the Goddess Shiva which produced an effect which did not fail to arrest the attention of the passerby. In the centre of the booth a herd of fourteen ebony elephants ranging from a height of two inches to two feet, accurately showed the growth in the sales of "SALADA" Tea from 1892 to 1911.

It is questionable whether the record of "SALADA" Tea has ever been surpassed in any business. Founded in 1892 the company commenced business in Toronto, and in spite of strong opposition established itself firmly in the public confidence. By maintaining the splendid quality of the tea and by good management and salesmanship, it now does a business of twenty-five million packets per year.

The company offers "SALADA" Tea to the public in sealed lead packets only, thus assuring perfect freshness and freedom from dirt and dust or any other contamination.

The tea itself is grown in Ceylon and is cultivated with the greatest care and is not handled by human hands from the time it is plucked from the plant until it reaches the teapot. From Ceylon it is shipped in bulk to the company's packing plants in Toronto and Montreal where it is blended by tea experts and packed by machinery in the well-known lead packets bearing the "SALADA" name. It is then shipped all over Canada and the U.S., ultimately reaching thousands of families who are devotees of the "cup that cheers."

There were few visitors to the Exhibition who did not admire the "SALADA" display and many grocers were made welcome by the firm's representatives in charge.

TIGER HAND CLEANER EXHIBIT.

Needless to say no exhibit on the ground drew a larger crowd than did Tiger, the new domesticated hand cleaner. Fifty thousand samples were carried away by visitors to the Fair, from all parts of the Dominion.

In observing closely the merits of Tiger, as shown by a demonstrator, at the booth, men and women of all callings in life, went away simply astonished at what Tiger will do as a hand cleaner, when put to a severe test. Tiger is different to all other cleaners, from the fact that it is free from grit, and can be used with the same ease as the choicest toilet soap. It is this fact, coupled with its high standard of cleaning qualities, that makes Tiger most popular with the ladies, for removing fruit and kitchen stains, as well as drivers of autos., motor boats, mechanics, printers, painters, farmers, and in fact everybody engaged in daily toil. Tiger being a vegetable product, is perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin.

Tiger is made by a practical chemist of long experience, and while it was only put on the market at the beginning of this year, it is now being sold by the principal jobbers and retailers from coast to coast.

During Exhibition week orders were received for two carloads. One carload to go to the Lower Provinces, and the other to Winnipeg, for distribution in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Also a shipment for British Columbia, a hundred gross for Montreal, and other large orders for points in Ontario. Tiger being a thoroughly domesticated article with merit, and largely advertised, is fast gaining the popularity it deserves.

Tiger is also being demonstrated at London, Ottawa, Quebec, St. John, and Halifax Exhibitions. Tiger can be purchased from the jobbers or through the following brokers :—

WAGSTAFFE LIMITED.

Window dressers paused long before the exhibit of Wagstaffe, Limited, Hamilton, Ontario, and well they might, for this was undoubtedly one of the most attractive and tasteful displays in the Manufacturers' Building. The effect was secured with the company's output of jellies, jams and preserves. Nothing more was needed.

Other large glasses showed the high-grade fruit before being sent to the preserving room. There was the raw material and the finished product. It was a beautiful exhibit and attracted grocers as well as fruit lovers, and lovers of an artistic display.

Grocers who have a high class trade have to handle Wagstaffe's goods now. The people are demanding them. So at the Fair many dealers booked their orders for their fall supply.

at all are employed, only the best fruits and sugars.

While the company's exhibit could not show all the care taken in manufacture, the fine arrangement of the raw fruits and the finished product clearly suggested this. If dealers handling this line could arrange some such display in their stores they would get even greater results than in the past. Many people in every district want preserved fruits upon which they can absolutely rely. All

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—The attractive exhibit of Wagstaffe Limited.

Some time had been spent preparing that exhibit. The front of the booth was arranged like a display case in a high class grocery store; and there, behind the glass, were the jams, the preserves, the jellies, the ginger and the marmalade—big bottles and small bottles. There were huge glasses filled with preserved pears. It would seem almost sacrilage to eat those pears, they looked so artistic, yet it would be a great treat.

Purity is the company's motto. To attain this every care is taken. In the first place only the best fruits are used, the best cherries, the best peaches, pears and oranges. And from the time the fruit is once picked, until it reaches the consumer, it does not touch a human hand. All the work is done by sterilized and sanitary machinery.

But the company safeguards the purchasers of its goods in still another way. A chemist is employed who tests all the fruit secured, and only that which he adjudges fit is used in making the jams and preserves. No compounds that is needed for a grocer to secure their custom is for him to show that he handles high class Wagstaffe goods.

Among the preserves were shown samples of prepared mincemeat—mince meat full of promises of the coming Thanksgiving season. Anticipating the demand there will be for this many grocers calling at the exhibit gave large orders. The mince meat can be supplied in any quantities, but so much difficulty has been experienced this year in securing the proper quality of fruit that only those who place their order early will be able to be supplied with some lines.

HOLBROOKS LIMITED.

Fresh in the mind of every visitor to the Exhibition this year is the very striking and novel exhibit of Holbrooks Limited, in the Manufacturers' Building. This was one of the most unique exhibits which has yet appeared at our Toronto Exhibition for the purpose of displaying fancy groceries and did full justice to the splendid array of high grade products manufactured by this progressive and enterprising English house.

The appearance of the booth, which was built to represent an old English house, was in good keeping with the age of the firm which appeared above the front entrance (business founded 1798) and the names of the various cities where they have distributing branches, London, Eng., Toronto, Montreal, Chicago, Cape Town, Sydney, etc., gave one some idea of the world-wide distribution of their products.

Their leading line, Holbrooks Worcestershire Sauce, which is so extensively advertised and distributed in this country, was of course the main feature of their exhibit and reminded one of the slogan which they have adopted, "Imported Absolutely ! !" which has recently become the feature of all their advertising. This reminds us also that it was only a few weeks ago that Holbrooks Limited were commanded to supply their famous product to the English House of Lords and House of Commons, a signal honor coveted by all manufacturers and gained by few.

Among the other lines which were prominently displayed was their Punch Sauce, which is a delicious thick sweet sauce made from the finest spices and fruits and perfectly blended into a delicious relish.

Holbrooks Pickles, of course, also had a prominent place and were much admired. Pure Malt Vinegar, for which they claim to have the largest trade in the Dominion of Canada, Pure Olive Oil, Custard Powders, and the famous "Holbrook Brand" of sardines, which have been attracting so much favorable attention from the trade during the past year, were also prominently shown. We could keep on enumerating their various lines for Holbrooks Limited since they have been located in this country have not failed to keep abreast with the times and are continually putting new lines on the market.

CAVERHILL'S BARLEY FLAKES.

One of the new exhibits at the National Exhibition this year was that of Caverhill's Malted Barley Flakes, a new cereal that is bound to win its way to popularity, because it possessed those qualities that appeal to customers' palates.

For years, those engaged in the cereal business have been endeavoring to place barley upon the market in a palatable form, but it was for Mr. Caverhill to perfect a process of manufacture for this food. Barley stands high as a food because it contains a very high percentage of nutritive and tonic elements. This is the reason that millers were trying to give it to the public in a palatable form, and also the reason that will help, along with its splendid flavor, in making it "the food of the twentieth century."

Barley has long been used by the chemist in producing the many malt extracts that are so universally used for strengthening delicate people, while scores of the tonics in daily use have some portion of barley in their composition. Barley is characterized by its richness in mineral matter and stands at the head of the list of all other grains in this respect. These are all strong talking points in its favor that the grocer may make use of in pushing its sale.

Their booth in the Manufacturers' Building was particularly attractive and the excellent manner in which this line was demonstrated should be productive of good results. Tables were provided at which crowds of visitors were served daily with "Caverhill's Malted Barley Flakes." On the tables were samples of the raw materials, while heads of barley decorated the booth, thus all was in keeping with the line demonstrated.

Another feature of Barley Flakes which will assist in its sale is the easiness with which it can be cooked, ten minutes only being required. It is a pure cereal, no chemicals or sweetening agents being used; only the choicest barley, scientifically treated, enters into it.

Caverhill's Barley Flakes are put up in a very attractive package, which adds materially to their sale. It retails at 10 cents per package, and is also put up in six pound sacks which retail at 35 cents and in 15 pound sacks which retail at 75 cents.

The grocer would do well to stock this line, because it has so many points in its favor that its sale will no doubt increase immensely. That it is a nutritive food is a fact beyond all doubt. That it possesses a delicate and pleasing flavor, all those who have tried it will testify. It is put up in an attractive package, and shows the grocer a good margin of profit. These are all points which should cause the grocer to stock it.

Caverhill's Malted Barley Flakes may be secured from the wholesaler or from the manufacturers, The Brackman-Ker Milling Co., Calgary, Alta. The Toronto agents are Messrs. Frederick E. Robson & Co., 25 Front Street East.

IMPERIAL PRODUCTS.
"NOTHING BETTER."

These are the words which adorn the booth of the McLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Ltd., in the Manufacturers' Building at the Toronto Exhibition.

Experts say it pays to advertise. We agree with them, if the goods are of the same high standard as "IMPERIAL PRODUCTS." If not, it is money wasted, as the public are not to be misled with inferior goods, even if they are extensively advertised.

"IMPERIAL CHEESE" does not require advertising. It is known the world over, and as thousands remarked on sampling it "Oh, we always use Imperial Cheese;" this is sufficient guarantee as to its quality, but many remarked that they were not aware that the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. put up Canada Cream Cheese in Packets, Imperial Dessert Jelly, Imperial Peanut Butter, Imperial Prepared Mustard, and are also large packers of all kinds of olives.

The above comprise "IMPERIAL PRODUCTS," which the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. intend to become as popular as Imperial Cheese, and that is why they believe in advertising "IMPERIAL PRODUCTS" in every street-car in the Dominion, thereby creating a demand for these goods through the grocer. Even if only a portion of those who sampled "IMPERIAL PRODUCTS" act on the recipes which our lady demonstrators suggested to them, there should certainly be a great demand for MacLaren's Canada Cream Cheese, Imperial Peanut Butter, Imperial Dessert Jelly, Imperial Prepared Mustard and Imperial Olives from the retailers. And this we already feel assured of, on account of the number of orders taken by our demonstrators through the grocers for all parts of the Dominion and the U.S.A., which goes to show that the public require "IMPERIAL PRODUCTS."

If you are not handling them, ask our travelers to show them to you. It will pay you to stock goods with the same reputation as "IMPERIAL CHEESE."

MAPLE TREE PRODUCERS' ASSOCIATION.

An exhibit in the Industrial Building that aroused a great deal of interest, most especially of the grocers and merchants, was that of the Maple Tree Producers' Association, 58 Wellington St., Montreal, Que., a firm that has long stood as leaders of quality and purity in maple syrup and sugar.

The exhibit in itself was particularly attractive. Besides a neat display of the maple syrup, a painted background of a maple woods, showing the sap being gathered, was well in keeping with the line shown. This realistic scene appealed at once to the visitor and they were soon acquainted with "Pride of Canada" syrup, the product of this firm.

The fact that this company's work for over ten years, under the determined efforts of J. H. Grimm, president, has been the means of generally improving the quality of maple syrup and sugar in the producing districts has served to secure the confidence of both the jobbing and retail trade. This confidence has worked for a tremendous trade in their products during past years, for being absolutely pure and fully guaranteed, the grocer can confidently recommend them to his customers.

This year, with a shortage of general canned goods, there will be an even larger demand for maple syrup. The dealer, if he wishes for a continuance of trade in this line, must give his customers pure syrup and this he can be sure of when he buys it from the Maple Tree Producers' Association.

Maple syrup is something a dealer can use in making an attractive window display. If he follows the design shown in the accompanying illustration he can undoubtedly make many sales. The name "Pure Maple Syrup" goes a long way in selling this article, but when "Pride of Canada" is on the label it is much easier.

This brand comes from the Quebec forests—the finest in Canada—and bears a reputation of the highest character.

J. H. Grimm, who is president of this company, also occupies the same position in the Grimm Manufacturing Co., and to him much credit is due in the work of securing absolutely pure maple syrup and sugar.

H. P. SAUCE.

The Midland Vinegar Co., was again to the front at the Canadian National Exhibition, with their well-known products, H. P. Malt Vinegar, the celebrated H. P. Sauce, the latter taking premier place with the public, and H. P. Pickles.

The popularity and ever increasing demand attained by this product must be gratifying indeed to the manufacturers and agents. H.P. is quite a household word in Canada, and it is amusing to hear the various titles given to it by the public in their endeavor to solve the meaning of the two letters. This celebrated sauce is used continually on the dining tables of both the Canadian and British Houses of Parliament. Hence the title H.P. But it is not the name that has brought this sauce into favor with the consuming public. It is appetizing flavor, secured by proper blending, that has made it an article that once tasted is always used. It is a high-class sauce, possessing great digestive properties and the grocer can readily recommend it to his customers.

Comment is needless regarding the purity and mature age of the Midland Pure Malt Vinegar when you know that it is used in the manufacture of both the sauce and pickle. Purity and strength are two of the properties of this vinegar that should especially appeal to the grocer who sells it, as well as the customers who use it. This company are the largest brewers of English Malt Vinegar in the world. Over two million gallons of their vinegar is kept stored in Birmingham, and not a gallon leaves the factory until it is twelve months old. This insures a uniform quality, and adds a mellowness that is an essential of the best vinegar. One proof of the superiority of this vinegar is the fact that this company holds the contract for the British Admiralty, the allotting of which was based on analysis as to quality.

The H. P. Pickle, as all who have used it can testify, is a delicious and delightful appetizer. It is prepared from the choicest ingredients, blended in perfect manner with the celebrated H. P. Sauce.

The booth of the Midland Vinegar Co. at the Exhibition was a particularly attractive one, the three lines being shown up to good advantage. The different lines were demonstrated in an excellent manner, which should result in greatly increased demand for these lines throughout the Dominion. Thousands of visitors to the booth were served with the pickle and sauce, and all were most favorably impressed. Close on 30,000 sample bottles of H.P. sauce were distributed from the booth.

W. G. Patrick & Co., 77 York St., Toronto, are the Canadian agents of the Midland Vinegar Co. The exhibit at the Exhibition was in charge of Mr. Murray.

MENARD COMMERCIAL MOTOR CARS.

Service is one of the main features which determines a merchant's patronage with delivery the most important part. Merchants are more and more beginning to realize the many points in favor of automobile delivery because it brings them more business and because it is cheaper than any other method.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION—Auto Deliveries, shown by Menard Commercial Motor Car Co.

No matter whether for table use or pickling purposes the grocer can recommend this company's malt vinegar. In pickling, the purity of the vinegar is a prime essential, hence the desirability of stocking this line. H.P. Sauce has proven its merits to the grocery trade as a valuable article to carry, while H. P. Pickles have those qualities that quickly bring them into popularity.

At the National Exhibition was shown the celebrated Menard delivery car, manufactured at Windsor, Ont., and the interest being taken in this method of delivery was plainly evidenced by the crowds of merchants in all lines of business who made enquiries regarding it. More especially was this so because the Menard car has secured the reputation of being the best and most easily maintained commercial car that can be obtained.

This car shown with two different bodies in the accompanying photograph has been designed to meet the demand for a quiet running car of great reliability, reasonable speed, a large reserve of power and a frame of strength and size capable of carrying a load of considerable bulk and up to 1200 pounds weight. It is built with a small hard tire, removing the possibility of skidding and it has been proven that it can travel on roads over which the wider tire cars find it impossible to go.

One reason that has kept many merchants from investing in a delivery car is the cost of maintaining tires. In the Menard car this problem has been solved, for the expenses of tires is reduced to a nominal sum. It develops over 25 horse power, more than ample for all requirements and is of the four cylinder design. The floor level of the car is low in order to facilitate loading and unloading. These are all points which will impress upon the merchant the superiority of this car above all others.

The dimensions of the covered delivery car is 68 inches long inside behind seat, 41½ wide and 52 high. The open car is 68 inches long from back of seat by 41 wide. This gives plenty of room for to care for any merchant's delivery. Special bodies to meet special requirements can be secured. The open car is sold at $1,300 and the closed one at $1,350, and points regarding the Menard car that merchants should at once write to the Menard Motor Car Co., Windsor, Ont., about it. Agents for this car are wanted in every town.

BORDEN'S CONDENSED MILK.

One of the problems with which the housewife has had to contend for many years is the purity of the family milk supply. However, many have solved the problem by using Borden's Condensed Milk, the standard of purity, and the superiority of which is recognized throughout the length and breadth of the land by both grocer and consumer.

Borden's Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, the leader of quality has no equal for purity, richness and flavor. If there is a dealer any place in the Dominion who is not selling this brand of condensed milk, he is certainly losing a great deal of custom that would otherwise be his. The warnings that have been issued against the indiscriminate use of dairy milk has served to turn the attention of the public to the canned article and the public was not long in finding out the every point upon which it could be one that towered above all others in judged. Borden's was found to be the best and it is for this reason that once used it is always asked for.

As a result of its excellent flavor, unequalled richness and guaranteed purity, when a merchant considers the saving in delivery expenses and the extra amount of trade secured through better delivery, he will most certainly agree that it is a good investment.

There are so many points in favor of automobile delivery and so many good the increase in the sales of this line in the past few years has been enormous. The repeat orders which are secured only by an article of the best quality have been one of the chief means of securing the present wide distribution of this article. Another point which should favorably impress the grocer is that it is an assured fact the demand will continue to develop more and more for this unexcelled condensed milk.

Borden's Eagle Brand condensed milk along with Challenge and Gold Seal, the two other brands handled by this firm were displayed in an attractive manner at the National Exhibition again this year. Their booth showing as it did in such an impressive manner the different products of the company was visited daily by immense crowds of visitors who were served with a cup of coffee and condensed milk. The general use which can be made of this milk was impressed upon the visitor as well as the fact that it has been recommended by prominent physicians as an ideal infant food.

Borden's Peerless Evaporated Milk, manufactured by this firm, was also demonstrated to the myriad of visitors. This article is simply the pure fresh milk as received from the cow, evaporated and without anything whatever added and possesses, as all those who have used it know, all the advantages of fresh fluid milk but none of its disadvantages. It is pure, rich dairy milk, gathered in a sanitary method and evaporated to a creamy consistency by Borden's superior process. It is altogether unsweetened and is preserved by sterilization only. It can be put to all the uses of fluid milk when diluted as required and another fact that has done much toward its immense sale is the fact that it is the only tinned milk that can be whipped and used for all the purposes of ordinary cream.

Borden's products are acknowledged on every hand to be the highest standard available, and to the dealer who handles them there are so many exceedingly strong points with which to impress customers that his sales in these lines should be large. The universal use of these lines is a point of special stress, demonstrating beyond all doubt their superior qualities. That they are pure is sure. That they are unequalled for richness, flavor and general use is a well known fact.

Cleanliness is the key note in the manufacture of Borden's products, not alone in their factory but from the moment it leaves the cow. Every batch of milk is carefully examined by fully qualified inspectors as it enters the factory and after inspection it is not touched by the human hand until the can is opened by the purchaser.

Thus the grocer can recommend Borden's products on the two strong points of quality and purity. Their reputation and the present large distribution have been founded on merits; their quality is undisputed and the grocer can stock these lines, knowing that he is giving his customers the best that can be obtained.

The Borden booth at the exhibition was in charge of Jos. Irving, special salesman for the Borden products in Canada. Wm. H. Dunn, 27 Front St. East, Toronto, is the general sales agent for the company.

HUYLER'S CHOCOLATES.

Every grocer recognizes the fact that if he wishes to build up a trade in confectionery he must give his customers the highest quality goods. This he is assured of if he handles "Huyler's" for that name stands for perfection in this line. "Huyler's" candies, cocoa and chocolate are preferred by connoisseurs the world over for purity, quality and flavor.

At the National Exhibition this year the company had an attractive exhibit of their different lines in the Manufacturers' Building. One feature of the exhibit was the word "Huyler's" shown by an electric device and undoubtedly scores of new customers were made for this line.

Truly it can be said that "a man is known by the candy he sends" and just as truly that the grocer can recommend "Huyler's," knowing that he is giving his customers the best obtainable. Huyler's cocoa is also becoming well-known throughout the Dominion because it has that excellent flavor that appeals to the customer's taste.

"Huyler's" goods for Canada are manufactured in their establishment on Yonge St., Toronto, where is also situated their Canadian headquarters and where they have one of their finest retail stores. Every grocer should handle "Huyler's."

MELAGAMA TEA AND COFFEE.

Minto Bros., of Toronto, had their usual attractive exhibit of Melagama tea and coffee in the Manufacturers' Building this year and many more customers for these well-known beverages were added to the already large number of users.

Melagama tea and coffee is already stocked by all the leading grocers throughout the Dominion and its sale is increasing by leaps and bounds. There must certainly be some reason for this immense development, and it is found in the fact that this tea possesses all those qualities that bring a tea into favor with the consuming public.

Melagama tea is now so well and favorably known among housewives everywhere that it is scarcely necessary to dwell upon the delectable flavor and exquisite aroma possessed by these popular brands, unless it is to add that grocers in every section of the Dominion are more and more coming to recognize this fact, and are recommending it to their customers.

Melagama tea and coffee are put up in attractive packages and this is a point that the grocer should remember, for the appearance of a package has a great deal to do with its sale.. These brands are also extensively advertised to the consuming public which assists wonderfully in introducing them to customers. This firm is also doing their utmost to co-operate with the retailer, so that his sales may be substantial, as well as a fair profit derived.

The display at the Canadian National Exhibition was visited by large numbers of grocers who were courteously received. The large number of dealers who are already handling these lines are all well pleased with results and every dealer who wishes to hold the coffee and tea trade of his customers should stock these lines.

As an evidence of the high quality of Melagama tea and coffee, Minto Bros. received the highest medal at the Quebec Exhibition this year for their demonstration. Among the visitors served at this Exhibition were Earl and Lady Grey, who were so pleased with Melagama tea that they purchased a substantial quantity before leaving Quebec.

Minto Bros. are situated at 45 Front St. East, Toronto.

THE NUGGET POLISHES.

Nugget Polishes, celebrated for their waterproof qualities, were exhibited with splendid effect in the Process Building at the Canadian National Exhibition. The booth itself attractively exhibited the polishes, while the demonstration was carried on so well that it attracted a continuous crowd of interested visitors.

The demonstration was carried on in such a manner as to prove beyond all doubt that Nugget polish is absolutely waterproof. This was accomplished by polishing a shoe until the shine showed the splendid qualities of the polish, and then dipping in a basin of water. When the water was wiped off with a cloth, the shine still remained. The cloth itself showed no signs of blacking so that the polishes do no harm to clothing.

"If the tongues of these shoes could speak they would say 'Nugget for mine,'" read one show card, which is no doubt true. Nugget polishes are extensively advertised and are known the world over. Their commendable qualities bring returned trade to every grocer who handles them.

Another important feature of Nugget polishes is that they are frost proof and besides will not dry out when in stock. The company sell Nugget Black, Tan and White Polishes, Creams, Harness Polish and Nugget Furniture Paste, all of which allow the dealer an attractive basis of profit.

The booth was in charge of W. F. McNeil, manager, and L. R. Howard.

PUTZ CREAM METAL POLISH.

"Putz Cream Metal Polish will demonstrate its own worth." So the American Metal Polish Company, of West Somerville, Mass., declares in its circulars, and at its fine exhibit in the Process Building it backed up the declaration by giving away samples of this Cream, and also of Silver Putz, the famous silver polish. Both men and women crowded about the booth; some to tell Mr. B. A. Burke, who has traveled for the company during the past fifteen years, that they had tried and proved the goods; others to get the samples that they might see the effect the use of them would have upon thie silver and their brass.

Putz Cream makes any metal look like new. It gives a quick, lasting polish, and is free from acid, so that its use has no injurious effect upon auto or harness trimmings, or upon household brasses. Like Putz Cream, Silver Putz has been steadily growing in favor. Small wonder, for by simply rubbing it on and off silver regains its original bright, lustrous appearance. Silver Putz is the same this year as ever, coming with the same guarantee of purity, and still being put up in the same attractive form.

The interest in this exhibit—people continually crowded about it—explained the large and high class trade which the American Metal Polish Company has built up.

RED ROSE TEA.

The thousands who annually attend the Canadian National Exhibition are becoming better acquainted each year with the unique method originated by the Red Rose Tea Company, in the operation of their exhibit. This booth was again the most talked-of in the Manufacturers' Building. The tea room was, as usual, attractive, and the numbers who visited it were greater than ever; every day saw crowds of people waiting their turn to sample the delicious tea so daintily served. The fact that there was in evidence a better class of people visiting this exhibit, bears ample testimony to the importance of Red Rose Tea and its popularity among the Canadian people.

Each day some of the travelers were in attendance to welcome grocers and their friends, and the booth itself was, as usual, most inviting. The snowy linen, fine china and attentive, courteous young ladies, each wearing a red rose, with the most careful attention given to detail in every particular, made it especially attractive.

The method used in serving sample cups to Exhibition visitors is undoubtedly to be commended from the Canadian retail dealers' standpoint, as it insures them the sales of many thousand pounds of Red Rose.

As last year, 5 cents was charged for a cup of tea, which was given back to the visitor as a ticket, good for 5 cents anywhere when buying a package of Red Rose. The grocer who gets these tickets has them redeemed for 5 cents each by the company. The value of this advertising to the retail dealer is apparent, since his demand for Red Rose Tea is greatly increased at no expense or trouble to himself or to his customers.

The quality of Red Rose Tea is unsurpassed and the high standard set for it has won it favor from one end of Canada to the other, and at the same time has gained for Mr. Estabrooks an enviable position in the tea trade of the Dominion, as well as the confidence and respect of his thousands of customers —the retailers of Canada.

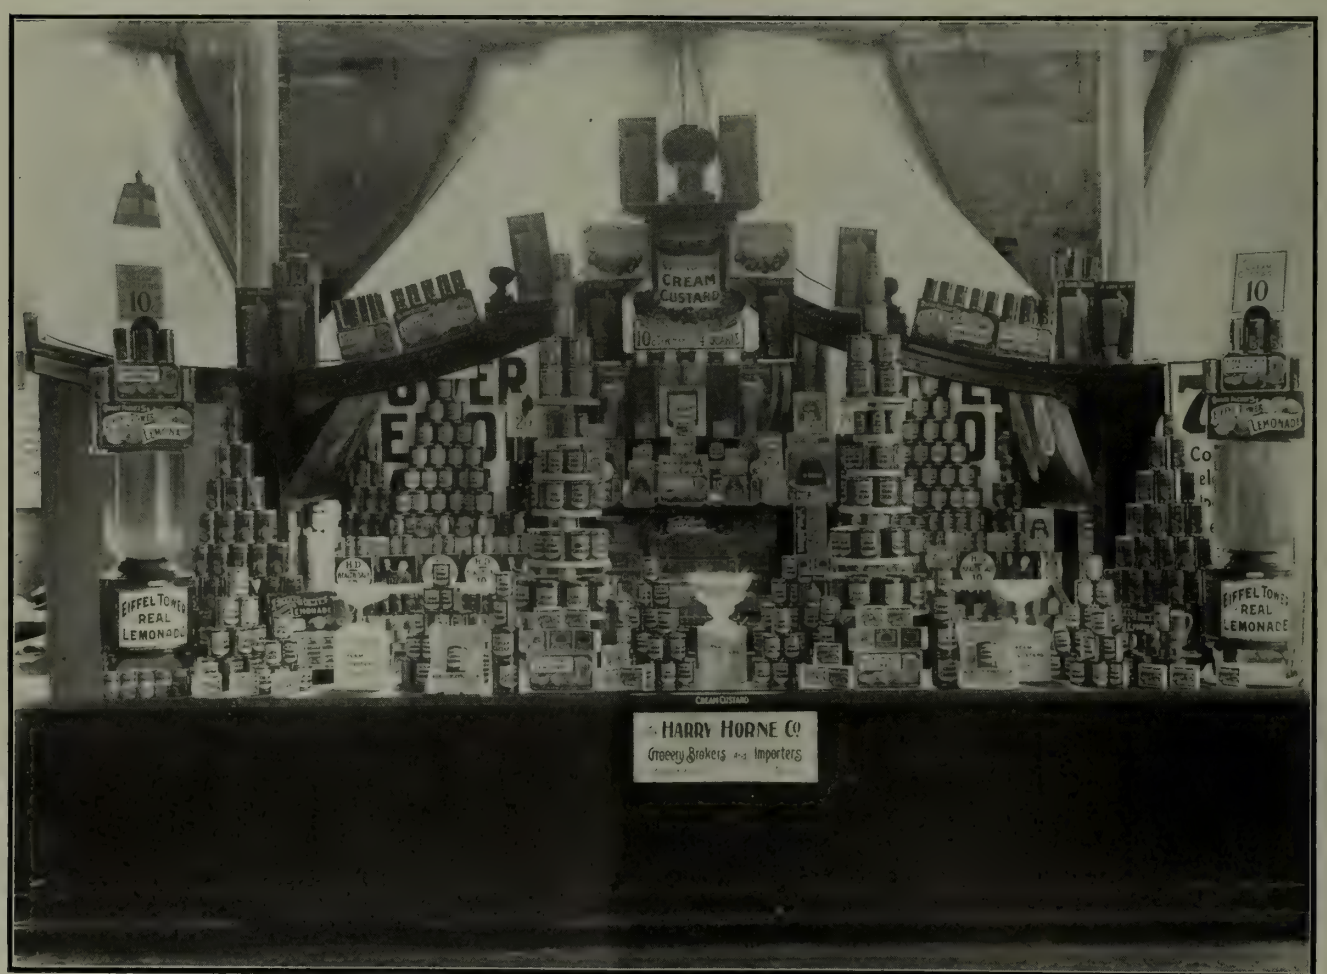
CLARK'S CREAM CUSTARD AND EIFFEL TOWER LEMONADE.

The Harry Horne Co., grocery brokers, of Toronto, conducted a very interesting demonstration of Foster Clark's Cream Custard and the Eiffel Tower Lemonade and Specialties. They demonstrated, too, and attracted a very large crowd from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. for twelve successive days, and thoroughly explained to the consuming public from all parts of Canada and the United States the merits and superior qualities of the Foster Clark Cream Custard and Eiffel Tower Specialties.

Every woman who tasted the cream custard was so highly pleased with it, that she declared she would insist upon her grocer supplying her with it in preference to anything else. The Cream Custard is certainly a very dainty and economical desert, and when you consider that a 10c tin makes four quarts of Cream Custard, a 15c tin makes 7 quarts, and a 25c tin makes 12 quarts, by simply adding milk and sugar in addition to the Cream Powder and can be made ready to serve in ten minutes, there is no possible wonder that every woman considered it the most convenient and daintiest desert that has ever been offered to the consuming public. Ten thousand neat, attractive, cream custard display advertisements were distributed.



The Eiffel Tower Lemonade, which is known in all parts of the world for its purity and superior quality, was greatly appreciated by the many thousands of people who visited the booth at the Exhibition.

Among the other exhibits this year of interest to the grocery trade and which attracted crowds were the following:—Brand & Co., London, Eng.; Boeckh Bros., Toronto; S. F. Bowser & Co., Toronto; The Computing Scale Co., of Canada, Toronto; Canadian Shredded Wheat Co., Niagara Falls, Ont.; Corneille, David & Co., London, Eng.; Christie, Brown & Co., Ltd, Toronto; Chisholm Milling Co., Toronto; Canadian Tungsten Lamp Co., Hamilton, Ont.; Eureka Refrigerator Co., Toronto; W. KELLOGG'S TOASTED CORN FLAKES.

One of the best selling articles in the Canadian grocery store of to-day is Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes. The great reason is because they bring more satisfactory results to the dealer than almost any other article he carries.

This year, again, Kellogg's had a very attractive display at the Canadian National Exhibition. The demonstrations which were daily held attracted thousands, who once more had the privilege of tasting this greatest of all breakfast foods. The company, from its establishment recognized that the grocer would be in a large measure responsible for the total number of sales. The confidence of the retail trade was won by the square deal policy which was extended to it. Retailers were quickly impressed with the fact that they were securing a good profit by handling Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes, and with the company's policy in adopting such measures as would insure protection to the small grocer throughout the country.

The small retailer is treated in the same business-like, and courteous manner as the larger. They both purchase through recognized jobbers, and there is no quantity price to worry the smaller man.

The modern and progressive methods adopted by this company were brought to the Exhibition, where it was emphasized to the consuming public that Kellogg's Toasted Corn Flakes bore the particular merits and good qualities which had made them a household word in practically every home in the Dominion.

Among the slogans that were seen about the booth were, "Sweetheart of the Corn;" "Won Its Favor Through Its Flavor;" and "The Largest Sale of Any Cereal in the World." These attracted a great deal of attention and impressed the thousands who saw the exhibit during the two weeks of the Exhibition.

With each case of Corn Flakes the grocer receives a coupon which he may redeem at the end of the year, thus securing a substantial rebate. The company is always willing to send to any grocer material for a window display, and will welcome any inquiries. T. M. Sibbald, 20½ Front St. East, is the Toronto agent, and was in charge of the exhibit.

THE STIMPSON COMPUTING SCALE CO.

Every grocer is, or at least should be, acquainted with the superiority of the computing scale over the ordinary kind, and merchants in every portion of the country are fast realizing that when it comes to computing scales, that the Stimpson towers far above all others on every point on which a scale should be judged.

At the National Exhibition this year the Stimpson Computing Scale Company had an attractive booth in the Industrial Building, where the good points were plainly demonstrated to hundreds of visiting grocers and a great many orders secured.

CANADIAN NATIONAL EXHIBITION —Display of Stimpson computing scales

Thousands of merchants are already using the Stimpson scales, and their words of praise demonstrate beyond all doubt the value of this scale to the merchant. An important question for every merchant is :—"Do you give overweight?" A fact that should most especially impress the grocer is that overweight cannot be given on a Stimpson Automatic Scale.

This company manufacture the only automatic counter scale with 100 lbs. capacity and it is this scale of which they are making a specialty and which is meeting with a most favorable reception from merchants in all lines of business. A feature of this scale is that the computing chart is located always directly in front of the user so there is no chance of mistake in computing as on some styles of chart scales. This is a feature every merchant should consider in buying a computing scale. The Stimpson is fully guaranteed and complies in every particular with the Weights and Measures Laws of the Dominion.

There are many reasons why the merchant should use only the Stimpson scale. They prevent overweight, allow quick weighing, and are a money saver which should especially appeal to the grocer. Money invested in a Stimpson scale returns a most handsome dividend to the user. Every grocer should write at once for full particulars.

A. L. Dent, Woodstock, Ont., is the general sales manager for Ontario. The head office is at Detroit, Mich.

A MERCHANT'S REMARKABLE STATEMENT.

Example II: Cost 15c; divide by 2 and you have 7½c; add 7½ to 15 and you have selling price 22½c, which shows you gross margin of 33 1-3% of selling price. Example III: Cost 30c; divide by 3, giving 10; add 10 to 30 and you have 40c, showing you gross margin of 25% on your selling price.

A Puzzle for Many.

It is not so difficult for most of us to learn and then fully grasp the truths that 1-5 of our cost is 1-6 of our selling price; that is that 20% of our cost is 16 2-3% of our selling price. Also that ¼ of our cost is 20%—1-5—of our selling price; 1-3 cost is ¼ of selling price, etc. But what puzzles most of us is the fact that we may more than double our cost without making 100%.

Example: Cost 15; selling price 45; margin 66 2-3%. Why? Because 2-3 of what we receive is margin; and 2-3 of anything is 66 2-3 of that thing. This shows one good reason why we must always apply 100% to the total amount for which any article is SOLD. In this case, your expenses of all kinds will be figured against the 45—not the 15; hence, your margin must be computed on the 45, not on the 15.

The Danger of Straddling.

You cannot stand with one foot on the pier and the other in the boat without danger of being "spilled into the drink." In other words, straddling is dangerous; and computing margins on cost while figuring expenses on sales is straddling two problems.

The more you think of all this the simpler, more reasonable, more logical and more obvious it will become; and soon it will become mechanical to you—a sort of "unconscious cerebration." Work at it until it becomes an instinct to figure always on the selling price and you will avoid the most dangerous pitfall on your mercantile journey.

But work it all on Mr. Blain's Rule, making sure as you go on, by proving and re-checking your figures; and you will become so expert after a short time that you will not have to "figger" at all, but will read the solution of most of your problems as soon as you see them.

Over 10,000 paper butterflies were seen, pinned onto the visitors at the Canadian National Exhibition. They were worded thus: "Fussell's Pure Rich Thick Cream, Golden Butterfly Brand." Mr. Reader,—Ask your grocery traveler what is Fussell's Pure Rich Thick Cream.—Advt.

Montreal, Sept. 14.—The same note of satisfaction is heard among the trade. Business is good, collections are causing no complaint, the fall season shows an improvement over the summer trade, prosperity is smiling upon the country, and why should the grocer go out of his way for imaginings?

In the general situation this is about the way the jobbers sum up the present conditions which during the past few weeks have not been changing to any marked degree. With sugar on a rampage, even the consumer has heard about the high prices they will have to pay for some time unless the predictions of those who follow the market come to naught. But it is safe to say that there are few consumers throughout the country who know exactly why prices have advanced. In fact a prominent retail grocer told a newspaper representative that he had not been following the market closely, but if others had advanced prices he would have to follow suit. When prices go up, the retailer generally gets the entire blame. The consumer does not look past the counter to see what the producer has had to do with the goods and the grocer is put down as the responsible party. Hence it was with a feeling of gratification that one read an explanation of the rise in sugar as given by another retailer who had followed the markets.

Sugar.—What can be said of sugar? Granulated in bags is now $5.85, with the conditions that have caused the recent advances still unchanged. The situation is tense, and there is just as much likelihood that recent advances will be duplicated as not. They may not come, but on the other hand they may. Just what will happen is a knowledge that would be well worth possessing, as it would have been six weeks past. "With the European beet crop almost a failure, with a poor Cuban crop, a fair West Indies and with the United States beet crop only ordinary, speculators cornered the market at a time when the demand is heavier than any other season," said one jobber, and it will be six months before any appreciable relief can be expected. "I look for higher prices than even those quoted to-day," he said, and further intimated that he could see nothing that suggested a weakening of the present situation.

The sugar market has certainly surprised the trade. Not only are retailers lamenting the fact that they did not stock up six weeks ago but brokers, jobbers and others have the same disappointment. Of course such a state of affairs was unexpected for the continent seemed to promise a good beet crop. The first advances were regarded, generally, without much suspicion.

Willett & Gray recently stated that from a New York standpoint present prices were exceeded in 1889 when granulated was quoted at $9 net cash. This covers a period of twenty-two years.

Molasses.—In sympathy with the sugar market it would be expected that molasses would be firm. There has been no actual advance, although jobbers and others claim that prices should be higher, and that it might not be long before they would be higher. These are simply opinions of others that are in the business. Molasses is not as easily handled as sugar and there is no speculation behind it just now. If one house advanced their prices the others might not follow, but if speculators get it on the present ground and "start something" then holders of molasses will of course naturally follow. It has been said that the best grades of molasses should be quoted higher than they are. Whether there will be any changes remains to be seen. It is not likely that a reduction will be made and under the circumstances it might be well to cover requirements at the present figures. The demand for corn syrup is steady and prices remain unchanged.

Dried Fruits.—The first fruit steamer leaving Denia, Spain, with goods for the Canadian trade, is about due to cast her moorings on the 15th of this month, and to arrive here about the middle of October. There may be some fruit brought in specially by a more rapid route but it will only be in limited quantities. There is nothing particularly new in this market.

The currant crop will not come up to expectations. It is now stated that about 100,000 tons are all that is likely to be forthcoming which is practically the world's yearly consumption. Definite information from Greece has been meagre of late. The market is said to show an upward tendency due partly to unfavorable drying conditions. Local buyers appear to be temporarily supplied with dried fruits.

Rice.—Following the advance quoted just a week ago, rice was again advanced 25 cents per cwt. this week.

Reports seem to be well established that the drouth in India has been so widespread that the government has to buy rice for its own people. This refers to the districts where the trouble has been the worst. The recent floods in China, covering a large area, likewise enter the proposition, but it is not known what has been the real extent, if any, of the losses. Everyone refers to the strength of the market, some say that rice is a good "buy" and that prices are going higher, but the latter is a question that the individual must decide for himself. As one man remarked it largely depends upon the supplies at the mills. If the conditions in the rice producing countries become more acute further developments are practically certain.

Canned Goods.

Toronto.—No particularly new features have developed in the canned goods situation. Some new pack tomatoes and corn are now on the market, with quotations unchanged. Canners are now busy with tomatoes and it is expected that prices on these and other late fruits and vegetables will be named towards the end of the month. From all appearances the pack of late fruits will be considerable. Canners have sent out notice that they will deliver 75 per cent. of beans made up of 53 per cent. of wax and 22 per cent. of refugees.

Recent reports from Norway regarding sardines say that the fish this year are large but of good quality. It is probable that the new catch coming into Canada will run 16 to 20 to the can. The run so far has been fairly good, but the fishing will not be completed for about six weeks. Indications are, however, that there will not be the same dearth of fish as last year. Prices, however, are bound to be high, and indeed one firm quotes prices nearly 10 per cent. higher than last year. The main reason for this is the prevailing high price for olive oil in which the foreign sardines are packed as well as the somewhat higher price of tin plate.

Montreal.—There is nothing particularly new in canned goods to report. Spot tomatoes sell from about $1.50 to $1.60, and $1.75 has been named. The bulk of the goods have been imported so it is said, and jobbers are looking for early shipments of the new pack to meet the spot demand.

In regard to tomatoes and corn there is no new feature. The general opinion is that if no damage is done by frost there should be a fairly large pack. As to the probability of prices, different views are held and the trade will simply have to wait until the canners have an idea of the full extent of their pack. In regard to the late fruits it seems evident that the pack will be satisfactory judging from the reports that have been received here. Spot canned goods are all held firmly.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Sugar—Up 20c, now $5.95.

Rice—Up 25c cwt.

Barley—Stronger.

Toronto, Sept. 14.—Present trade as well as business prospects continue favorable and with fair collections now generally reported there should be no complaints from wholesalers.

The feature of groceries at the present time is the strength displayed by numerous lines. None seem to be headed downward, but many have a decided tendency to move in the opposite direction. Most noticeable in this regard are sugar and rice, phenomenal advances having taken place in both, while in canned goods, dried fruits, tea, coffee and other staples there are certainly no signs of weakness.

With the last advance, sugar is higher than it has been in 22 years. With a plenitude of late fruits, there is a big consumption of sugar for preserving purposes. Lines kindred to sugar maintain a firmness, which in some cases is marked.

As pointed out by one wholesaler with higher prices in many lines, it will require a larger capital to transact business. On the other hand this will be counterbalanced more or less by the good business conditions now existing which will work for a quicker turnover.

Both pot and pearl barley have a higher tendency, millers having advanced prices to wholesalers.

As predicted in these columns a couple of weeks ago, condensed milk has been advanced in price. The consumption of condensed as well as evaporated milk is large and is steadily on the increase.

Sugar.—Sugar is certainly "sugar" just at the present time. A further advance of 20 cents on Friday last brought local quotations up to $5.95, the highest since 1889. The market is still strong and further advances would not be a surprise. Opinions regarding how high the market will go are many and varied. The market is problematic. Prices may ascend still further or they may not. Just at the moment the market seems to be completely in control of the speculators and the question is how high can they put it. While many dealers believe there is no apparent relief at least until the Cuban crop comes forward in January, others believe that there are dangerous spots which are apt to scarce speculators into selling and bringing a reaction. Among things that might induce nervousness is the approach of the quiet sugar season, the American beet crop, the Louisiana cane crop and the fact that Russia may be allowed to export her surplus supply of sugar. However, the market on the surface is strong, with the future alone holding the solution of the outcome of the present phenomenal high range of prices.

Dried Fruits.—The general tone of new crop dried fruits is one of steadiness. Valencia raisins are higher while currants are unchanged but firmly held. Sultana raisins are also strong. In California fruits the only lines which show any signs of weakening are apricots and peaches, which opened extra high.

Tea.—Primary markets all maintain a steady tone with prices locally showing a similar tendency, and with considerable business being done at ruling prices. The shortage of two millions and a half compared with last year in the July shipments from Ceylon to the United Kingdom, makes over three million shortage from the first of January. The stock of Ceylon tea in London is four millions and a half less than this time last year. Shipments to Australia are about one million and a half short compared with last year. The estimated shortage in exports to the United Kingdom for August is nearly one million. In the face of these figures, indications are for at least a continuance of the present steadiness.

Coffee.—The tone of the market has been somewhat steadier of late due to advances in coffee options. Trade continues satisfactory in volume.

Rice and Tapioca.—When we reported the advance in rice last week, we noted that the market was still strong. This week 25 cents more has been added to prices, a total advance of 50 cents per cwt., since the upward movement began. Adverse reports from the raw markets have been responsible. The drought in India with the consequent failure of the crop, combined with floods in Korea and China, has resulted in much higher raw markets with sellers in many cases having withdrawn. Even with the late advance the market is strong.

Beans—Advanced 20c.

Winnipeg, Sept. 14.—Business in all lines continues to be extremely active and the harvesting of the new crop has brought about an appreciable increase in the sales, for which cash payments are being made by many of the country merchants. Fall notes are beginning to fall due and it is expected that the majority of these will be met with considerable ease. Very few failures, if any at all, are looked for, as in spite of the cold and wet weather that has been prevailing, harvesting has been going on apace. It is now realized that the early crops will all grade high, but the later sown crops will invariably show the effects of being caught by frost. Cold weather prevailed last week, and it is expected that several of the late fields will be damaged badly.

As stated above, however, in spite of this, the trade shows no falling off, but the reverse and larger expectations are looked for. The West while busy discussing Reciprocity, is still aware of the fact that it is more important to harvest its crop before bothering its head about politics.

Sugar continues on its upward flight this week, and great consternation was caused when reports from the South indicated that the market had advanced another 20c.

Other lines are just as strong, Salmon, presenting perhaps the next greatest feature of the week's trade. The catch in British Columbia this year was disappointing particularly in Sockeyes. Other grades are scarce, and it is expected that higher prices will be prevailing before long.

The coffee market has been advancing steadily, and it looks as if there would be no more cheap coffee for at least another year. Reports from California also indicate that the dried fruit situation is just as tense, and that those who desire these luxuries this winter will have to pay high prices. Beans are also moving upwards, and an advance of 20c per bushel is reported.

Sugar.—As stated above, sugar continued skywards by advancing 20c. This line has been advancing steadily during the past month; the cause is attributed to short crops in the countries which form the source of supply. Trade in sugar on the local market has been brisk, and wholesalers claim that it has been hard to keep up stocks on account of the increased demand, as many retail merchants have been stocking heavily on the chance of further advances. Those who have done this have certainly reaped a reward and some jobbers who were very heavily stocked at the beginning of the season have added materially to their holdings. New prices are as follows:

Dried Fruits.—The dried fruit market is soaring and at the present time lists are being quoted on futures. Prunes are reported to be firm but pretty high. Apricots which have been quoted at prices above the reach of the trade, show a weakening tendency on California markets as wholesalers and jobbers refused to buy. No local prices have been quoted as yet and no orders have been placed. Valencia raisins are strong and new prices are quoted below:

Evaporated Apples.—This line is going to run high this winter on account of drought in Ontario. Prices quoted at the present time are 12¼c per lb. on new stock. Quotations at this time last year were out at 6½c. Prices prevailing at the end of the season on the bare market this spring were around 19c. From these figures a relative idea of the situation can be gained. At the beginning of this season new stocks are quoted at almost double the price of last year, and only 6¾c per lb. below the record price established last year. That prices will go higher there is little doubt as it is a question already of getting supplies. A new record might even be established this year.

Salmon.—As stated above the run was very disappointing and very small catches of high grade have been secured. At the present time 25 per cent. of the orders being received are for Sockeys. Pinks are light and are expected to show some advance before long. Prices will be noted as below:

Sockeyes, clover leaf brand, tall, 48 x 1s, per case	9 35

Beans and Peas.—A strenuous race appears to be in existence between beans and sugar as to which will make the greatest advance this season. This line followed the advance in sugar by going up 20c per bushel, and wholesalers state that they expect to see higher prices on account of the conditions in the east.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Sept. 14.—The price of sugar continues to advance, and the grocery trade is wondering when it is going to stop. For several weeks past sugar has been marked up 10c per hundred lbs. on all grades. This week the advance was 20c per hundred lbs. This last advance makes a total of $1.10 per 100 lbs. since January last, and it is the greatest increase that sugars have had for some years. Standard granulated is now quoted at $5.90 per 100 lbs.; United Empire $5.80; bright yellow $5.70; No. 1 yellow $5.40, and unbranded $5.25.

There is little butter coming to hand at the present time, and prices are firmer. Creamery prints are quoted at 27c, creamery in boxes 25c to 26c, and in tubs 22c. The receipts of fresh laid eggs are unusually small for the season of the year. Fortunately the demand is light. They are quoted at 23c. There is a marked scarcity of onions on the local market. They are quoted at 3½c per pound.

The flour markets are slightly firmer. Manitoba patents are $6.15 to $6.25, and Ontario blends $5.10 to $5.20. Rolled oats in barrels are $5.60 to $5.70, and in bags $2.70 to $2.75.

Hams and bacon are firm. Stocks are light, and some advances have been made. Fresh hogs are now coming on the market and it is expected that in the course of a few weeks prices will ease off again.

The fruit business continues active. Nova Scotia plums are about over, and some of the local dealers are importing stock from Ontario. Apples are now coming on the market in good supply. Gravensteins are in good demand, and the price is holding well, despite the enormous crop in the Annapolis valley. No. 1 are quoted at $2.50 to $3; No. 2's $1.75, and No. 3's (drops) $1.25 to $1.50. So far the shipments from the province are light. Only small quantities of the early varieties of Nova Scotia apples are exported. Shippers here are unable to say as yet what effect the closing of the British auction rooms will have on Nova Scotia fruit.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, Sept. 14.—The prediction made some months ago by a local dealer that before long sugar would have reached the $6 mark, has at last come true, although many scouted the suggestion when he gave his opinion. An advance of 20 cents in the past week, has brought it to $6, and this is the highest price demanded for this commodity in St. John in fifteen years. In fact it is ten cents higher than it has been in fifteen years, for the highest price asked in that period was $5.90. Local dealers are wondering when the upward trend will cease, but the expectations of the "wiser heads" are that the price will go still higher.

A grocer said this week that many of the poorer families would not be able to pay for granulated if it went much higher, and he looked for a run on molasses or brown as substitutes. Because of brown sugar also being high, he was of the opinion that molasses would be in brisk demand, replacing sugar for use in many cases where families could not afford to purchase that article. In sympathy with sugar, molasses advanced again this week, another cent more being asked.

An abundant harvest prevails throughout the province in all kinds of farm produce, and local grocers are experiencing no difficulty in keeping well supplied, now when their customers are thinking of laying in their winter stock of these commodities, such as potatoes, carrots, turnips, and other vegetables which the careful housewife provides in the fall in anticipation of the advance in prices as the winter progresses. The weather conditions have been encouraging to the farmers, and of course the large crop of vegetables not only means prosperity to them, but livelier business for the grocer.

Rest Room for Farmers' Wives and Daughters

Zealandia, Sask., Sept. 14.—(Special.) A writing and rest room for ladies is a feature of J. W. Haltby's store in Zealandia, Sask. Zealandia has a population of about 500, and it is not often one finds the customers studied in such an attractive manner; particularly in so small a town.

This feature is proving quite a drawing card for the store, and has proved so successful that Mr. Haltby has decided to keep it permanently.

There is nothing elaborate about the "rest room." It is simply a space curtained off from the store, with a few easy chairs and a table and writing utensils, but it is appreciated by the farmers' wives and daughters, who often have to drive many miles to town for their supplies, and are naturally tired after a rough ride over the prairie.

INVESTS $800 IN CABBAGES.

London, Ont., Sept. 14.—(Special.)—Thirty thousand cabbages grown on a London East lot of 3½ acres have been purchased by W. T. Mullins, grocer. He paid $800 for the lot and expects to double his money. The cabbage is known as the "Danish bald-head," and each weighs from 8 to 14 lbs. The entire weight of the crop is estimated at 200 tons.

The sea of heads covering the 3½ acres is striking in appearance and has been the subject of much comment by those who have seen them.

FRUIT NOTES.

According to advices from the coast the promise is for a good-sized crop of oranges.

P. W. Hodgetts, secretary of the Ontario Fruit Growers, says that the apple crop in Ontario will be 50 per cent. more than last year, which brings it nearly to an average. Nova Scotia's crop will run over a million barrels.

In the Winona-Grimsby section of the Niagara district, government inspectors have marked some thousand of peach trees as having Yellows and Little Peach, for immediate destruction.

TRADE NOTES.

R. Simpson & Co., Hamilton, Ont., have purchased the old Taylor & Mulveney warehouse at 29 and 31 Charles St., the amount involved being in the neighborhood of $25,000.

E. B. Holbrooke, Elko, B.C., has erected a new general store at that place.

The Anderson, Baker Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., is considering erecting a canning factory in St. John, N.B. If the project is realized tropical fruits will be imported for canning purposes.

Arthur Nelson, manager the Standard Brokerage Co., Vancouver, B.C., was a visitor at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto.

GET HIM NEXT TIME.

"You know that traveler for ——— pickles, the fellow that's always comin' up an' thumpin' ye on th' chist and yellin', 'How's business this mornin'? I'll bet he's smashed twenty cigars for me—some of them clear Havanas—but I'll get even with him now. How will I do it? I'll tell ye. He always hits me over the vest pocket, where I carry my cigars. He'll hit me there just once more. He's in town again to-day. There's no cigars in me pocket this mornin'. Instead of it, there's a stick of dynamite, d'ye mind?"

How to Build Up the Provision Trade

Grocers Should Push This Line and Not Leave it to Care for Itself—Methods That May be Used — The Value of Proper Display in Selling Meats—Suggestion for a Provision Window.

By A. H. Harvey.

While there are some grocers who attempt to work their provision trade up to an appreciable volume, there are also a great many content to allow this branch of the trade to look after itself.

Such should not be the case. When provisions are being handled they should be pushed to the utmost, for, aside from the direct greater profit derived from a larger trade, the fact that it is done in conjunction with the remainder of the business allows it to be handled at a lower cost and with less leaks.

There is also another manner in which the trade should be regarded. When people come to the store for provisions, an opportunity is presented to introduce other lines of groceries to them.

Changed His Methods.

One dealer I know of kept his stock of provisions in the refrigerator waiting for customers to enquire about it. The result was, he had really no trade in this line; but he suddenly awoke to its possibilities. He had a counter at the rear of the store about six feet long which had been used for piling the goods on in readiness to deliver. This he transformed into a provision counter, covering it with white oilcloth so as to give it a cleanly appearance. On the front of it he placed some hams, rolls and breakfast bacon, while behind he made squares of print butter and lard.

Trade for these lines soon began to pick up and now a good substantial trade is done over that counter which before was of comparatively small value.

Good Provision Trade in Sight.

Now is the time for the grocer to get behind this department with a determination to work an extension. The weather is becoming cooler and more favorable for the handling of this line, while at this time of the year there should be a good demand for pork products.

The Display Refrigerator.

For a while yet until the weather gets still cooler, it will be necessary to use the refrigerator in which to keep meats. A display refrigerator, that is, one with the glass front showing the contents up well to customers, is a valuable fixture. However, they should be shown in some manner, for trade cannot be expected to be maintained unless the public are reminded that you carry those goods.

Meats, especially when cut, can be shown to good advantage. Hams and rolls show up well when shown with lettuce and other green goods.

"I try," said the merchant, in speaking of this line, "to display each line so that it will make a customer's mouth fairly water for a meal of that particular piece. I try to appeal to their palates and appetites. Now, a whole ham or roll is not itself particularly attractive or tempting, so I generally take a roll, cut it in two, and display it on a meat platter, decorated with greens, which makes it look much better than the plain roll."

Use of the Telephone.

Has the grocer ever stopped to think how valuable the telephone might be made in soliciting orders for meats and provisions? It would be well to acquaint customers who live a distance from the store with this method of ordering, for they will often give an order over the phone when they would not think of going to your store. They would most likely call at the first store that handled provisions. Let the dealer make this method of selling goods of as much value to him as possible. Ring a number of your customers up some morning and tell them the different lines of meats which you have to offer and watch results.

Do not forget, either, to draw your customer's attention to your provision counter when selling other lines. Window display is also another important manner of selling this line. Considering how tempting a window of provisions can be made, and the good results it brings, it is surprising how few grocers use this method.

Meat, Lard and Egg Window.

An idea for a good window, combining with it the kindred lines, lard and eggs, is here given. At the rear, some distance from the window, is placed a rod, from which is suspended backs and breakfast bacon. Immediately below in the centre is placed a tub of lard on its side, the mouth of course, facing the front. On either side is built up a pyramid of prints of lard, or pails on their side may be substituted. In front of the tub of lard is placed two half-sides of long clear and on each side in a bed of lettuce or other green goods, a couple of hams and rolls. In front of this is a border of eggs, followed by a border of green goods next the glass. Along either side may be built a wall of lard in three-pound pails or bricks.

It would be well for the trimmer to picture this out on paper before beginning it. The result should be an effective display.

DON'T WORRY.

If you worry over the criticisms of the world—if you fear your competitors —if you allow business depression to affect your nervous system—you will will never be successful.

A Plea for the Retail Association

Secretary Lethbridge (Alta.) Business Men's Protective Association Points Out Why Co-operation is Profitable—The Dead-Beat Analyzed and How to Combat His Tactics.

By B. L. Cope.

How many merchants realize that far more can be accomplished by co-operation than by competition? How many realize that an exchange of ideas would be beneficial to all? How many realize that information about their prospective customers handled through a recognized medium is the essence of co-operation and saves, and has been saving for years, hundreds of dollars which would otherwise have been charged to profit and loss account on their books, which if placed in its proper column would read "DEAD BEATS."

Every retailer knows that hundreds of dollars are lost, absolutely lost annually by the operation of these parasites called in the vernacular "Dead Beats," but how many realize what it means. They say "We would not give them any credit if we knew they were no good but how are we sure they are no good till we give them a trial? The husband is earning a good wage or drawing a good salary and they should be able to pay."

The Important Question.

Yes, they should be able to pay, but will they? That is the question. In days gone by our grandfathers used candles for light, our fathers used the coal oil lamp, but to-day we have gas and electricity. Why? In days gone by the ocean was traveled by the old sailing craft, to-day we have the greyhound propelled by steam. Why? Advanced civilization has given us better ideas, and by putting these ideas into practice they have proved successful. Why not have new and up-to-date ideas replace the old ones among the retailers of our province, ideas that have also stood the test of time.

Why should our merchants loose a good percentage of their hard-earned profits by continuing along the same lines that their grandfathers and fathers pursued when more recent methods, methods that have been in use in other parts of this continent for ten years, show that it is not necessary.

Opportunity at the Door.

And these methods that would save the retailers hundreds of dollars annually are knocking at your door, asking admission so that they may shed their benign protection around your store. Are you, as a retail merchant, going to open your door and welcome an idea that means more profits and less losses? Are you going to co-operate with your fellow merchant for the good of all or are you going to still continue along the same old rut? You are too apt to say: "He stuck me and I hope he goes across the street and sticks my opposition too." This rule works both ways remember. You have all had some dealings with the transient "Dead-Beat," the two legged animal that talks, that comes into your store with a hard luck story, or boldly, and asks for credit to keep his family alive, because, if the truth were known, he is too lazy to earn enough to buy what they require. There was no intention in the brain of that depraved existence when getting the goods from you on time, to pay you if it was at all possible to escape doing so. Quite often he sends his wife because he thinks she can "work" you better than he could, you will be more ready to believe her.

A String of Unpaid Bills.

Why do the retail merchants permit of this practice when they have such a powerful weapon at hand to stop such an outrage. I know from experience that the transient "Dead-Beat" can be stopped from living on your goods. I have seen cases where one of these degraded beings has "done up" merchants in five or six cities along the line till he happened to cross the trail of a merchant who had opened his door to this method, this twentieth century idea, and who by the prompt use of this method found out the reputation of his prospective customer, which showed him a string of unpaid bills as long as the railway along which his prospect travelled.

And what is this method which is so effective and so saving? you ask. Organize a merchants' association. By the aid of a merchants' association in every town or city of reasonable size all in such district who do not promptly meet their obligations will be known to every merchant in that district. By the aid of a provincial association all who have branded themselves unworthy will be known all over the province and by affiliation with like associations in the neighboring provinces the net of protection will spread till it covers the whole country. Shall we or shall we not have a provincial association? Retail merchants, it's up to you.

Provisions Less Firm Under Lower Hogs

In Sympathy With the Reduced Values of Live Hogs—English Bacon Market Quiet at Recent Decline—Butter Market is Marking Time—Eggs are Generally Firm—Cheese Prices Continue to Advance.

The general situation in provisions this week is less firm, in sympathy with the lower quotations for live hogs which have been reduced considerably during the past two weeks. The English bacon market, which dropped back last week, is quiet at the decline. The lower prices will no doubt for the moment curtail the delivery of hogs. Business on the whole is firm, with smoked meats still in appreciable demand.

The butter market generally maintains a steady position with a good home demand. The English market is, however, less firm, while production is quite large. Eggs are somewhat firmer, especially for the best quality of new laid. Production at some centres is not quite so large, while a good demand at present exists.

Cheese prices still continue to climb and prices have again been generally advanced, putting prices extremely high for this time of year. Besides the ordinary conditions contributing to strength, a reduced production in England has assisted in the rise in values. There was a reduction of over 100,000 boxes in store in Canada on September 1, as compared with the same time last year. The English market is firm, with holders making no concessions. The steady upward movement in prices since early June has been a most unusual occurrence.

MONTREAL.

Provisions—While no change has been reported here during the week, it is expected that prices will be lower in some lines next week. This applies particularly to lard, which has been weak. Business on the whole is fair, with the demand appreciable.

Cheese—The market has undergone another advance during the past week, and is quite firm. The price is very high for this season of the year, and is explained by the heavy export demand. Dry weather in the Old Country resulted in the home production of cheese being lower than usual. Other conditions have been contributing to the situation. The Canadian farmers should certainly benefit by present prices.

Provisions.—The strength in lard to which we called attention last week has resulted in a general advance of ¼ cent per pound. Demand with the cooler weather is larger than during the summer months.

Following last week's decline of 30 cents in live hogs, another slump similar in amount occurred this week bringing them at country points down to a $7.10 basis. Demand for pork products is satisfactory in volume. The English market is quiet at the recent decline. With the total drop of 60 cents in the past two weeks, the steadiness in the provision market is less marked.

Provisions.—There is little new in provisions, this week's trade remaining practically the same as last. Cured meat and dried salt meat continue to move in large quantities as harvesting is at its height and large quantities are being used by the workers. Receipts of live stock continue to be small, and as high as $9 per cwt. is being paid for choice hogs at the present time. Best steers on the market brought $5.25 per cwt., which shows a slight increase over last week. Prices quoted are as follows :—

Hams, medium	0 19½	Pork sausage	0 09

Butter.—Creamery butter continues to advance with the approach of fall, and Manitoba fresh made creamery bricks are quoted at 26c., while Manitoba fresh made boxes at 25c. This is an increase of 2c per lb. over prices quoted last week. The advance is due to the small amount of supplies received in the city, and it is likely that higher prices will be seen later. Dairy butter remains unchanged either in quantity or quality. Prices quoted are: 17c per lb. for strictly No. 1 delivered Winnipeg, 12c to 14c for No. 2, 7c to 9c for No. 3.

Eggs.—No change is noticed in the price offered for eggs, although receipts continue to be extremely small. 21c to 22c are the prices quoted by jobbers to shippers for Manitoba fresh, but guaranteed strictly fresh are being sold in the retail trade at 35c per doz. From all information procurable it would appear that prices on a par with last winter may be expected this year..

Cheese.—There is little new in cheese, prices remain unchanged from last week while receipts show but slight improvement over last week. Present quotation 11½c per lb.

SECURING EFFICIENT CLERKS A BIG PROBLEM

The Good or Poor Clerk is Reflected in Many Cases in the Dealer—Why the Proprietor Who Does Not Instruct His Salesmen Properly is Not a Good Merchant Himself.

Montreal, Sept.14 (Special).—"One of the greatest problems I have to contend with," said a prominent grocer recently, "is the securing of good, efficient clerks."

This complaint is heard not only in Montreal, but in Toronto, Winnipeg, in fact throughout the entire Dominion. Ordinary clerks are none too plentiful, and those of special capability are all too few. Now, this is a general reference to existing conditions, for it is not to be denied that there are among the Canadian trade many bright young clerks who will be the future grocers in the country; but they are occupying fairly good positions, and in the meantime preparing themselves for to-morrow.

Where the Blame Lies.

Now if there is a scarcity of good clerks several reasons are suggested for this state of affairs. In the first place, the grocers from whom they obtained their first training could not have been efficient. If they were efficient, then they wilfully neglected to instruct the clerks in all the details of the business with which they should be familiar. In the latter case, however, the grocer could not be acclaimed competent for it was to his own interest that he should teach his clerk practically all he knew (considering the individual grocer), and urge him to apply himself with a view to enhancing his ability and improving his general knowledge of the business.

Good Grocers Have Good Clerks.

"The efficient grocer has efficient clerks." This is an axiom of the trade and applies everywhere except in instances where the employer is unable to secure better, or where those in his employ have not the natural talent or ambition to make their way in the business.

Hence we come back to the statement that the inefficient clerk is the product, in practically all cases, of the store conducted by the inefficient grocer.

MONEY SAVED BY TAKING PAINS.

Editor Canadian Grocer.—On reading your recent article "Losing Money on Orange Sales," I just thought of the amount of money that is lost every year through bad oranges. For instance, some merchants will receive say ten cases and will make a fine display of them and sell direct from the case. This may be all right where a speedy sale is the result but if there are six bad ones in one case and it remains in the store for a week or so you will find at the end of that period twenty to thirty bad ones.

The remedy is a simple one, spend one hour as soon as the fruit comes in looking it over and counting it and you will not, I venture to say, find an easier way of saving a dollar. Some merchants say they don't find time to do this. Well, if they lose two dozen oranges at say 40 cents a dozen for the sake of one hour's work it shows bad management and will prove disastrous in the long run.

Rolled Oats Advance 30 Cents a Barrel

Result of Considerable Higher Prices for Raw Material—Market is Still Strong—Flour at the Moment is Firm Under Higher Wheat—How the Canadian Wheat Crop Compares With Other Years.

Under the substantial gains in the price of the raw material, rolled oats advanced 30c per barrel on Monday of this week. The general world's condition in oats, backed by the short crop in the United States, has worked for considerable higher prices, which the milled product could not withstand. While Ontario's oat crop will be considerably shorter than last year, the production in the west will show an increase. There is some improvement in the rolled oats trade, the annual fall briskness now beginning to make itself felt.

Flour at the present time exhibits considerable strength under higher wheat quotations, and there has been some talk among millers in favor of higher flour quotations. Any further strengthening in wheat prices will probably result in an advance.

While the flour market at the present is firm, there are many inclined to believe that as Canada has an immense crop of wheat this year that when shipments start to come out that the market will feel the effects. One dealer pointed this out, comparing the estimated crop in the Canadian West this year of 180 million bushels with 149 millions in 1910, 166 million in 1909, 112 million in 1908 and 93 million in 1907.

This is no doubt a factor that has to be considered and one which will have a considerable bearing on prices. Still Canada is not such an important factor in determining values as some believe. It must be remembered that she produces only 180 million bushels as compared with the world's total of over 3,500 million.

Reciprocity will have a considerable bearing on wheat prices in Canada, as it also will on oats. Canadian markets will remain somewhat unsettled until this issue is decided. Farmers are no doubt holding supplies in many cases until this question has been disposed of.

TORONTO.

Flour.—The immediate flour market at least is firm under higher quotations for wheat. Some mills are inclined to favor higher prices for flour. All, however, are not of that opinion, there being a feeling of uncertainty regarding wheat prices holding. Any further marked advance in wheat quotations would, however, probably result in higher flour prices.

Feed—Mill feed has been advancing considerably of late, home buyers being faced with competition from Germany and other countries, and this has been reflected in the ascendancy of prices of bran and shorts. It is some time since local manufacturers have done business with Europe, and the sudden demand from Germany is attributed to the failure of fodder crops.

WINNIPEG.

Flour.—Domestic and export trade continues to hold good and an increased volume of trade is being transacted. Export trade is at its height, and as new wheat is on the market it is expected that some increase will be seen in the shipments to the Old Country during the next few weeks. Prices remain unchanged from last week.

Late Fruits Now in Good Supply

Canadian Late Fruits Now in the Limelight — Plenitude of Peaches, Pears, Plums and Grapes—Good Sale for Preserving Purposes—Canada Will Have a good Crop of Apples — Imported Lines are Not Brisk.

Peaches, plums, pears and grapes are having their day. Supplies of all these lines on most markets are large with an excellent demand. The amount of the earlier fruits preserved this year was comparatively small and this is no doubt one reason for the brisk trade in late varieties. Retailers in all sections are pushing late fruits for preserving purposes. One of the principal lines is peaches, the late varieties of good quality now making their appearance.

Prospects still continue good for a large crop of apples in Canada this year, considerable in excess of last season. In Ontario the outlook is not as favorable as earlier in the season, wind and hail having wrought damage, but it will be in excess of last year, while in Nova Scotia a bumper crop is expected. The English apple crop is reported only moderate. Germany is below an average, while France, Italy and Holland report good crops.

Trade in imported lines of fruit continues quiet, although there is a fair movement of such lines as oranges, lemons and bananas considering the present plenitude of Canadian fruits. Prices are apparently steady with no special features.

Green Fruits.—There is nothing particularly new in the fruit market this week. Blueberries seem to be about done. Peaches, pears, plums and grapes are bringing the bulk of the trade and demand is heavy. Lemons are moving steadily. On the whole business is good, but it is principally along the regular lines of this season.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—There has been a plenitude of peaches on the local market for the past week or so, with an excellent demand at the prevailing prices. The amount of earlier fruits preserved was small and retailers are pushing peaches for this purpose, and are meeting with great success. The late varieties have made their appearance with the quality generally good. All lines of Canadian fruits are in good supply and are selling well. Pears are lower in price, while ordinary grapes are at 17 to 20 cents. While prices on the latter will probably go lower they may not go as low as some years, that is for those untouched by the hail. Canadian sugar melons are in good supply and selling well at 50 to 60 cents per crate. Oranges, lemons, watermelons and other imported lines are somewhat forgotten in the rush of domestic fruits. Prices, however, continue steady.

Vegetables.—Small cucumbers and onions, as well as green peppers, with the pickling season now on, are being given more prominence. Egg plant and green peppers are easier this week.

New potatoes, New Brunswick stock, are quoted ar $1.40 to $1.50 per bag this week. Prices will no doubt ease slightly as supplies increase. The crop in Ontario is not good and are not maturing well. In some sections the production is not large enough to supply the home demand. There are other sections, however, where they are doing fairly well, but there are considerable being brought in from New Brunswick where the crop this year according to

WINNIPEG.

Fresh Fruit.—An active trade continues and wholesalers claim that one of the best seasons in the history of the west can be looked forward to in this line. It is expected that the small holder will have more money this fall and consequently will be able to indulge in this luxury. Washington Italian prunes have made their appearance on the market and are quoted at $1.60 to $1.65 per box. Cantaloupes show a reduction of $1 per crate, and a large trade is being carried on in this line at the present time. Washington blackberries have also declined $1 per crate, while Hardy pears are down 25c. New prices are as follows:

Potatoes.—Owing to increased supplies in the city, potatoes are being sold this week at 75c per bushel. This is a reduction of 10 to 15c below prices prevailing last week. It is expected that lower prices will be seen as the stocks in the city are increasing daily.

Fish - Oysters

Cooler Weather Improves Fish Demand

Fall Demand Beginning to be Felt—Orders Henceforth Should be More Numerous and Bulkier—New Lines of Smoked Fish Coming on Market—Oyster Season has Commenced — The Production This Year is Not Large.

With the cooler weather, the fall demand for fish is beginning to make itself felt to some extent, and from now on orders should be larger. Fish are in fair supply, halibut being one of the good sellers in fresh fish. In smoked fish, new haddies, kippers, bloaters and also smoked herring are arriving.

The demand for oysters is beginning to be felt, and as it is some months since they have been obtainable there should be an appreciable trade. This year's supply of oysters is apparently not large. One dealer said it is three or four years since there has been an average set in the oyster grounds, and as it takes about five years for them to develop the production this year will be limited. The set this year appears to be good, while the quality of the present crop oysters is reported generally good.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—Business has begun to show improvement with the change in the weather and orders henceforth should be more numerous and bulkier. The opening of the oyster season has certainly been felt and business has been steadily increasing. Stocks are fresh and it is months since the last oysters were enjoyed by the majority of people.

Halibut are in good supply, also brook trout, which are arriving freely with the price considerably lower. There is also an ample supply of lake trout. In the smoked fish line new haddies, kippers and bloaters and also smoked herring are arriving daily. Complete lines of boneless and prepared cod are being offered. in fact, the stock of fish is practically complete.

Listed under salted and pickled fish are new Labrador herrings in barrels and half barrels; also new green cod, Labrador and British Columbia salmon, sea trout and mackerel. All of which is sufficient evidence of the fact that wholesalers are ready for the season.

Toronto.—There has as yet been no marked improvement in fish trade, but now with cooler weather retailers will begin to devote their attention more to this line. Demand for oysters is beginning to make itself noticeable and will more so as the season advances. Creating a Demand by Window Displays

Up-to-Date Merchants Prize Their Windows Highly—Effective Means of Securing Trade—Appeal to Consumers' Appetites Through Them—Some Simple Rules Which Constitute the Foundation of Good Window Dressing.

By W. J. B.

One of the chief means of advertising and bringing his goods before the purchaser that the retail grocer has at hand is through the medium of the display window.

Those grocers who have put forth any reasonable amount of effort in this direction will testify to its value as a salesman. It affords the merchant in all lines of business, and just as much in groceries as any other, a selling agent at a lower cost perhaps than any other means. Up-to-date merchants in the city prize their windows highly as any manufacturer will find if he attempts to rent one of them. Without them they could not hope to do nearly as much business as is possible with them.

Too Much Neglect Shown.

Still, even in the face of this absolutely proven truth and the fact that their value has been demonstrated so plainly over and over again, we find many merchants neglecting to give them such care as would make them valuable. Nor is this alone true of country stores; even in the cities and on many of the main streets, too, we find the same thing existing. Dirty windows, unattractively dressed, changed only at long intervals, which do not only fail to sell goods, but drive customers away, are found to be the case with many merchants. Perhaps only a short distance away, we see another dealer with a window of the same dimensions, but from which he is deriving untold benefits, simply because he gives it the necessary attention to keep it in such a manner that it will sell goods.

It is the object of the merchant who does realize the value of the window to give an appearance that will create among customers a desire for the goods displayed and is not a difficult problem to create a desire for foodstuff lines. He must appeal to the appetites of his customers in such a way as to make sales. The question is, "how can it be done?"

Rules to be Followed.

There are some simple rules which constitute the foundation of a good display and while they are self apparent, they need to be dwelt upon for the reason that they are often disregarded. One of these is keeping the glass in the window clean. While it should not be necessary to refer to this, still there are some grocers who do not take enough pride in their store to even observe this, the simplest rule.

Then, it is essential that no article entering into the display will detract from the attractiveness of the window. It should be neat and symmetrical. That is, it should be constructed so that one side of the display will balance well with the other. You have probably noticed a window that did not appear exactly right at a glance and on a closer examination you found the display to be lop-sided.

Specialize for Effect.

Don't try to show everything you have in stock at once. A crowded window will not sell goods. This is the downfall of many window trimmers. They wish to show too many lines at a time and the crowding resulting defeats the primary object of the display.

Just as the general public will not often read a crowded advertisement, they will not stop to look at a crowded window. It does not make sales. That is well known. In fact, a crowded window is not attractive and for this reason a trimmer should guard against it. Of course, the display of associated articles such as ham and eggs, brooms and sweeping powder, etc., is to be commended.

Good Judgment Necessary.

Time and care are necessary in the preparation of a window, if good results are to be procured. The goods cannot be thrown in, in any old manner. Each article and each part of the display should be so placed that it will look the best. Judgment must be used to secure that.

A man cannot expect to pull off his coat and to arrange a good display in a few minutes. He must first make his plans and figure in his mind just how he wants it to look when finished and how he must proceed. A good method is to select the line or lines which are to be displayed, step outside and figure in your mind's eye how you will arrange them.

There is still another feature of window display that will usually increase results—the use of show cards and price tickets. A plain, neatly written show card will help wonderfully in making sales, while price tickets in many cases will also be of great value. Do not use more than the display warrants. The trouble, however, in most cases is that none or too few are used.

Grocers' Letter Box

The Canadian Grocer solicits enquiries for this Column on Trade Questions. If you desire the manufacturer of any line of goods, where an article can be secured, etc., etc., write us.

Dear Sir:—

"I notice in the advertisement of a tea firm that the pedlars are getting a large amount of tea trade from the retail grocers.

"What, in your opinion, would be a fair proportion of tea sales to whole sales of a grocer in order that he might feel that he was getting his due?"

N.S. ANXIOUS ONE.

Editorial Note.—This question of a Nova Scotia dealer is a difficult one because of the different conditions existing and connected with the sale of goods in different stores. In some localities a greater amount of tea is consumed than in others, some stores sell more goods that run into money quickly, such as sugar, thus altering the proportion of tea sales to total sales. others sell strictly groceries, while still others have many sidelines which would alter the proportion of tea sales to total sales.

A merchant in a country town with a general store of $4,000 stock who considered he was getting his share of the tea trade says that his tea sales last year amounted to $450, while his total sales for all lines amounted to $17,000. He sold 1,240 pounds of 30 cent tea and 190 pounds of 40 cent tea. These are the only grades he carries.

Another dealer who carries groceries alone who does on an average $1,000 worth of business per month, said that in one month he sold $40 worth of tea, although this is not an average.

Thus to work it out to a proportion the general merchant on every $3,400 worth of goods disposed of, sold $90 worth of tea, while the man who sold only groceries on every $3,400 worth of business, sold $136 worth of tea. Thus if an average were taken on these two cases alone, it would mean that a dealer in doing $3,400 worth of trade, should sell $113 worth of tea. The question, however, as intimated above, is a rather difficult one to answer on account of its complexity.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia—Mustard

Mustard is a Relish of Long Standing Which Still Continues to be Popular—Two Different Seeds Used in Its Manufacture—Prepared Mustards Also Sold by the Grocer—Arguments to Increase Its Sale.

"Sauces of various kinds which tickle the palate and for a time become fashionable," says a writer "have their day and cease to be, but mustard, which came into popularity centuries ago, still continues popular as a relish for meats and other foods."

There are three main reasons why mustard continues to be a popular condiment.

In the first place, it has an unquestionable dietetic value.

Then again it is a medicinal agent of no mean value, while it is a seasoning of which the palate never tires.

It's most reasonable cost also places it within the reach of all.

Are Fond of Mustard.

The English word, mustard, was derived from the Italian "Mostardo" owing to an ancient custom of having a little must (latin, mustum, unfermented grape juice) mixed with it in preparing the condiment. For centuries, the English have been known as great mustard eaters—the greatest in the world. It is calculated that upward of 7,000 tons of mustard are now manufactured yearly in England, and in no other part of the world is it's preparation carried on so energetically.

The two seeds employed in the manufacture of mustard are S. Nigra and S. Alba and it is the judicious blending of the flour of these two seeds, with due regard to the percentage of oil and other properties contained in them, that gives the manufacturer his secret and the public, the perfected article.

What Genuine Mustard Is.

In the case of "Genuine" the mustard is made solely from the flour of the mustard seed. The "Condiment" is manufactured with a small proportion of wheaten flour especially prepared in order to absorb the oil, modify the undesirable pungency and make it more suitable to the public taste.

The use of mustard, powdered in it's present form, for making into a paste, originated in Durham, England, about the year 1720, where it was prepared on a small scale by an old lady named Mrs. Clements, who kept the secret of its manufacture to herself—grinding the seed io a mill and sifting it—for several years. She used to travel twice a year to London and the principal towns in England for orders.

The Prepared Mustard.

Then we have the various kinds of prepared mustards. These semi-liquid condiments are usually prepared from the ground black or brown seed and bottled ready mixed with various ingredients, all ready for use by the consumer. Each manufacturer has a somewhat different recipe in its preparation. Being mixed with other substances, these prepared mustards have not such a strong odor, while the flavor is more along the line of a sauce or relish.

Mr. Grocer, are your sales of mustard in both its dry and prepared form as large as they could be made. Its qualities outlined at the beginning of this article should be good arguments in selling it, which backed by its comparative cheapness should make it an excellent seller. Perhaps, the fault lies in the fact that you do not display or bring this line to your customer's attention often enough.

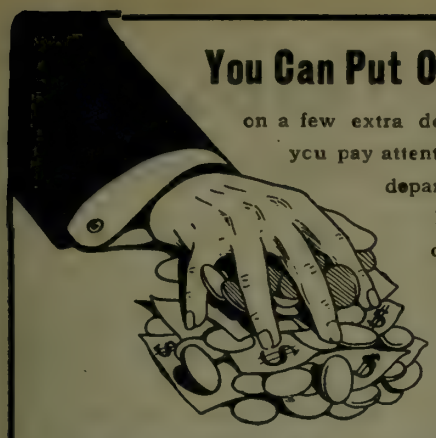
Novel Sale of Laundry Lines Brought Business

A merchant, not long ago, conducted a novel sale which stirred up a lot of comment and interest—and business.

Two weeks before the date set for the sale, clothes pins were mailed to every address on a carefully prepared mailing list. To each pin was attached, by a cord, a round tag. On one side of the tag was an announcement of a laundry sale.

Special attention was called to an explanatory circular which would be sent out in a following mail.

The other side of the tag bore the postage stamp and address. The pins were mailed unwrapped. This novel "ad." attracted attention and paved the way for the second announcement which followed a few days later. The special prices were restricted to articles used in the laundry—soaps, bluing, starch, boilers, tubs and every item that could possibly be classified under that head. What was advertised as a "bargain reel" was located in the basement. A huge reel, not unlike the ordinary clothes dryer, was erected, and paper bags containing unknown articles were attached to the lines with clothes pins. The bargain hunter might take a "grab" from this assortment of packages for twenty-five cents.



He was assured that all the sacks contained unusual bargains. The windows catered to the same wash-day idea and many of the articles in this bargain reel were displayed on a clothes line strung across the window shelf.

The sale made a big hit. The "bargain-reel" had to be refilled many times, and the sales in all departments showed a sympathetic increase.

This merchant says he obtains the best results from running sales on one class of goods at a time.

It's the Bread it Makes That Settles Your Profits

We admit it right now, Brother Grocer—

We could make FIVE ROSES cheaper.

Cheap enough to get your order today.

And it would sell like hot cake in winter—because of its past performance.

Because it has always satisfied, you see.

Sales would come enormously at the lower figure, based on Uniform Quality.

But—

Here's the rub, we would eventually have to make the flour fit the price.

We would both be living in a fool's paradise, Brother Grocer.

Because, don't you see, it's the bread she makes—not the price she pays—that settles the buyer's permanent preference.

And the buyer's preference decides your profits.

If you sell a cheaper flour than FIVE ROSES, Brother Grocer—

That flour was made to fit its price.

It costs less for the same reason that FIVE ROSES costs more.

How long will your sales continue on the price basis?

Only as long as your present traffic remains satisfied with unsatisfactory baking results.

And that means until their first loaf is baked, not a sale longer.

And having failed, the buyer passes on and will keep going elsewhere until she finds bread and pastry happiness.

If, with our unlimited facilities for sifting the Manitoba harvest, with our corps of expert millers, our modern milling methods, our vast capacity, our immense storing and distributing facilities—

If, with all these, we are unable to make FIVE ROSES cheaper, while maintaining its integrity, what can you expect from a mill without these advantages?

Can you expect better quality under any circumstances?

Can you expect it cheaper?

Thousands of retail grocers, big, medium, small, in the past 23 years have found in FIVE ROSES their most stable foundation.

Theirs is the trade that lives, that endures, that is perpetuated—that grows.

Don't delay your own success, Brother Grocer.

Analyze, compare, consider the selling advantages of FIVE ROSES: Quality, Economy, Uniformity.

And the buying advantages likewise: Courtesy, Service, Square Dealing.

Write our nearest office.

Or ask your jobber about it.

Five Roses
is packed to suit your trade. In barrels and halves—also in bags of 7, 14, 24, 49 and 98 lbs. Mixed cars for those who want them.

THE SILENT SALESMAN

Goods whose trade-marked names have grown familiar to the public need no word-of-mouth explanations on quality or price, for they are their own "Silent Salesmen." All you have to do is to display them--think of the saving of energy you make when you stock with goods of spotless reputation! Three "Silent Salesmen" are printed below.

Codou's Macaroni

Genuine French

Made in a Model Factory absolutely new and up to date. Made only from the finest Taganrog Russian Wheat, the only Wheat from which the finest quality of macaroni can be made. Nothing better can be produced.

Griffin & Skelley's Canned Fruits

Picked by skillful hands, chosen by ever-watchful eyes, packed in the Factory of Precision—the best that Dollars and Cents and Brains and Sense can offer particular folks.

Canned Asparagus, Apricots, Peaches, Pears, Cherries, Plums and other wanted table fruits. Quality Goods!

Griffin & Skelley's Dried Fruits

Seedless Raisins and Prunes. Dried Apricots, Peaches and Pears in all their original goodness. A revelation to the grocer who has been buying other Brands.

Selected with the greatest care and shipped in original boxes right from the Vineyards and Orchards on the Pacific Coast.

Look for the "Griffin" trademark before you buy.

You know what you get when you buy these.
All warranted by the shippers.

New PEAS (with MINT) in Cooking Nets (Farrow's Patent)

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

FARROW'S 'Patent Net' PEAS

are the finest early green peas, gathered at the beginning of the season when peas are sweetest, most tender and delicious. Our process preserves ALL their natural flavour. When cooked they are so delicious and tender that you cannot detect them from fresh garden peas. They are very easily cooked and remarkably cheap —a 10 cent Net provides liberal portions for 8 people. Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas are English grown, absolutely pure, free from all preservatives and colouring matter.

SURE AS THE SUN

Reliability is the keynote of the popularity of the DOMINION MATCH. Every match is as sure to produce a light as the sun is sure of rising. The heads do not fly off and set fire to inflammable material; the stems are made of straight cut wood (not cross grained) which insures them against breaking.

What is more annoying than an unreliable match? Who gets the blame for the poor match? You, Mr. Grocer, you get the blame. See that your stock consists of the DOMINION and you will satisfy your customers.

THE AVERAGE PERSON

IS NOT A GOOD JUDGE OF GROCERIES AND KNOWS IT

¶ Therefore, the particular buyer looks for certain "guide posts" to indicate the store upon which he can depend for quality when buying groceries.

¶ He may not know how to select good tea or coffee in bulk, for instance, but he knows he gets value when he buys Heinz Pickles; and is likely to be favorably influenced towards the grocer who sells them and other trade-marked goods of equal standing.

¶ He may not be able to argue for or against Benzoate of Soda, but he knows he prefers to take no chances with drugs in his food, and is likely to read the label on the kind of Ketchup the grocer recommends.

Nature has solved the problem of distribution. It uses a multitude of agents to effect the distribution of its products.

Nature does not expect every seed to fall upon fallow ground and to take root. But, it achieves a profitable percentage upon its distribution. This is all that an advertiser has to do to reap a profitable harvest on his outlay.

A National Reputation

"We enclose our check covering subscription to your valuable publication, the "Grocer." We get many good hints in your paper which is worth many times more than the price of your paper. We look forward for each issue."—O'Keefe & Martin, Vernon, B.C.

"As we were looking over some back numbers of The Canadian Grocer which we prize as highly as clean stock, we noticed an article on soap in your issue of April 16 and an idea occurred to us."—Errett & Co., Englehart, Ont.

"Your paper is invaluable to all grocers---interesting and full of ideas---a paper that all up-to-date business men will appreciate if they see it once---the only paper that I keep on file for future reference."---Elzear Turcotte, Quebec, P.Q.

"We assure you that we appreciate the Grocer very much because of the many helpful suggestions contained in it. The fact that we cut out the helpful things from week to week and paste them in a scrap book, is an evidence of our appreciation."---F. & J. Morley, Sydney, C.B.

Sugar Has Been Making History

Most Phenomenal Increase in the Price of the Sweetstuff—At the Highest Point Since 1899—Has Advanced $1,25 Since June 30—The Movement on the Market From the First of the Year—Sugar World has Twice Been Startled This Year by Bad Crop Reports—The Future of Sugar.

Sugar has certainly been making history during the past three months, going upward with a stride that has seldom been equalled. At the present time with quotations of refined at $5.85 on a Montreal basis, sugar is the highest in twenty-two years, sugar men having to go back to 1889 to find higher prices.

At the present time refined is $1.25 per cwt., higher than when Europe first commenced sending out unfavorable reports concerning the beet crop that started prices on their upward trend. It is also interesting to note that prices are $1.65 higher than the lowest point of the year, namely on Feb. 1, when sugar in bags at Montreal was worth $4.20.

Some Hopes Shattered.

When the year 1911 opened, it was general opinion that sugar prices during the ensuing year would be on a lower general level than in 1910. Those hopes have however, long since been badly shattered. Sugar men looked to Cuba for a good yield of raws and this was the basis of their prediction. It is true that Cuba did at first give out splendid hopes, and with the arrival of the new crop on the market prices of refined declined from $4.60 on Jan. 1 to $4.20.

That however proved to be the lowest point of the year. Raws in New York had been forced down to $3.42, but refiners held off in their purchases in the belief of still lower prices.

The market held in the balance for a time, both sides waiting for further information. It came too, like a bolt from the blue, when Willet & Gray early in February predicted a shortage of 200,000 tons in the Cuban crop.

Speculators were not long in taking advantage of this prediction, and raws began to move upward, and on Feb. 24, refined was advanced ten cents—the beginning of the upward trend. Then as the Cuban shortage became more certain, prices continued to go up, $4.60 being reached on April 18.

A Period of Inactivity.

Then continued a period of inactivity during May and June, in regard to price movements. If towards the latter part of June one had asked a sugar man what was the outlook for the balance of the season, he would have expected a steady market with advances in price depending on the volume of consumption and demand. That was as far as a conservative dealer would have gone in his predictions.

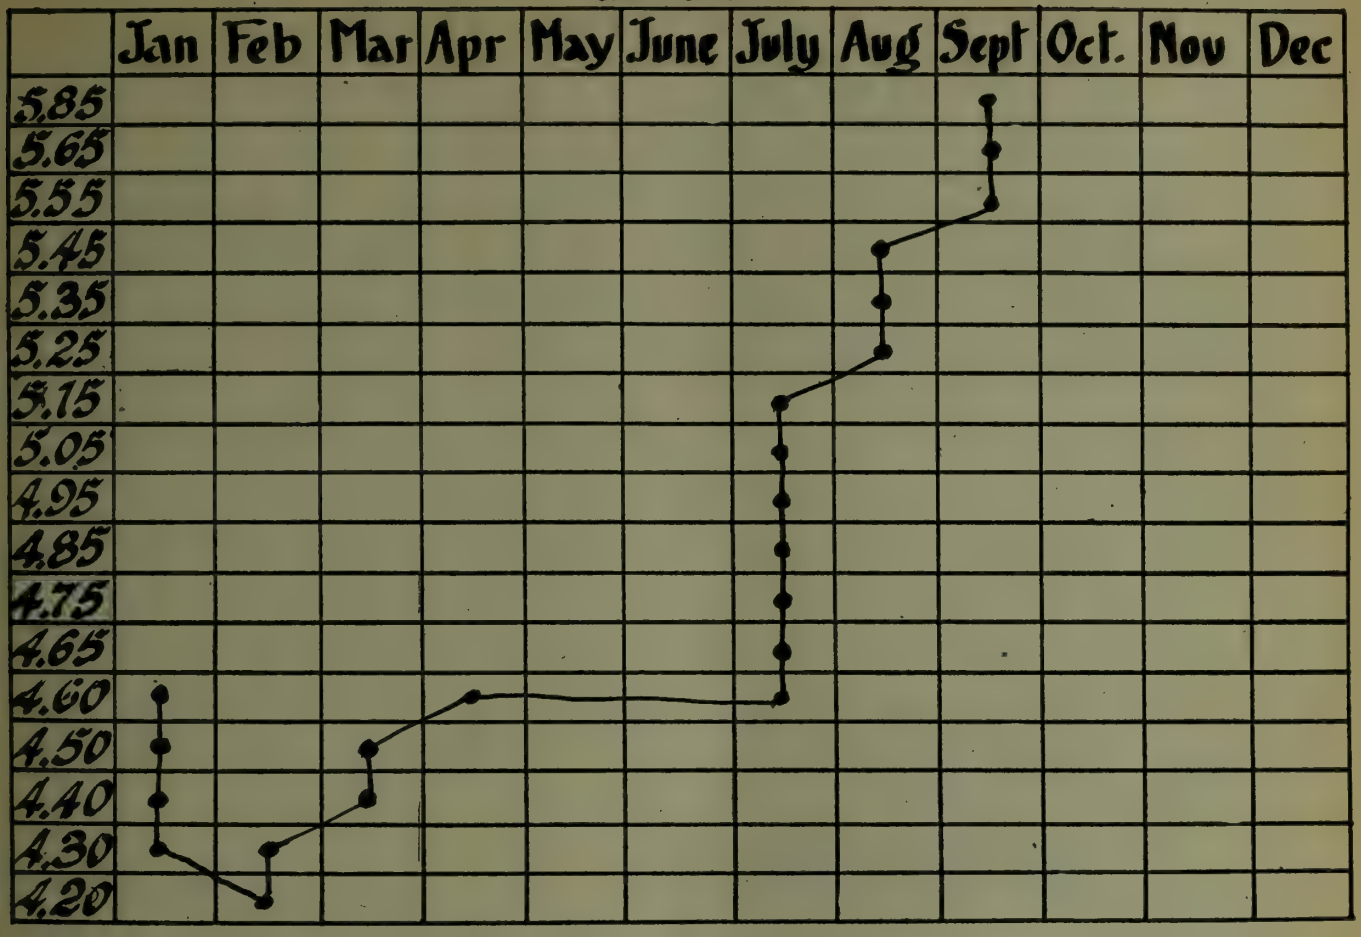
It was then the sugar world received its second shock of the year. Up to this time Europe had been lying peacefully in the background, without any material interference in the situation. However, while July was still young, European beet quotations began to move sharply upward, a full shilling the first week, and the report was heralded across the ocean that the European crop had been materially damaged by dry, hot weather. Of course prices of New York raws began to rise in sympathy, and refined began its phenomenal upward march.

July Advance of 55 Cents.

In July alone, the price went up 55 cents, and dealers all over the country stood aghast at the unusual occurrence and wondered where it would end. However, the news from Europe gave no relief to the situation, the estimated shortage continuing to be enlarged and the movement in prices keeping pace with the extended estimate. On June 30, beet quotations were at 11 shillings, while the present price is 18s. 6d. for prompt shipment. During that time refined has advanced $1.25 per cwt., 55c. in July, 40c. in August, while during September the advance has been 30c.

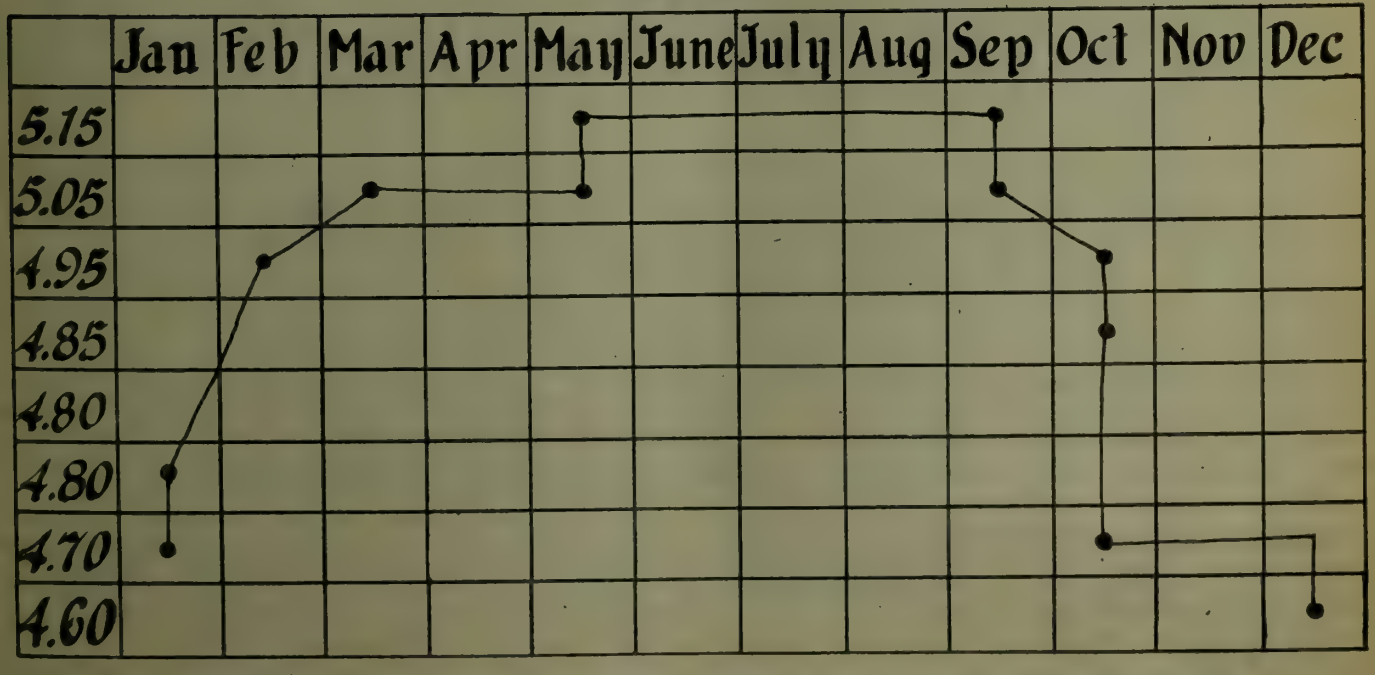
While there is no doubt that speculation has had a certain influence in boosting prices to the present high level, nevertheless the rise has been warranted to a certain extent, because the supply of nearby sugar is small, and particularly because of the shortage in the European crop, which will be considerable. Otto Licht in his first expert preliminary crop estimate, shows a decrease of 860,000 tons minimum to 1,835,000 tons maximum from his last year's outturn of 8,160,000 tons, the final result depending on the weather conditions after September 1. As noted this estimate allows a wide range, close on one millions tons, and makes the fact plain that the exact damage to the European crop is far from definitely known. That is the question now confronting the sugar men. Has the actual damage been fully or more than discounted by present prices? The answer to that question would be worth knowing.

The Future of the Market.



"The market is still strong, with no apparent weakness in sight," said one dealer in touch with the situation, and who in July predicted a strong market, at least until October, and probably afterwards if the conditions warranted it. "If we go back to the last similar campaign in 1904-05 when the European crop was damaged, causing a million tons shortage, we find that the high prices continued until February, when a good Cuban crop began to come on the market.

On the basis that history repeats itself, and the market at present is no more abnormal than in that year, we could not expect any relief until the Cuban crop starts to come forward.



With abnormal conditions such as now prevailing, there is always the danger of extreme views, but still the prospects in Europe are showing no improvement, while there is at present a marked scarcity of sugar, New York refiners being far behind in their deliveries.

"On the other hand," he remarked, there are, no doubt, some slightly dangerous spots, such as the American beet crop, and the possibility of Europe turning out better, but I believe the man who needs sugar, from now until January, is probably safer to buy it than to leave it alone." Such is the opinion of one man who has made a careful study of the situation and who on other occasions has been conservative in his opinions as to a strong market.

Lesson 4--Course in Card Writing

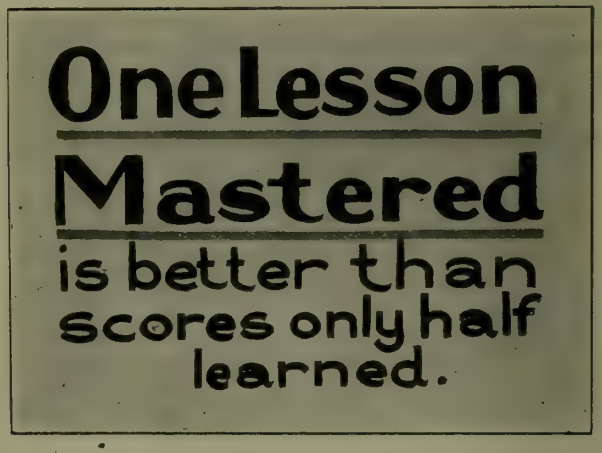
Fourth of a Series of Twenty Lessons in Lettering, Spacing and Shading, Showing the Actual Hand-Lettered Plate With Each Letter Shaded and a Card Demonstating Application.

By J. C. Edwards. (Copyright applied for).

Before we go any further, we will review the brush and ink problem. The most practical brush is the No. 7 red sable, flat, in Albata (German silver). The hair is the right length and is of the proper thickness to make the single and double stroke block letter as illustrated in the accompanying plate and card.

The cut inserted shows the brush flattened out in good shape and held in the hand in one of the positions brought into practice in this lesson.

Dip your brush into a wide-mouthed bottle of letterine and rub it out flat on the cardboard or palette, adding a little water if the ink is too thick, and does not work freely, by dipping the point of the brush into a tumbler of water.



When you have the brush in shape commence with the letter "a" and make the first stroke with one stroke of the brush at its full width. Do this between lines about an inch apart, also having another line above the top one and one below the bottom, and leaving a space between of ½ inch.

These outside lines form the guide line at the top for such letters as "b," "d," "f," etc., and at the bottom for letters "j," "z," "p," etc.

Practice the different strokes as they appear in the plate. Make the double or wide stroke about twice the width of the single in every case, but be careful not to get the strokes crowded together, a very easy thing to do if the strokes are made too large for the size of the letter face (the letter face is the area of space taken up by the entire letter).

The strokes predominating in this plate are practically the same as those of lesson No. 2, with the addition of an extra stroke to broaden or double the strokes which require it. For instance, No. 2 in the letter "a" broadens the right-hand lower portion of stroke 1. Stroke 5 broadens the left-hand portion of the curve formed by strokes 3 and 4, and so on throughout the entire alphabet. This should be clear to you if you study the plate until you grasp the principle.

Take the letter "e" and you will notice that the 4th movement or stroke completes a perfect "e" of the "single stroke block" order and that the addition of strokes 5 and 6 broadens the outside strokes, giving the finished letter the appearance as shown in the plate. You will discover, in looking over this plate, that the broad strokes nearly always come on the extreme right and left sides of the letters and not on the top and bottom strokes.

Card showing application of the singie and double stroke block, lower case.

This fact should aid you considerably in the execution of the alphabet when you have not the plate beside you as a guide. Such letters as "K," "S," "V," "W," "X" and "Y," also "Z," may bother you for a while to know what strokes to shade heavy, but by studying them thoroughly you will soon learn them and not make the common error of placing the wide stroke where the narrow one should be.

For instance, the third stroke in "K" being the top stroke, should be narrow. In "V," "W" and "Y" the left-hand strokes should be the wide, and in the "S" and "Z" the connecting strokes should be the double ones.

Take particular note of the "Z"—a common error with amateur card writers is in placing of the connecting strokes just the reverse to what is shown in the plate.

They begin the centre or connecting stroke at the left-hand top corner and run it to the right lower corner. Always start and finish as shown at the right top and end of the lower left. Note also the wide stroke of the "X."

The shading used in the letters of this plate is the top and right-hand shading to correspond with the capitals in the preceding lesson. The card pictured here is lettered in "single and double stroke" and "single stroke" block letters. The former being used as the display and the latter as the reader.

This shows the comparative strength of the two styles of lettering. Note the plainness of this card and yet the strength it has. Stick to plain work and do not attempt fancy stunts until you get the lettering perfect. Work slow and master every stroke. The speed will come with confidence gained by practice.

Care of the Brush.

After using a brush, wash it thoroughly in clear cold or warm water and gently draw it to a chisel shape before putting it away. Stand it on end or lay flat without the bristles coming into contact with anything to disarrange them and your brush will always be ready for use.

For further information re outfit, etc., write to J. C. Edwards, care MacLean Pub. Co., or The Canadian Grocer, Toronto.

MARKET NOTES.

A stronger market has developed in fresh cocoanuts in New York under more active interest on the part of manufacturing dealers. Stocks are said to be moderate.

A fair volume of Valencia oranges are expected to come forward from the coast this side of the new crop navels. Demand will be on a larger scale when small fruits become less plentiful.

The Florida grape fruit crop will be smaller than last year. The orange production will be larger.

With the cooler weather the demand for watermelons is slacker.

THE LAST TWO BIG SGUAR BOOMS.

With the present unusual high prices of sugar, it is interesting to recall former periods of extreme values. Not since 1889 have prices been as high as they are to-day. In that year the highest point reached by Europe was 28s 1½d. for prompt beets as compared with the present quotations of 18s. 6d. In that year conditions up to April and May were normal. Then short crop reports began to be considered, and a Beet Sugar Syndicate was formed in Europe to put up prices, corner the market and force American refiners to come to them for supplies.

Advance followed advance until in June quotations reached 28s. 1½d. and New York refined 9.06 per lb.

Then the syndicate discovered that American refiners had been able on the rise to accumulate from all sources very heavy stocks, making them independent of Europe and a collapse of the speculation came immediately. Beets declined in a two weeks' panic to 19s. 9d (2 1-16c per lb. decline) and was only checked by banks giving the syndicate an extension of settlement. The liquidation continued on a declining market until September to December saw its end at quotations of 13s 8¼d. to 11s. 8¼d.

In 1904-05 there was also a shortage in European beets, amounting to around one million tons. The market continued strong until on in January. From 11s. ¾d. on Oct. 20, 1904, prices went to 16s. 3¾d. on Jan. 1902. The "bubble" then burst and prices went steadily down to 8s. 8¼d. in August, 1905.

In June, 1904, refined prices were at $4.35, while on Jan. 19, 1905, they were $5.75, not as high as to-day. Prices then dropped until $4 was reached.

FANCY GROCERY TRADE IN COUNTRY.

A manufacturer of a high-grade grocery specialty recently said that during the past year or so there has been an enormous increase in the sale of his line throughout the country districts. While a few years ago, his travelers rarely visited the country towns because sales would not warrant it, at present they find it profitable to do so.

This should be encouraging to country dealers. It brings out the fact that the public even in the rural districts are beginning to demand specialty food products that formerly belonged exclusively to the city trade. It shows that the country merchant's trade is not confined alone to the staple lines but includes those fancy lines which in most cases allow a larger percentage of profit.

Merchants should awaken to the fact that there are excellent chances for the sale of fancy groceries in the country districts. That there has been a substantial increase in the sale of one line is proof that the same may be brought about in other lines. Merchants should not wait until customers find out in one way or another about goods and demand them, but should prove their progressiveness by introducing them, and incidentally receiving a large profit. Fancy groceries are beginning to meet with a ready sale in the country towns and villages. Thus there is a field opened to further trade and profit.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE CLERK.

That there is a dearth of competent clerks is a fact of which grocery merchants in all parts of the Dominion complain. It seems difficult to secure a clerk that thoroughly understands the business, who is an efficient salesman, possesses initiative and who takes an interest in the business. It is a big problem with which the grocer has to contend, and one which is showing apparently no improvement as time goes on.

While it is no doubt true that the merchants are themselves largely responsible for the present general inefficiency of clerks, the poor clerk being the result of poor training on the part of his employer, nevertheless the clerk himself can to a large extent by his own efforts bring himself up to a marked degree of competency. If he has the ambition, is anxious to become a better clerk in every sense of the word, he will very soon become conversant with the different phases of the grocery trade. By endeavoring to become a better salesman and to acquire a better knowledge of the business, putting forth a little initiative and taking an interest in the business, he will work a wonderful improvement in his capabilities as a clerk.

The fact is not to be denied that there are many bright clerks in Canada but the majority could be a great deal better if they would put forth sufficient effort. The competent and capable clerk is in good demand and it therefore behooves the clerk, no matter what his present ability in this line may be, to put forth a greater determined effort to acquire more knowledge and a greater degree of efficiency in the business in which he is engaged. It is most decidedly to his own advantage to do so.

COMBATING THE MAIL ORDER HOUSES.

That the mail order houses are securing a large percentage of the country merchant's trade is true.

That the amount of busines they are securing is increasing instead of decreasing is also true. These smaller merchants are certainly confronted with a difficult problem in the present competition of the catalogues. How are they to combat it and combat it successfully?

Dealers in many towns throughout the country have awakened to the fact that the mail order houses have been taking away a certain percentage of their trade. Nearly every town where these catalogues enter is affected to a greater or lesser extent.

Thus awakened there have been some merchants who developed a determination that they would hold their own. They studied the question from all points of view. They ascertained just the exact reason why this trade was going away. They then planned their campaign against this modern trade evil and backed by determination they have succeeded in retaining the trade in their home towns.

Weak-hearted campaigns at long intervals such as some merchants conduct will not bring the desired result. The dealer having determined to overcome it, must keep continually at it until he has succeeded. He will not win either by denuniciation of the mail order houses and their methods. He need not call on his customers to show their loyalty to their town by dealing at home. While this may be a helpful method to combine with his regular campaign, and one in which the local paper will generally assist him, it is in itself of very little use. The merchant must appeal to the business instinct of his customers if he wishes to work a complete cure of the mail order habit. He must show them in facts and figures, dollars and cents, that they are gaining nothing by buying away from home. He must introduce up-to-date methods into his business—one of the main assets of the mail order houses in attracting trade.

MAINAINING A COMPLETE STOCK.

To not have what a customer asks for is bad business policy. If you wish a customer to continue to patronize your store you must have the goods they desire whenever they are asked for. It is of great value to you to create the impression among your customers that you can at all times supply their wants.

We find many merchants continually being out of some article which customers ask for. The result is that customers are not only convinced of the merchant's unprogressiveness but when they desire to be sure of securing an article, they will not visit that store but the one that never or seldom disappoints them.

The main reason for the grocer allowing his stock to run short is lack of system in his method. This cannot help but happen unless the merchant works out some method of guarding against it. The method to be used will vary with the size of the stock. For the ordinary grocery store a common want book in which lines which are running short may be recorded will probably be all required. The grocer must, however, at intervals, run over his stock and make a list of articles, stocks of which will soon need replenishing. This method will do much to overcome the difficulty in question. The dealer cannot rely on his memory or loose methods in this particular.

THE VALUE OF WINDOW DISPLAY.

A Winnipeg grocer the other day plainly demonstrated the value of the display window as a selling agent. He took a new grocery specialty which had just been received and made a neat display of it in one of his windows.

In the centre of the window was a well written show card pointing out the uses and advantages of the article shown. At the bottom of the card the price was given. As a result during the first day eleven persons came directly in and asked for the line shown without any comment. Many other customers entered and asked for further particulars which in some instances resulted in sales while in other cases customers were impressed but did not buy.

However, the grocer was well pleased with the immediate results, while it would no doubt also be productive of more business in the future.

Just another conclusive proof of the value to the merchant of his show window. It is, however, common knowledge that the show window itself is of little value unless it is given the necessary attention. It is one of the best and cheapest mediums of advertising, that the dealer has at hand. It allows him to reach customers whose attention he might otherwise not be able to attract. Therefore, he should take full advantage of it by keeping it trimmed in such a manner that it will bring the best results.

How this is to be done is of secondary importance. The main feature is that the dealer recognize the value of his window. Knowing this the real merchant will turn it to the best advantage.

SERVE CUSTOMERS FIRST.

A woman customer entered a grocery store the other day just as the clerk had perched himself on a step-ladder to arrange a shelf display. He had been called down from that position three times already to wait on customers and he was not in the best of humor when the fourth interrupted his work. He continued for perhaps a minute at the shelf while the customer waited and then condescended to descend to serve her with a greeting far from pleasant.

When a salsman is engaged in arranging a display, sweeping the floor, adding up a column of figures or some other similar work, it is hard for him to break away to wait on a customer. It is somewhat irritating at any rate, but if the salesman will remember that customers are of primary importance and all other work secondary, he will do so promptly and cheerfully.

The most important work in the store is the serving of customers and the selling of goods. It is the main object of the store to sell as much goods as possible and that should always be kept in view by the merchant and his clerks.

A Canadian grocer is still advertising specials for Labor Day. The ad. which appeared "last week" cannot fail to impress readers. Should Farmer Receive Cash for Produce?

An Important Question Dealt With—Writer Maintains This Should be Insisted Upon—How to Deal With Country Customer Who Brings in Poor Butter—The Value of Tact.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

One grocer's question was: "Is it good business policy to pay from one to two cents a dozen more for eggs than you can get for them in the market?"

This question arises from the old-fashioned notion of paying one price "in trade" and another price in cash—if, indeed, any cash be ever given. One successful grocer in my town, who is an ex-farmer, by the way, makes a boast that he "never gives any money for anything he buys from farmers!" His days of trading from the farm evidently ground into him pretty effectively the theory that farm produce is of one standard, on a par with groceries maybe, while money is different.

A Mistaken Conclusion.

The old theory was that the grocer made money on his groceries, so his profit was realized in trading groceries for produce. No farmer could see any justification for another profit going to the grocer—"All he does is pack the eggs and ship them, or hand them out to a city customer"—so the fallaceous idea became implanted that the grocer should pay full retail prices for produce—or a bit more—"in trade," thus actually handling the produce for nothing. Want of accurate knowledge of business rules, lack of logical reasoning, stress of fool competition between dealers, and the idea that "you cannot argue with your customers," all helped in establishing this mistaken conclusion.

There is no justice, nor good sense, nor any kind of "policy" about it. Buying produce is one distinct transaction; selling supplies to the producer is another; selling produce again to another consumer is a third. The grocer who performs any of these functions of service without being properly paid for his labor is not performing his duty to himself and therefore not to the producer or the consumer in question.

Conveys Wrong Idea.

There is another unfortunate feature about this. The fixing of two standards gives a fictitiously enhanced value to the farmers' produce and cheapens and discredits the grocers' goods and service. If the deal were evened up and the farmer were willing to pay us an extra price for such goods as he took "in trade," just for the pleasure of handling more money value, it would not be so bad; but he won't do that. Ask him 9c for your 8c package of soda or 14c for your 12½c raisins—just to be "liberal" both ways—and see how he takes it.

Pays Cash for All Produce.

My experience dates to 1878, long enough ago to have had plenty of contact with old-fashioned methods, and I never had any experience with that kind of "trade." The elder Johnson did not do business that way. But he was also a diplomat. He did not refuse to pay more in trade as a primary consideration. He simply argued to the farmer that what the farmer had to sell was just as much worth a price in cash as such goods as the wholesale grocer had to sell, or as Johnson had to sell, or as the dry goods merchant sold. His strong point was that the farmer was entitled to money and should never be compulsorily restricted to buying more groceries than he might need and perhaps going without dry goods or hardware because he must sell his produce. So he always paid cash—all cash. Then if the farmer wanted groceries, all right; he could buy them and pay our prices for them. The complete equity of the plan appealed to everybody so that, in the face of the then universally prevalent custom, we paid cash; and I have never done it any ather way.

Farmer Likes the Money.

This plan has the advantage that you buy your produce for the market price, even if that figure be lower than your neighbor offers "in trade." Cash appeals strongly to the farmer and, in case he demurs, saying that "Henderson pays more but of course he gives no money," you can easily suggest that maybe Henderson gets pretty good prices for the "trade" he uses in making payment. The plan will win because it is right and good logical business; and when the cash plan becomes universal, as it will eventually, they will all have forgotten that any "trading" custom ever prevailed.

Another question of similar trend is the following:

"Suppose two customers come in together each having butter to 'trade out;' one has butter worth not over 7c or 8c a pound, the other butter worth 25c; both are equally good customers to you; what will you do with them to avoid insult to the one with the poor butter?"

The answer is, treat each one on a strictly business basis. This does not mean that you shall blurt out your decision and hurt the 7c lady. No: it means that here is where you will exercise every bit of tact in your system. These women are Mrs. Comstock and Mrs. Stewart, both as you say good customers and both—though you do not say it—usually excellent butter makers. Mrs. Constock has 7c butter this week, instead of having 25c butter, as usual. When you discover the difficulty, try in some way to get finished with Mrs. Stewart first and get her out of the way.

may have to go the length of saying to her, in a friendly way, quietly, so that she alone will hear you: "Excuse me for serving Mrs. Stewart first this time; I have something special to talk with you about after she has gone out." Then, when finished with Mrs. Stewart, tell Mrs. Comstock, very privately, that something must have happened to her churning this week for her butter is 'way off—something you cannot understand—something so unusual that you knew she would want to know about it. Show her the butter and she, being a good judge, will acknowledge the trouble even though she may be sadly embarrassed to begin with.

Give Your Suggestions.

Your sincerity and the delicate way you have led up to the explanation will appeal to her woman's good sense even though her pride be hurt at first. Devote all your attention to her trouble with full sympathy; suggest what may occur to you as the possible cause—that her cream got unduly chilled, maybe; or that there was some exposure to sprouting potatoes or onions in her cellar of which she was not aware; or anything else that your own knowledge and smeller may suggest as a probable cause

Very likely she will quickly remember how it probably happened. At any rate, the trouble is there; the butter is badly below grade. She will probably be the one to ask whether you can use it at any price instead of waiting for you to make the suggestion. Then you can say how much you would like to give her but how little you can actually get for it; and then name your price. Right here you may note a troubled expression on her face which will plainly indicate that the price you name will not give her enough money to buy something she had intended to purchase that day. In that case you can come right in promptly with the offer to advance her any sum she needs to-day and she can make it up next time. This will relieve her anxiety and probably clear the atmosphere; and you will have the satisfaction of having handled the difficulty correctly. Chances are that she will find and remedy the trouble before she comes in again, and gradually she will pay back what you have advanced to her. I have had this sort of thing happen with the best butter makers; and it has sometimes been unaccountably repeated for two or three successive weeks; but I have never yielded the point that I must have good butter, for which I stand ready to pay the right price.

Should Not Accept Poor Butter.

If she happens to be a chronic poor butter maker, believe me, you want to be very businesslike and plain in your talk. So much and no more is what you can give. Bite it off short, though with uniform courtesy, and suggest remedies if they occur to you; but do not be imposed upon.

There is no more reason why you should accept second grade butter at first grade prices than why your customers should pay you 60c for your 35c tea—and a plain statement of that fact to some of them will do good all round and save a lot of time. No man ever got anywhere by being "easy," which never means, however, that any man should be a boor to anybody, customer or otherwise.

Wholesalers Selling to Consumers

So Again Say Members of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association—Not Alone to Large Institutions, but to Small Consumers Also—Complaints Against Hawking by Peddlers—Several Grocers Apply for Membership.

Toronto, Sept. 21 (Special).—Between side talks on reciprocity, the Toronto Retail Grocers managed to get in considerable business at their monthly meeting in the Temple Building on Monday night.

J. C. Bond thought that an effort should be put forth by the association not only to increase the membership but also the attendance at the meetings. "Not only do we want their names but also their presence. In order to do this we must get them started. Then we must have something in the manner of discussions and debates that will interest them so they will come again."

D. W. Clark advocated the same policy "We must do something at our meetings that will help each individual member. Something that will mean dollars and cents to them. There are a great many grocers seemingly too selfish, small and petty to co-operate with others in putting the grocery trade on a better footing. We must get away from this if we are to have the influence that we should have."

R. Davies complained of the manner in which the peddler was cutting into the grocer's trade. He thought that some restriction should be placed on them as to the hours they should have.

"Why can't we put a stop to this 'hawking?'" asked D. W. Clark. "Peddlers shouting their wares from early morn' until late at night! The city has put a stop to other similar noises, and why not to this one?"

"It is ridiculous for a city like Toronto to allow it," declared J. S. Bond. "It is very annonying to residents and is not allowed in other cities. Besides the grocers who contribute so much to the upkeep of the city should have some recognition in regard to protection from the peddler."

The yearly peddlers' licenses do not run out until next spring, and a strong effort will be made by the association to have some of their grievances in this regard remedied before the licenses are issued again.

Wholesalers Selling to Consumers.

The members complained bitterly of the manner in which wholesale fruit and grocery houses are overstepping their rights in selling direct to the consumer. The Yonge street fruit market seems to be one of the worst offenders according to reports at the meeting. "Why they will laugh at you when you reprove them for selling in this manner," declared one member.

"The wholesale grocers are getting just as bad," declared another. "Not only have they now secured the restaurant, hotel, college, hospital and boat trade but some are catering to the smaller consumer."

"Just the other day," spoke up one member, "a wholesale driver who came to my store had two brooms and a box of soap for one of my customers. Still they expect us to buy from them."

Two more members were admitted, and the following proposed: A. Corbett, King W.; W. A. Cooper, College; E. E. Martin, College; B. J. Hack, King; H. L. Coon, Christie; H. Worthington, Lippincott; Geo. McKee, College; E. T. Brittain, Lippincott; A. Codicinote, Bathurst; W. H. Soden, Queen W.; T. H. Dyment, College; R. Stockhall, Barton; Clubine & Malloy, Bloor.

DARK HOENY CROP REPORT.

The honey crop committee of the Ontario Bee Keepers' Association met recently to consider the crop reports and recommend prices for dark honey. The report sent out was as follows:—

"A good many reports were sent in, and from these the committee agree that the crop is about the same as 1910. Owing to the shortage in early fruit there has been less home canning than usual, which will undoubtedly result in an increased demand for our honey. The following prices are recommended for dark honey:

In lots of one ton and over, to wholesale grocers or commission houses	6½c-7c
In smaller quantities to the retail trade	7½c-8c
Retail direct to consumer ...	9c-10c

"In answer to our inquiry re prices realized for light honey, 100 per cent. report that the recommended prices have been obtained. A very large local trade is reported from many points. This should be encouraged as much as possible. The demand for honey will undoubtedly result in an increase in the trade of darker grades."

HINTS FOR DEALERS.

Before closing on Saturday night, talk over the results of the week's work with the clerk. Tell him how it compares with former weeks. Get him interested in it, and he will likely make an effort each week to beat former records.

Encourage your clerks to tell you of any difficulties which they encountered in serving customers. You can often give them pointers that will help them in overcoming these obstacles in the future.

If you have any department which is not paying a profit, tell the clerk about it. He may have some plan to overcome it, while at any rate, it will cause him to give more attention to that department.

Be careful in displaying goods in your window that they will not be damaged or the wrappers on packages spoiled..

Make the store attractive for the ladies. They rule your trade to a large extent and if you can interest them, you have gained a great deal.

Cleanliness in the handling of goods in one of the necessities of modern grocery business. See that counters, scales, knives and clerks' aprons are always clean.

ANOTHER LIBRARY VOTING CONTEST.

Hamilton, Ont., is the scene of another library voting contest. Only one retail grocer is interested in the scheme.

Simple Business Getters for the Grocer

Smaller Business Getters Which When Combined With the More Important Return a Good Dividend—Importance of Getting the Merchant's Name Before the Public — Other Simple Methods Which Do not Cost Much, But Which are Productive of Good Results.

By James D. Smith.

Advertising, window dressing and personal salesmanship are some of the important methods which the merchant may use to increase his business. These three, properly conducted have been proved to be methods that will bring results, but there are many smaller business getters which if combined with the larger and more important, will return a good dividend on the amount expended on them, helping a great deal in expanding the amounts in the sales column of the merchant's books.

It is well that the merchant's name be well known in the homes into which he wishes to put his goods. Any manner in which the merchant's name will be made well known among the public is of value. The merchant's name coupled with the reputation of good goods and fair prices well advertised among present and prospective customers is something to be desired. Of course the expenditure of large amounts of money in direct advertising may bring about this result but the ones which we wish to consider now are the smaller and less expensive ways of attaining this.

Keeping Name Before Public.

There are still to be found throughout the country a great many dealers who have no name plate about the store to denote who the owner of that business may be. This should be otherwise. The proprietor's name should have a position of prominence open to the view of passers-by. The name being brought before the people impresses it upon their mind. A simple sign across the store front above the window, on the awning, the window or the blind is all that is required and will be of great value. If it is placed upon the window, it is desirable that it should be in such a position that it will not interfere with the view of the display in any manner. It may be placed above the line of vision or in neat letters at one side. It is well not to destroy the effect of such a sign by the addition of too large a description of lines carried. Signs have been seen which read: "John Jones, dealer in staple groceries, teas, coffee, fish and fruits," when a simple sign, "John Jones, grocer," would have meant just as much.

If one side of your building is open to public view, it is an excellent place on which to place your name and goods handled. Then the name on the delivery rig is another method of giving prominence to it, and is not a stationary but a traveling advertisement. There are many merchants who have a stamp for placing their name upon paper bags and parcels sent out. There is only one objection to this and it is that customers carrying a parcel do not want it covered with advertising matter. However, no fault could be found with a small ad. upon the bag or package. Advertisements upon fans, rulers, etc., all have their value, but the merchant before investing wants to consider if the results will be large enough to warrant the expenditure.

Signboards in Country Districts.

In farming communities another method of advertising that has been used to good advantage by the merchant is the sign on mile boards along the roads leading to the town. These are brought to the view of the farmer while driving into town to make his purchases. Inscriptions on these vary. One form is "Two miles to John Jones for groceries," while another form is "One mile to ———," adding the name of the town, with the grocer's name in small letters at the bottom to show who erected it. With mile boards, it is well to take care to have the distances marked off accurately, as customers would not have the same degree of confidence in you if they found the distances were not correct.

How a Blackboard May be Used.

Many dealers have blackboards which are placed at the front of the store and upon these, announcements of new goods arriving, goods with special prices, etc., may be made. Care should be taken with the writing of these announcements so that they will present an attractive appearance. A grocer in a United States town who has a covered delivery rig instead of the usual name on the back of the wagon has a blackboard upon which he places special announcements, and with the wagon constantly on the move, he has a valuable traveling advertisement. This scheme may be carried out by any dealer for if he has not a covered rig, there is always some portion of the frame on which such a blackboard could be placed.

A British Columbia merchant has an advertisement printed and enclosed in a frame and these he places in the hotels so that visitors if wishing to make any purchases will know where to go. Such an advertisement would be an excellent manner for a merchant in a town where tourists visit, to advertise his business.

Side Lines Develop Trade.

Sidelines may also be used to good advantage by the merchant as trade attractions. For the summer months an ice cream fountain in connection with the store is an excellent side line and besides the extra amount of trade that it brings to the store, if properly managed it also gives the dealer a good profit itself. Of course all merchants are not in a position or so situated as to make it profitable enough to install a fountain, but there are many other side lines which may be taken on, such as confectionery, fruit, provisions, plants, etc.

Some merchants just take one brand or line and make a specialty of it. Grocers have been known to help their trade by handling a good bread, butter, eggs, tea or coffee and giving special attention to it. Quality in these articles has to be first consideration as customers will not be held unless the goods are superior. But merchants who have followed out this course say that they hold some customer's trade because they are so well pleased with the coffee, tea or whatever the line may be that that store give prominence too. In the farming communities flour is an excellent article to make a specialty of because the farmer's wife generally bakes her own bread, and in every case they want the best flour to be obtained and the grocer who can supply that is likely to secure a large portion of their other trade also.

Personal Letters.

Letters to customers is another one of the smaller trade getters of value. If you have a bookkeeper, she can spend her spare moments in this work. These letters are an excellent thing for holding present customers and also for attracting prospective ones. A personal letter now and again draws them closer to the store as they realize that the merchant is taking some interest in them.

While on the subject of the smaller business getters which involve but little expense, it would be well to say something in regard to service afforded patrons of the store. Little simple acts performed by the salesman are appreciated by customers and binds them closer to the store. They are things that cost very little but which bring good returns.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—The elections have undoubtedly affected the grocery business in many respects and trade is quieter than it would have been at this season. Still, wholesalers report that their worst fears have not been realized and that business is better than they had really expected. There has not only been a political turmoil of late, but economically there has been spirited action. Sugar, molasses and rice, three staples, have been advancing in price, and in almost every direction one looks in grocery circles there is strength, and a tone of firmness. Even this week it is reported that brooms have been advanced by ten per cent. This gradual movement toward higher prices seem, to come directly from a world-wide gap between production. Canada is not alone by any means. In the United States the situation is even keener, in England during the past year there has been a movement toward higher wages for workmen—an actual necessity with the cost of living higher—and in France there have been riots as the result of advanced prices for foodstuffs. People have been drawn to the cities, while the farm hands have in many places lost in population. England's cry of "back to the land" seems applicable to the majority of her neighbors and friendly allies.

Sugar.—At the time of writing, jobbers were looking for another announcement that sugar had advanced again. With the New York market at 7½c and local manufacturers behind in their deliveries the market has certainly been strong and no immediate influence is apparent that might relieve the situation. Orders have been coming in rather freely in spite of prices and jobbers state that manufacturers are temporarily embarrased, that is, they are behind in their supplies of sugar for immediate shipment. One order that had been given on Thursday last had not been delivered on Tuesday afternoon. This is only one illustration. In the United States a number of refineries are out of the market and others are selling for forward shipment only. Sugar must have been profitable to those of the trade who made their purchases with the first signs of an advance. As regards the future it is impossible to give an idea of what may be expected. Across the border they speak of relief coming after October passes from their own beets and the Cuban crop. It is also difficult to estimate whether the price of sugar has proved a deterrent to the housekeeper in her preserving operations. It would be interesting to know just what the situation is, for it is bound to have an influence upon canned goods if preserving has been light. The fruit crops, however, have been good, the demand for sugar is steady and it looks as if there is an average amount of preserving being done. In the meantime, further advances in sugar are to be expected if the existing conditions are maintained. Jamaica crystals are quoted at 5½c and Barbadoes at 5c, locally.

Syrups and Molasses.—Last week, emphasis was laid upon the firmness of the molasses market in sympathy with the high price of sugar, and the possibility of an advance within the near future. It is now announced that choice and fancy molasses have been advanced one and two cents a pound respectively, and that at the new figures the market is firm. It is an evidence of the general situation the end of which is by no means yet in sight. Sugar is likely to advance further, and naturally molasses will hold its ground, especially in the fancy grades.

Rice.—While there has been a comparatively big jump of late in the price of rice, still it is not altogether unlikely that still more may be heard in that regard. The market is firm, there is a steady demand and the conditions that have given rice the new strength are unchanged. Jobbers claim that there is the probability of prices going still higher. The prices quoted are for Montreal and district and the others for outside territory, the latter being the lower of the two.

Brooms.—An advance in the price of brooms is quoted this week as the result of the short crop of broom corn in the United States. One manufacturer stated that prices would not be advanced while his present stock of brooms remained, but with the new make there would surely be an advance. The corn itself is higher and jobbers are quoting brooms at a higher price; in fact, the advance is said to be a 10 per cent. one. At this rate it would be difficult to look around a retail store and find an article that has not joined the "aviators" in prices.

Cotton Twine.—Jobbers announce a reduction in the price of cotton twine. It is down one cent per pound with quotations as follows: three-ply, 22½ to 23½c; four-ply, 26½ to 27½c.

Beans.—White pea beans are in limited supply and the new crop which will soon be on the market is not very heavy. The price quoted is from $2.35 to $2.40 a bushel.

Canned Goods.

MONTREAL.—Cars of new tomatoes have been received by the jobbers but still there is no announcement as to the new price. Those who had stocks of tomatoes of course sold them at the present figures, the incoming goods having had but little effect on the market. It is not known whether all the jobbers have received first shipments of their orders or not. The new prices, however, soon will be made known. No one has any definite idea to offer as to what the prices are likely to be. There is a steady spot demand at former figures. Crystal wax and refugee beans are quoted at $1.25 by some jobbers, the advance amounting to 25 per cent.

TORONTO.—There is certainly no tendency towards easiness in canned goods. On the other hand, there is marked strength in a number of lines and in those particular lines there has been a gradual stiffening in price. The shortage in the deliveries of a number of lines and the belief that present supplies are in a number of cases far from large enough to meet the demand for the coming year, is one of the main reasons for the strength. Then, again, it is generally realized that consumption of canned goods is showing a yearly gain. "Consumption has changed a great deal from what it was ten years ago," said one dealer. "At that time there was a marked decrease in demand during June, July, August and September, but in late years, there has been a good demand all summer. This demand is not alone from the northern districts, but even in the city is appreciable in volume."

Black raspberries, both in heavy syrup and preserved, are held generally at 10 cents higher. Pineapple in 2's, sliced, grated and whole, is quoted at $2.25 per dozen. The tendency is also towards strength in lower priced peas and beans as well as strawberries, all of which were short this year.

Some new pack blueberries are beginning to arrive on the market. Delivery will only be 40 per cent. of orders. It was pointed out some time ago when they were lower in price that they were a good buy. In 2's they are quoted at $1.45 and in gallons at $5.50.

New pack tomatoes and corn are on the market, and as canners have not as yet set any prices, they are held at all values. While a number of dealers quoted $1.50 per dozen, others offered them as low as $1.20. Such is the state of the market at the moment. Opening prices are, however, expected at any time which will settle the question of values. Dealers are wondering what the price will be. It is general opinion that they at least will not be below last year's opening price, namely, $1.15. One wholesaler stated that one canner had advised him that he did not expect to deliver more than 60 per cent.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Brooms.—Higher.

Tomatoes.—Wide range of prices.

Canned Goods.—General strength.

Pineapples.—Held at $2.25.

Pot Barley.—Higher.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Grocery trade according to reports of wholesalers is quite favorable in volume. The elections are no doubt creating a great deal of interest throughout the province this week, but are apparently having little effect on general business. Collections are reported fair.

General strength is still prevalent in groceries, with a number of staples included. In this particular might be mentioned sugar, tea, dried fruits, rice and canned goods. The latter is showing some special signs of strength, the result of short packs this year in a number of lines and the ever increasing consumption.

Drought this year in all parts of the world has worked for higher prices on numerous lines which the grocer handles. In this regard, sugar has been most prominent, the drought in Europe working serious damage to the beet crop. Then in the far East rice prices have been boosted on this account, while the production of tea in India has also been affected. The pack of Belgium and French peas has also been seriously shortened, while in our own country we have examples in the general short packs of early fruits and vegetables.

Sugar.—No further change has taken place in sugar in the past week, quotations ruling at $5.95 per cwt. The market is still strong and of a waiting nature, the market being inclined to await more definite reports regarding the probable shortage of beets in Europe. There have been various estimates of the probable outturn, one being as low as 5,865,000 tons as compared with 8,160,000 last year. Licht, in his first expert crop estimate, sets it, if favorable weather continues from the first of September, at a maximum of 7,300,000 tons, or if weather conditions prove unfavorable at a minimum of 6,250,000 tons. With this wide range, dealers are content to wait for the moment until something more definite can be ascertained.

While the raw market eased off slightly at the end of last week, due probably to some taking of profits, it has again reacted and is steady at 18s. 3d. for prompt beets. There is a scarcity of nearby sugar and New York refiners are behind in deliveries. When they go into the market it will likely cause further stiffening in price.

There is, at present, a brisk general demand for sugar, and supplies for a time were none too large. The consumption is quite large on account of the plenitude of preserving fruits.

Syrups and Molasses.—With the high sugar market there is naturally strength in kindred lines. While prices for molasses have been generally advanced on other markets, no change has taken place here although firmness is not lacking. Trade, however, in this line is none too brisk just at the moment.

There is also a firmness noticeable in compound maple syrups, manufacturers claiming that with the high cost of material the margin of profit is clipped down.

The fall trade in table syrups has set in and from now on should be appreciable in volume. Consumption with cooler weather will be larger.

Dried Fruits.—New crop of dried fruits will be arriving on the market shortly. Raisins and currants were shipped at the end of August and should arrive at any time. Prunes and other California fruits are starting to be shipped but none have arrived here as yet. Most lines will be badly needed when they arrive as stocks generally are extremely low.

The markets on dried fruits show no signs of weakening. Prunes which are holding their own are turning out rather disappointing as far as the larger sizes are concerned. The fruit is showing a much higher percentage of shrinkage that is usual and the majority are grading down to 60 to 70's or smaller so that 30 to 40's, 40 to 50's and even 50 to 60's will be scarce.

Raisins, both Valencia and Sultanas, are stiffening up. Sultanas especially, have been moving upward, an advance of from 7 to 10 shillings being reported by one dealer. The crop this year is estimated at from 33,000 to 35,000 tons as compared with 25,500 last year, 59,700 in 1909, and 56,400 tons in 1908. With last year's short crop, the markets are now bare of stocks, thus lending strength to the situation.

Currants continue steady in price.

Tea.—The market locally as well as abroad continues in a position of steadiness. Trade on the whole is moderate in volume. A report from Columbo, Ceylon, says: "Supplies continue to come forward slowly and the crop for August when compiled is not expected to be a large one. Latest reports from the Estates are somewhat varied, some of them report good growing weather, while on others flush has been stopped by the strong wind that has prevailed. Under the circumstances, with supplies from India only about normal and a smaller crop in Ceylon, we can see no prospects of lower prices."

Coffee.—Coffee is steady at present quotations. Coffee options on the New York market are strong. Trade according to local dealers continues good and a fact on which many dealers put emphasis is that retailers are buying higher grades of coffee. This may be partly responsible to the fact that higher grade coffees have not been advancing with the rapidity of the lower grades.

Spices.—Prices are unchanged but steady. General trade is good. The pickling season is now at its height and while most retailers were supplied earlier in the season with their main stocks, repeat orders are appreciable in volume. A report from New York on spices says: "Prices are generally higher and likely to be higher yet on short crops and on broad and steady consuming absorption by all the markets of the world. In pepper, nearly every grade has experienced a shortage in production this year, the total falling off being very material and likely to affect prices for a long time to come. In cloves, the incoming crop is very moderate in size, and very large sales have been made against it, the world's supply having been nearly wiped out by the consuming needs so far this year. In nutmegs, production has seriously diminished and visible supplies the world over have greatly decreased."

Rice and Tapioca.—Although lower grades of rice have advanced 50 cents per cwt. during the past month, there is fact that the whole country is intensely still considerable strength in the market. Not alone is the short production confined to India, but a shortage of a greater or less extent is reported from a number of the rice-producing districts in the East. The tendency will naturally be to work for a certain amount of strength in the higher grades also.

Pot barley is another line which has been advancing in price of late, an advance of 75 cents per barrel being quoted by one miller. Millers are unable to get supplies for the mill.

Evaporated Apples.—There have been some arrivals of new "evaps" on the market although in rather limited quantities. The yield of apples in Ontario is larger than last year but on the other hand this will have a tendency to decrease the amount used for evaporating purposes. Prices range from 11 to 12 cents.

Macaroni.—As suggested some time ago, macaroni manufactured in Italy is higher in price, one dealer quoting a 6 cent advance on 22 pound boxes. The advance is due to higher Russian wheat which is used in its manufacture.

Brooms.—In some quarters, there appears to be some little excitement in the broom market of late. In some cases prices have been advanced 50 cents per dozen by wholesalers who say that a number of manufacturers have withdrawn prices, while others are quoting their product at an advance. One broom manufacturer was inclined to think that perhaps the excitement was a little greater than warranted. "The corn crop is just coming in and, of course, the market is unsettled," he said. "Prices fluctuate from day to day and the exact position is hard to ascertain. We have not as yet raised prices. No doubt, however, there is cause for some strength."

Winnipeg, Sept. 21.—In spite of the worked up over the elections, and that reciprocity is the chief argument of discussion, trade in all grocery lines continues active. The present period is one which needs careful planning.

Harvest is completed in many sections and threshing is general. Estimates from various sources continue to be published and so far the consensus of opinion is that a crop of just twice the size as that realized last year will be harvested this fall.

The first shipment of evaporated apples is expected next week. The opening prices are high and will sell around 11 to 11½ cents. It is not expected that these will be maintained, but coming on a bare market it is only natural that the price of the early stuff should be high. Confidential reports from Ontario show that the crop is from 50 to 75 per cent. higher than last year. So it's only logical to expect lower prices as soon as any quantity appears on the market.

New canned tomatoes arrived on the market this week, and one wholesaler who has lately returned from a trip east claims that pretty nearly a full pack will be received this year. The prospects for corn also look bright owing to the good crop to the south. New prices have not been named as yet but are expected shortly.

Sugar.—The market remains firm, and in spite of high prices trade continues to be active. Stocks held are of good size as jobbers have maintained their usual supply on hand in spite of the high price prevailing.

Beans.—The situation in beans appears to be a critical one. Prices during the last six weeks have been advancing steadily on the supposed reports of shortage of crops in Ontario. Reports, however, would indicate that this was not exactly the cause, but that Ontario bean brokers simply refused to sell. One large wholesaler in an interview on the bean situation said: "I saw a confidential wire from one of the largest bean brokers in Ontario yesterday. His representative here wired for information and the reply was to the effect that large stocks were on hand but he refused to sell till the elections were over."

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 20.—The present week is being looked forward to by local dealers, as one which does not hold much encouragement for a brisk business, owing to the minds of the people being taken up considerably with election matters. While the elections are not to be held until the latter part of the week the whole period is expected to be dull. Even now and during the past week, there has been a falling off in trade.

The price of sugar still continues to soar. As a result of this advance molasses has within a short time gone up five cents on the local market. Advices received here are to the effect that the home sugar crop in the United States is quite promising, and that the abundance will mean an easier tone in sugar. The stock of molasses is said to be small, however, and this is especially so as regards fancy quality, so that high prices are looked for.

An advance was noted in cornmeal this week, a difference of ten cents being registered. As was predicted some weeks ago the cost of canned salmon has jumped noticeably, and indications are that it will go still higher, reports here being to the effect that the pack is not sufficiently large to cause a reduction in price.

In the country market while the farmers have not been coming to the city with large quantities of farm produce, many of them being interested in the result and the campaign connected with the elections. However, there is an abundance of fine vegetables on hand, and good prices prevail. Eggs and butter are in good demand, and are fairly stiff in price.

Fresh Tea Is All Important

—it is the life of your trade. Any tea kept in stock six months loses one cent per pound in value, after one year two cents, after two years it is positively unfit for sale.

Tea is at its best the day it is fired in the gardens, and although in sealed metal packages, it keeps very much better than in bulk, still it loses flavor. We do our utmost to have "SALADA" reach the consumer in all its garden freshness and fine flavor, and ask the co-operation of every retailer in our efforts to serve the public with FRESH tea. Our advice is to buy not more than three months' supply at a time. Eighteen years' experience proves to us that this is vitally important.

If any retailer—anywhere—at any time, has any "SALADA" in stock that is over six months old, ship it back to us (freight collect) and we will refund the full purchase price. We back up our belief in the paramount importance of FRESH tea by this sweepng guarantee.

40 CENT TEA

There is a steady increase in the sale of 40c. Red Rose Tea. I find many merchants are now selling very much more than they did formerly.

Generally, I believe, these increases have been due to merchants trying the 40c. tea in their own homes. They have found on trying it that it was just as economical to use and distinctly finer in quality, so they have recommended it with the result that they are now making much more profit for themselves and giving their customers better satisfaction.

It is the tea that was served at the Toronto Exhibition and was so greatly liked.

If you will try a package yourself, I feel sure you will recommend and sell much more of it.

The Benefit of Retail Organization

Secretary of Vancouver Island's Merchants' Association Gives His Opinion of the Advantages of Associations

In a recent issue of The Grocer an account of the British Columbia Merchants' Asociation convention was given. At that time some of the addresses were not available, but have since been received. The following was in part the address of the secretary of Vancouver Island and will be read with interest by all connected with association work:—

"In the twelve months since we last met great progress has been noticed in the growth of our cities and the growth of business and trades. With this growth we find increasing use of improved methods and appliances in carrying on business, and the necessity arises for improved methods in sifting information (usually supplied by the applicant for credit). collecting and compiling data for correct ratings for credit, which the busy, aggressive merchant finds he cannot possibly attend to. What is his remedy for this and many other difficulties, such as, seeing that the manufacturer maintains the selling price which he quoted and by which he induced you to buy his goods, but often, before he has scarce left the city, some one who thinks he will catch the crowd, and get ahead of his competitors, cuts that price and leaves you with an article which does not pay to handle, and takes up the space in your stores which you can so ill afford to spare for another "dead" line.

"The only efficient remedy is organization; meeting and consulting on difficulties as they arise; keeping an up-to-date rating list, notifying your members of the dead beats found locally or arriving from other places; looking after the manufacturer (especially those introducing new articles) and insist on their maintaining prices.

"In the trade journals you will continually find reports of associations being formed, and chiefly for the objects just mentioned. You may be quite sure that those merchants have heard of some of the advantages of associations, and have felt the need of them; we can safely assume that they are progressive men living in growing and progressive cities. By the time the next annual convention is held we may fully expect to double our number of affiliated associations.

"There seems a difficulty in some associations to keep up the interest in the meetings; many ask, when reminded of a meeting, "anything special?" "What's new," etc. Some associations have tried "discussions on special subjects," some have offered premiums among those attending. Personally, I think the members should look upon attending meetings as a necessary duty. If nothing of importance is before them they can exchange views on many trade subjects; closer friendly relations frequently follow, and the finding others at a meeting often induces "one more" to look in. Grocers, like other fellows, love congenial company."

Smoked and Cooked Meats are Easier

Demand for These Lines is Less Brisk—Live Hogs are Lower in Price—Supplies are Larger—English Bacon Market is Less Firm—Heavier Pork is Steady in Price—Butter and Eggs Unchanged—Cheese Continues High.

The trend of live hog prices has again been downward, lower figures being general throughout Canadian markets. The lower prices of the past few weeks are ascribed to the less firm cables from the English bacon market while it is also true that live hogs are wich the arrival of fall in better supply. In sympathy with lower values for porkers there is a less firm feeling in certain lines of provisions. The demand for smoked meats and cooked hams is less brisk contributing to some extent to the easiness in three lines. On the other hand heavier pork is in better demand and firmer. Trade on the whole is on an appreciable scale and considered favorable for the season.

Butter prices in general show no particular change. Demand is fair while production continues quite large. Otherwise there are no features. Eggs show a tendency to strength, the result of decreased receipts and a good demand. There is a good demand for strictly new laid.

Cheese still maintains its position of strength and is at the highest point for the season it has been for many years. Ever since early in June the price has been steadily ascending. At first the advance was due to the decreased production in Canada on account of the dry weather but later on the demand from England entered into the situation. The drought in that country has interfered quite seriously with production with a resulting demand from Canada.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—The changes predicted in last week's issue have become a fact. Pure lard is down ¼ cent and both live and dressed hogs are easier owing to the influence of the Toronto market, so it is said. Smoked hams are down ½ cent but several lines of pork are higher. Reports show that there is a fair demand

Provisions.—The general tone of the provision market is slightly easier, the result of a total decrease of 80 cents in live hog prices during the past three weeks. Smoked hams have met with a general reduction of 1 cent per pound while cooked hams, the demand for which has eased off, are lower at 25 to 27 cents. Long, clear bacon tends, however, in the opposite direction, prices ruling at 12 to 13 cents. Lard also seems to maintain a steady position.

Live hogs at country points range around $6.90 per cwt. the lower price being ascribed to slightly decreased cables for bacon and the fact that supplies are now more plentiful. Dressed hogs are lower also, the result of the decrease in hogs on the hoof.

SCALE INSPECTION.

Editor, Canadian Grocer,—I like Mr. Wotton's letter in last week's Grocer re Scale Inspection. Why under the sun the grocer should pay $4 or $5 every year to have his scales inspected and the public who are so directly interested not pay a cent of it, I don't see. I believe in the United States, scale inspectors only visit you when a complaint is lodged. It is certainly unreasonable for the grocer to pay yearly whether his scales need adjusting or not.

The Scarcity of the Good Clerk

Montreal Dealers Discuss This Important Question—Much of the Blame Attributed to Lack of Interest Taken by the Proprietor in His Employes—Length of Working Hours.

Montreal, Sept. 24—(Special)—Labor Day was a holiday for the average workman, but among those who were at their accustomed places were the grocery clerks. The previous Saturday afternoon and evening found them toiling, while large numbers of young men in other positions ceased work at 1 p.m. that day.

This bears out what a prominent Montreal grocer said recently in discussing the various reasons for the present scarcity of good clerks. In his opinion, large numbers of young men who might follow the grocery business were attracted to other branches of work because of the shorter hours and better pay. The young man of the present generation, he continued, saw all around him others who had the Saturday afternoon to themselves, and it was not to be wondered that the main body demanded the same short hours.

Another point he dwelt upon was that clerks usually begin at low salaries, and it is many years before they are earning what the present generation calls "big money." Companions who follow some other occupation soon forge ahead of them in this regard, although ultimately the grocery business offers a good living under agreeable conditions. It is not every young man who considers the question in this light, but those who are working away, preparing themselves for the future, are bound to be rewarded.

One Consolation.

From the standpoint of the clerk there is the consolation of knowing that the trade is not overcrowded with brilliant competitors. In this respect, the grocery business makes up for some of its other deficiencies, but to profit by this condition the clerk must be capable. This of course applies to every occupation, but there are reasons why it should be borne in mind by the ambitious clerk. One of these reasons, and it is almost entirely overlooked, is the fact that grocers do not instruct their clerks in the details of the business. They are not impressed with the important points, and from experience the writer believes that the employer depends too much upon his clerk learning by experience business facts which should be presented to him in his first lessons.

The Usual Way.

Some grocers imagine that as soon as a new clerk is familiar with prices, he is ready to go behind the counter. This deals with the ordinary grocery store where the clerk is receiving his grocery education. In the larger stores he is expected to be already schooled in the trade, and considers himself a graduate of the smaller store. In the latter store the clerk learns the prices, takes orders, fills them, and perhaps unconsciously learns the elements of salesmanship. But does he learn all the "ins and outs" about the goods he is selling?

Travelers who posses scraps of this knowledge impart it to the proprietor, but the clerk does not hear it. And then with the little details of marking goods, the keeping of books, the arranging of selling prices, the taking of stock, the question of profits, discounts, and so on, how does the clerk learn these things? They are mentioned to show that he has a great deal to learn before he can call himself a grocer, and many of those who are employers are deficient in many respects.

To sum up, why then is there a scarcity of good clerks to-day?

1. During their apprenticeship many have been engaged with grocers who do not know the business.

2. They have not realized what the grocery business demands of them.

3. The hours are longer and wages less than in other occupations.

Shortcomings.

What the average clerk in the average Canadian grocery store has to contend with:—

1. An employer who thinks he knows all about the business, but doesn't.

2. Who therefore is incapable of instructing his clerk in the present day methods of the grocery business.

3. Who is, therefore, not as interested in how he carries on his business as he should be.

4. And who, therefore, does not take the proper interest in his clerks.

Confectionery Trade on the Increase

Good Fall Trade is Being Felt—Consumption is Showing Substantial Increase—High Sugar Market Stiffens Prices Somewhat—Flour and Cereals Are Steady in Tone—Normal Volume of Trade is in Evidence.

With the extremely high sugar market now prevailing it is only natural that a stiffening in the price of confectionery would result. Slight upward movements in the quotations for certain lines have taken place.

Manufacturers state that there is not only a good trade in evidence at present in this line but that the consumption is showing a substantial increase. Grocers who have not now a confectionery department should consider the advisability of adding one, while those dealers already handling confections should put forth an effort to secure their share of the increase in sales.

Just at the present there is a general steadiness in flour and cereals. Flour is practically in the same position as last week, wheat quotations having varied little. The same strength is apparent in rolled oats prices of the raw material with the tardy movement of new crop, being well maintained. Corn meal and rolled wheat are on a steady basis.

Threshing delay, due to wet weather in the Canadian North-West, brought out some signs of strength at the beginning of the week, but was counteracted by a big increase in the United States visible supply of wheat. The movement of wheat has so far been very tardy.

Canadian markets will remain somewhat unsettled until the reciprocity issue has been decided. Meanwhile, interest in the elections is apparently having little or no effect on trade.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—The market is steady and unchanged. Naturally, election talk is a big figure this week. Demand has not been materially interrupted, however, and when the excitement passes over it will be found that the depreciation of business was comparatively slight.

Flour.—The flour market shows no particular change from a week ago. Wheat quotations are practically unchanged. Trade is on a moderate scale.

In Ontario, with an increased acreage of 94,019 acres, the Ontario Bureau of Industries estimates that the yield of wheat will only be 17,000,000 bushels as compared with 19,837,000 last year. The production of oats is estimated at 88,261,000 bushels as compared with 102,084,000 last year.

FOREIGN MARKET NOTES.

The coming crop of Florida oranges will exceed 4,500,000 boxes according to one estimate.

Allspice is higher in Jamaica. One report places the total of the new crop at 40,000 bags as against a normal crop of 90,000 bags.

Reports say that the catch of sardines in France has been poor so far this season, and while in Portugal fishing is better, the fish are larger.

Prospects are good for olive oil this year so far and if all goes well, there should be a good yield this season. However, much may happen before harvest.

It is the general opinion among oyster growers and shippers that the supply of oysters this year will fall short of demand, although they will be of good quality.

At the annual meeting of the American Cranberry Growers' Association, the crop was reported to be equal in quantity to that of last year. It is expected by growers that about a half million barrels will be sent to market. Harvesting will begin in September, and prices are expected to be moderate.

If you expect to make a success of your business, the time to start is right now.

Dust Does Damage to Niagara Fruits

So Fruit Growers Declare—Blame U.S. Automobiles—County Councils Make Move to Oil the Roads—Would Like Government Aid, Since Government Collects From These Motorists.

Farmers, those who don't farm will say, are never satisfied. If it rains the country is getting too much rain. If it is sunshiny it is too dry. But the fruit farmers of the Niagara Peninsula have other troubles now—troubles which keep them "from broodin' over" the weather. They have the automobile as a daily companion. They have the dust stirred by the automobile. They have dust on their fruit, and to prevent this settling in, destroying quantities, they have lately undertaken experiments in oiling the county roads.

Speeders the Trouble Makers.

The road from Hamilton to Niagara, as every one living in that neighborhood knows, is one of the best for motoring in the country. Along it many Canadian automobilists travel, and citizens of the United States in the hundreds use it. It is with these visitors from the other side that the fruit farmers of the Niagara peninsula have the great quarrel. They act as if the highways had been made a race track for them, say the growers. They stir up the dust so that it floats in the air for hundreds of yards. It settles on the trees and does a great deal to depreciate the value of the fruit.

Samuel Culp, of Beamsville, Ont., one of the large fruit buyers, says that the speeding automobile is especially dangerous in the spring. Already it has been found that the dust settling upon the blossoms prevents their maturing properly. Sometimes the buds die. Sometimes the fruit is dwarfed. Sometimes it is blighted. The farmers have no hesitation in laying the blame for this upon the motorists.

Blame U.S. Autos.

They are not unreasonable men, these Niagara Peninsula farmers. They do not hope or particularly desire to exclude automobiles from the roadway. But they do hold that exceptional speeding should be stopped—that the law should be kept.

"It is the U.S. motorists who run their cars at 30 to 40 miles an hour who do the damage," stated Mr. Culp.

The harm being done to the country by the automobile-raised dust has been considered at meetings of the county and township councils. As a result, experiments have been tried this year in oiling the roads. A large strip to the west of Grimsby has been thus treated, and the dust on the roadbed between Beamsville and Grimsby is kept down in the same way.

Want Government Aid.

But the expense of oiling miles of road is great. The fruit growers feel they should get assistance in bearing this. A government grant, some of them believe, they should have. As they say: "The Government gets money from these automobile owners while we get dust. The government should vote us part of the tax to help us keep the dust down."

This problem of the Niagara Peninsula farmer is of interest to many of the grocers. If the dust does cause a deterioration in the fruit they will suffer. Some of them indeed have already suffered, by having their shipments of fruit come to them covered with the dust of the road. That, at least, spoiled the look of the fruit, and fruit is one of those things which must look well in order to sell well.

Whenever possible, let experience, not theory, be your guide.

Don't be afraid to fight against odds. The things worth having are hardest to get.

Domestic Fruits at Pinnacle of Demand

Big Trade is Being Done in Late Fruits for Preserving Purposes—Height of Season Has Been Reached in Peaches—Plums Are on the Wane—Pears Arriving Freely While Grapes Are in Good Supply.

The height of the season for peaches has been reached and from now on it is generally expected that supplies will become less plentiful. Some excellent stock of late varieties is now appearing on the markets. Plums are on the wane, although what there is are of good quality. Grapes are at the pinnacle of demand, while pears are being taken up fairly well. Dealers are doing a big business in domestic fruits for preserving purposes as is shown by the big trade in sugar at the present time.

Sugar melons are in good supply and are meeting with a fair demand. There is no doubt the grocer could work an improvement in this branch of his trade if he would do a little educative work, as there are a good many of the consuming public not acquainted fully with the sugar melon and its qualities.

Trade in oranges is quiet, the result of the rush of domestic lines, while none too favorable weather is responsible for a lack of briskness in lemons.

A recent report from Florida estimates the citrus fruit crop for 1911-12 at being over one million boxes greater than last season with the fruit uniform in size and of better color. The crop of grape fruit will be smaller than that of last year, but the orange crop will raise the average so that the entire citrus output will total about 25 per cent more than last season and will probably consist of over five million boxes.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Canadian fall fruits are more than ever prominent this week and home-grown peaches, pears and plums are attracting a large trade. There is also a heavy demand for grapes and apples, and the general fruit trade is heavy just now. Lemons are a little easier in price with the demand lighter with the coming of cooler weather. There is a fair trade in grapefruit, oranges and pines.

Vegetables.—New celery is moving freely. Sweet potatoes are in fair demand and are lower in price and tomatoes are quoted at a normal figure. Spanish onions are higher in price. There is a big trade in new vegetables for the grocer whose fruit and vegetable trade just now is an appreciable part of the trade.

Green Fruits.—Brisk business is still in evidence on the local fruit market. the domestic fruit trade is over. Plums are noticeably in smaller supply, although the quality of late arrivals is excellent. The same thing is true in regard to peaches, although there are still fair supplies at prices at least no higher. More interest is being directed to grapes, dealers now beginning to push them strongly for preserving purposes. This fruit will be available for a considerable period yet.

"Tomatoes are a glut on the market," declared one dealer, and indeed that seems true. In the first place, there is an abundance of supplies, while in the rush of other fruits, interest is being detracted from them.

A good trade is being done in sugar melons which are plentiful and lower in price. There are no special features to oranges or lemons just now.

Cape Cod cranberries are on the market at $8.50 per barrel.

Vegetables.—There is no particular briskness in general vegetables just now. A fair trade is in evidence. Canadian cabbage are quoted at 75 to $1 per dozen. Egg plant is lower at 20 to 25 cents per basket. Spanish onion arrivals which were interrupted for a time by the strike in England, as they come via Liverpool, are again on the market. They are a good sound stock and are quoted at $3 to $3.25 per case.

Potatoes are slightly lower again at $1.25 to $1.30 per bag. There continues fairly large shipments of New Brunswick stock. Ontario potatoes are reported as being generally small as yet and not fully matured. The crop in no section seems particularly good although prices are just at this time towards easiness. The dry and hot weather was not good for potatoes and the Ontario Government report of August says: "A light yield of small potatoes will be the general rule. Early planted suffered most. Timely rains helped those planted later." The acreage of potatoes in Ontario this year is 162,457 acres as compared with 168,454 in 1910 and 169,695 in 1909.

Three Fish Days Improve Demand

Impetus is Given to Trade by Three Fish Days This Week—Business is Encouraging—New Lines Are Arriving on the Market—Oysters Have Met With Good Reception.

With Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of this week fish days, naturally some impetus has been given to trade and business has been very encouraging in volume. Various new lines of salt, pickled and smoked fish are arriving and should work for more business. The weather is not exactly the most favorable for any marked stir in trade but with weather becoming cooler will no doubt show some improvement. Oysters have met with a good reception during the past two weeks.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—There are three fish days this week, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and the orders received for delivery were encouraging. The demand and the new fresh stocks made an effective combination, while prepared and pickled received fair attention. Oysters have been selling well during the past two weeks and business is expected to grow steadily during the fall season. It is announced that brook trout are coming in freely and in good condition. The price quoted shows a reduction. Lake trout, white fish, halibut and salmon are in good demand. New pike and pickerel are arriving daily. The salt and pickled fish on the market include new Labrador herring in barrels and half barrels, green cod, Labrador and B.C. salmon, salt sardines and mackerel. The fish season has now opened in earnest, although it is hardly to be expected that every week will bring as heavy a business as is reported for the present.

Toronto.—There are no special features of interest in evidence just at the present time. There is some little improvement being noted in the demand for fish, but the weather is not exactly favorable to bring about any marked change. Oysters are beginning to receive some attention from retailers, but dealers are not expecting a large trade until cooler weather arrives. Some additional lines of smoked fish are arriving. Prices show no change.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

St. John's.—A difference of 40 cents regarding warranted prices of fish exists between Labrador fishermen and local buyers, each side contending that conditions abroad warrant the price at which they are holding. It is suggested that the local publication of the prices and their fluctuation at the different selling centres abroad would enable those interested to ascertain prices more accurately. The Government, some time ago, undertook to do this, but so far the information supplied has been rather meagre.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John.—The supply in almost every grade of fish except the pickled variety has not equalled the demand of late. Shipments of salt, dry fish which arrived in the city during the past few days from fishing centres across the bay, have brought high prices, which it seems very likely, will prevail for some time, judging from present indications. Some small schooners from Grand Manan brought in some smoked herring, the majority of which were lengthwise. These brought 12 cents a box, while the others brought 10 cents. From the present outlook, the supply of pickled herring promises to be good.

CONDENSED AND EVAPORATED MILK.

Condensed milk is ordinary milk mixed with certain ingredients to preserve it and as the name implies "condensed." Evaporated milk is fresh milk without anything added, merely evaporated and relieved of the water which it contains.

CIGARETTE PAPER.

Rice paper in which tobacco is wrapped in cigarette form has nothing to do with rice as many believe but is made from the membranes of the bread-fruit tree or more commonly of fine new trimmings of flax and hemp. It is perfectly combustible and gives off the minimum of smoke.

THE TRIALS OF THE GROCER.

A Toronto grocer was on the point of closing the sale of a basket of peaches when the customer, a woman, spied the picture of one of the political candidates in the window, and refused to buy. The grocer is seriously considering entering a suit for damages to his business against the candidate in question.

WHEN SARDINES ARE THE BEST.

"While the new pack goods are no doubt the best in some lines of canned goods," said a dealer, "this is not so with foreign sardines.

"The best chefs will not take them until they are a year old, and they are undoubtedly the best at this age. Some retailers demand the new pack when the old is the best. In 18 months to two years they begin to deteriorate in quality."

Wall Paper Season Demands Attention

Some Points on Buying and Selling Which Should Aid the Merchant—Designs Suitable for This Season—Window Display and Advertising—The Power of Personal Salesmanship.

By W. J. B.

The time is now here for those merchants who handle wall paper to be looking to their fall stocks. It will not be long until the housewife will once more be busy at her semi-annual attempt to clean and beautify the home, and now is the time for the merchant to prepare for the consequent demand for wall paper.

Judgment in Buying Needed.

One of the important factors is careful selection of stock. A dealer must stock those varieties that will appeal to the fancy of his customers. This fancy varies greatly with different people and in different communities, and the merchant will have to use his own judgment in buying. He should not stick to the patterns that have been shown before. Chances are the lines that sold good last year, will not do so this year. The people are tired of them, and one must have something new to create interest.

While new patterns are essential, still the merchant should not take this to mean that he is to make selections on the strength of oddity, for while something of this nature may interest a customer by its sheer novelty, still she might not wish to have it for a decoration for her home. Many merchants show lack of taste in choosing patterns that will appeal to customers, and for this reason merchants of this character should secure the help of some competent person—his wife or feminine clerk.

Price is another feature that must be considered in selecting stock, for the merchant must suit the pocket as well as the fancy of his customer. To a merchant who has not had past experience, this can be most easily ascertained by the class of other goods which the customer usually purchases. However, it should be kept in mind that in this as well as other lines of merchandise, quality must be paid for. In wall paper, there are two features of quality, that of the paper to wear and withstand fading and its quality as judged by the design.

Pointers on Selling Wallpaper.

Proper display is an important feature in selling, and should be commenced early in the season. Women are always on the lookout for something new and attractive, and if they see anything that interests them, no matter how early in the season, chances are they will return when they wish to purchase. If possible, one section of the store should be laid aside for the showing of wall paper. The designs shown on the display rack should be changed from time to time, so that customers on each visit will have something new presented to them. A window should be devoted to this line early in the season, followed by other displays when the time for actual purchases is on.

The merchant or salesman who waits for customers to enquire about this line is in error; he should at every opportunity draw their attention to it. Show them some of the new lines with pointers in regard to them, and perchance you may be able to make sales by this method

In handling wall paper it is necessary to do a certain amount of advertising, especially if you are just introducing this line. People cannot be expected to discover for themselves that it has been added. Inaugurate the department with a brisk publicity campaign.

Splendid Lines Inthoduced.

It is interesting to note that for the first time in the history of Canadian wallpaper making there have been produced lines for which it is claimed that they are fit to compete with the highest class of the imported article.

Not only are the designs original and unique, but they are specially adap to the peculiar demands of the tr here. English ideals have been follow to a great extent, but not slavishly. use of improved mechanical devices, finish and surface of the paper has b perfected to a degree which places it the highest rank. Among these is roller which "lifts" the newly-laid color and leaves a mottled or fain patterned background, giving the eff of the handsome embossed paper, wh practicable for extensive surfaces.

Many imitations of leather are be shown, both for a plain filling wh bands and applique panels, borders, e are used, and for a dado. The forn effects predominate for the coming ye Strapping and Cut-off Designs.

Whereas last season saw much use a panel effect formed by cut-out desig usually in floral patterns, with irregu edges, the new papers have strappi or band trimmings in fancy floral conventional designs, to be pasted in any desired form. Sometimes th strappings are combined with a cut- motif in any fancy shape, or with drop effect in a fancy floral fri Newer than the paneling idea is the of strappings to outline the border the windows and doors only.

The above style is much used w the engraved leathers. The latter s a fine range of colors, tan, mouse, phant, Paris tan, French grey, ch ragne brown and green included. colorings are rich and durable.

TORONTO GROCER CHEATS HIMSELF ON SUGA

Selling Sugar at 5 Cents per Pound—Doesn't Know the Market Has Gone up and That Sugar Costs Him $5.95—One Explanation of the Poor Clerk Problem.

Toronto, Sept. 21 (Special).—A woman shopper entered a Yonge street store the other day and purchased two pounds of sugar. She was charged 7 cents a pound for it. She complained bitterly declaring she could buy it cheaper elsewhere.

The grocer told her that he could sell it no cheaper, refering to the recent unusual advances in the price of sugar.

But the customer was not satisfied. She started out to see if she couldn't buy it cheaper. One block farther down she found a grocer who gave it to her at 5c a pound. She at once returned to the first dealer and berated him for charging her 7 cents when she could buy it for 5 cents.

The grocer had a good argument with which to combat her declaration, however, as the wholesale price to him was $5.95. He asked her to buy a quantity for him at the 5 cent rate.

dealers do not know cost

Just another example of the difficulties with which the grocer has to contend daily. It shows his life is not actly one of sunshine. It, howe brings out another important poi there are dealers on the main street our largest cities who do not k what their goods are costing them. is unfortunate, but nevertheless is t

The second dealer in question, February when he learned that ot had done so put sugar down to 5 c It has been at that price ever since gardless of the big advance. He k absolutely nothing apparently about advance. He bought his goods, for them and sold them without looking at the cost.

Responsible for Poor Clerks.

This is the sort of merchant wh doing harm to the grocery trade, can never expect to make a success it, and incidentally it might be tioned that he is the kind of grocer is responsible for many of the grocery clerks about which we hea much.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia—Spices

Connection of Spices With Early History and Commerce—Efforts to raise Spices on This Continent Have Failed—Interesting Facts About the Growth of the Different Varieties—Demand for Spices Continues to Increase.

"Spices" is a general term embracing all those vegetable condiments employed in seasoning and flavoring food and which are hot, pungent and aromatic to the taste and smell.

They are of special interest to the grocer at the present time, as the annual pickling season now in full swing creates an enormous demand for them.

There is bound up in the history of the spice trade many interesting and important chapters in world's history, frequently resulting in a complete change of the commercial routes and a total shifting of the channels of trade. It was the desire of merchants in the middle ages to find a short cut to the Indies or Spice Islands, and it was just probable in this endeavor that Columbus discovered the new world. History discloses the fact that spices were liberally used by the oldest known nations of the world.

American Efforts Fail.

The efforts to raise spices in this country have failed for one reason or another and there seems little prospect that the American continent will ever compete successfully with the jungles of the East. Many of the richest spice producing districts are interior points rarely visited by white men, while savage beasts and uncivilized people are ever present realities, and civilization advances but slowly if at all. Apparently spice growing is not meant for white men since they do better and are better when supervised almost entirely by the semi-civilized or total savage of the tropical forests. This condition adds materially to the romance which surrounds the production and distribution of the various spices found on every table in the land.

Few people would look for pepper on a vine and fewer still would think that white and black pepper are both products of the same plant. And red pepper, so called, is not a pepper at all, but comes from a totally different plant, related in no way to the one that produces both white and black pepper.

Allspice, cloves and nutmegs are produced on beautiful ever-green trees, covered with gorgeous foliage and emitting a delicate though somewhat pungent aroma. The nutmeg tree is one of the longest lived of any of the spice plants, yielding liberally even up to the century mark. At fifty years it is in its prime and yields the most liberal crops about that time. Mace, which is totally different from nutmeg, is borne on the same tree. In fact, it is derived from the nutmeg itself, being the outer skin or covering of the nutmeg, which grows inside much as the hickory nut or chestnut grows inside the burr.

Waste In Countries of Growth.

No great trade routes have been established in modern times for spice distribution, but they form an important part of the goods handled by every grocer in the country. Their usefulness as articles of food increases each year. Farther and farther into the jungles it is necessary to penetrate to obtain sufficient supplies to satisfy the constantly increasing demand. Ultimately these jungles will have to be cared for by white men to save the immense waste which under present conditions will soon er or later ruin the sources of supply.

WHAT A SALESMAN SHOULD KNOW.

That in filling an ordinary size bag he should hold the bottom of the bag in the open left hand.

That in taking an order he should never lean on the counter.

That in weighing a piece of meat he shouldn't say 5 pounds and 7 ounces but "not quite 5½ pounds."

That packages that have to be carried home should be wrapped before the customer has to request it.

That children should be waited upon in regular form.

MEN WITH INITIATIVE.

(From "Brains.")

Some men are creators. They know what to do on the spur on the moment. Their keen eyes see through things and they bring all their forces into play in the game of life. They are well balanced, tactful, quiet, concentrated, punctual, persevering, determined. Endowed with superb mental poise and calm judgment, they grasp and execute new combinations. The trackless forest recedes where they advance. Great commercial enterprises, the ushering in of a new epoch in the world's industrial workshop invariably originate in the brains of such. Pioneer minds. A sound body and clear head is the secret.

COFFEE FACTS.

Canada consumes annually about 9,875,000 pounds of coffee. United States consumes about 1,000,000,000 pounds and Great Britain around 256,000,000 pounds.

Brazil is the largest producer of coffee. The United States consumes around 60 per cent. of the world's coffee production, a large percentage of which comes from Brazil.

ABOUT HIS PEPPER.

The grocer maintained that his pepper was not half peas.

"But," said the customer, "spell it out and you will see it has three p's, which is half."

in excellence and uniformity of quality is the history of

for more than 25 years. Is not this a record to be proud of and does it not go to prove that all the various new brands that have come and gone during that time were ill conceived time wasters for everybody who had to do with them?

Does it not suggest too that there is only one Soap for you to stand by and purchase?

Wasting Your Energies?

If it pays to push an article, it pays to push it to some purpose and to push more with an object of gaining permanent trade than of temporary profit. If the demand for any article stops when you stop pushing it, 95 per cent. of your energy has been wasted.

You waste no energy whatever in advocating the sale of these Fish, because people who buy them once will buy them again and again. Briefly, the intrinsic merit of both these articles backs up the highest praise you can give them.

THE SIMCOE BRAND GUARANTEES GRADE

As a Winter Food—

Baked Beans have a very great food value which is well understood by Canadian housewives.

Beans baked, as are the "Simcoe Brand" Beans, have largely taken the place of the home baked, because they are thoroughly cooked without destroying their form, and the flavoring is much more even and rich.

SIMCOE BRAND BAKED BEANS

are made from selected beans, cooked by the latest scientific methods, all the sauces used are carefully prepared from ripe fruit and pure spices.

The result is a perfect can of delicious beans that you can sell to your best trade and secure repeat orders.

FRESHNESS—CLEANLINESS—PURITY

A lady in Canada writes to her friends in England, "I felt quite at home at once, as they had Chivers' Jam on the table."

FROM THE FRUIT FARM TO THE FAMILY TABLE

The Daily Chronicle (London) says: "The estate on which the fruit is grown covers upwards of 3000 acres. The gathering of the morning is made into jam during the day, thus ensuring the perfect quality of the fruit. In the factories cleanliness reigns supreme."

CHIVERS' GOLD MEDAL JELLIES

The "Court Circular" says:—"They are distinctive in character and vastly superior to any others."

FLAVORED WITH RIPE FRUIT JUICES

"Great Thoughts":—"Flavor and purity cannot be excelled."

"Grocers' Review":—"The highest possible state of perfection.

Review of Flour and Cereal Markets

Movement in Prices of Flour and Cereals During Past Few Years—Certain Similarity in Price Movement of Flour in Recent Years—Few Changes So Far This Year—Changes in Rolled Oats and Rolled Wheat.

The fall trade in flour and cereals is beginning to be felt, and interest in general is becoming more marked in these lines. It may, therefore, be of interest to the grocer to review the movements of the market during the past few years.

There have been few price changes in flour so far durlng 1911. The year has been most unusual in that regard when compared with the many changes in preceding years. Another feature which may be of interest to the merchant is the fact that flour at the present time is lower than at the same time in 1910 and 1909.

Flour Changes Somewhat Uniform.

There is, however, a certain similarity in the movements of flour in the past few years. In 1909 and 1910 flour went higher during the first half of the year, unfavorable weather during the summer months working for higher prices. Then as the crop began to come forward prices dropped. This year flour on a Toronto basis started at $5.50 per barrel. Slight decreases occurred in March and April, due to a plentitude of wheat. In the middle of August there was a 20 cent advance, bringing prices up to the present basis of $5.30. From April 14th until this advance took place flour was at the lowest point it has reached in three years. Quotations for 1st patents in Toronto during 1909, 1910 and 1911, with the various changes are as follows:

High Price of Rolled Oats.

Rolled oats with the recent advances have reached quite a high figure, and are at present the highest they have been since Aug. 20, 1909. They are 40 cents per bag higher than at the opening of the year, and 55 cents above the lowest point of the year. which was March 3, when Toronto prices reached $2.05 per bag. Present prices at Toronto are $2.60 per bag compared with $2.20 at the same time last year and $2.50 at the corresponding time in 1909.

The Rolled Wheat Market.

While rolled wheat has done some fluctuating during the past 12 months, it is practically back to the same figure as a year ago, when quotations in Toronto were $2.85 per hundred pounds. At the present quotations are $2.90. At the same time in 1909 they were higher, ranging from $3.25 to $3.50.

Procedure in Purchasing a Business

What It is Necessary to Do Besides Handing Over the Purchase Price—Varies in the Different Provinces—Ontario Merchant Raises an Interesting Question—In Manitoba, Quebec, British Columbia and Saskatchewan Creditors and Purchaser are Protected by Bulk Sales Act—The Act Explained.

"When you purchase a business is it necessary to do anything besides hand over the purchase price and get busy?"

There is, if you would fully protect yourself. The procedure accompanying your purchase will vary with the province in which you reside. If you are buying a business in Ontario for instance the operation is easily accomplished. However, if you should be doing the same thing in Manitoba you must take a little more time and trouble.

"Oh, I suppose they have some useless red tape in Manitoba," is the reply one is likely to get, unless the inquirer is acquainted with particulars, for business men in general agree that Manitoba as well as some of the other provinces are far ahead of Ontario in the matter of transferences of businesses. Let us get to the explanation.

The following letter has just been received by The Canadian Grocer:—

> The Canadian Grocer,—I have a friend who is about to buy a grocery business, which is owned by a man who is a stranger to him. He is buying at 90c on the dollar, and is wondering if he pays the money to the man for the stock, and the stock should not be paid for at the wholesale grocer's or any place else, how would that affect my friend?
> I told him I would write you, and that you would know.

I think if he buys the stock at 90c on the dollar and pays for it that no one can come on the stock, even if the man he bought it from did not have it paid for; but you will know, and an early reply will be appreciated

W. H. HAYGARTH.

Cayuga, Ont., Sept., 1911.

The reading of this letter will no doubt help to unravel the plot of our story. The reader will begin to have an inkling into the reason that the law in regard to a business transfer in Manitoba is different to that ruling in Ontario. The protection to the purchaser in Manitoba is really no greater than in Ontario, but it is a great deal better for the creditors of the seller. All dealers are in sympathy with any law that requires as far as possible a man to pay his just debts. This is just the good point of the Business Transfer law in Manitoba. It reduces to a minimum the possibility of a man eluding the debts which he has justly contracted.

What to Do in Ontario.

Our correspondent as far as Ontario is concerned, is quite correct in his belief with the exception of a few minor details which the purchaser must deal with. He must find out first if there are any liens against the stock in the way of judgments or chattel mortgages. This may be ascertained at the registry office of the county. If there are no liens against the stock, he is free to purchase it, hand over the money, and commence business without fear of the seller's creditors trying to collect any debts of such seller from him.

The law in Ontario regarding the sale of a business stock is an injustice to wholesale dealers. It gives them absolutely no protection against unscrupulous retailers. A retail dealer may contract a number of large debts, sell his business and receive the money for it, decamp and the wholesaler is without means of securing what justly belongs to him. The law gives every chance to fraudulent dealers to outdo their creditors.

The Bulk Sales Act.

A law known as "The Bulk Sales Act," protecting creditors of a dealer is in force in Quebec, Manitoba, British Columbia and Saskatchewan. Therefore a man purchasing a business in any of these provinces will have to do more than hand over the purchase price if he would fully protect himself. The laws in the different provinces vary to some extent, although all aim at the same thing. The Saskatchewan Legislature has just recently put an act to this effect into law.

This act which will have a far-reaching effect upon the sale of business in bulk in the future, has been enacted for the protection of the purchaser and the creditors of the vendor and to prevent the perpetration of fraud on the part of persons desiring to sell their business, secure the cash for same, and decamp without settling up their outstanding liabilities for the goods that they may have transferred in the transaction of sale.

Briefly, the Bulk Sales Act provides that the vendor must supply the purchaser with a sworn statement containing the names and addresses of all his creditors together with the amount owing. It shall then be the duty of the purchaser before paying to the vendor the purchase price, to obtain the written waiver from the creditors of the vendor before paying over the sale price, or he shall pay the purchase money, or sufficient thereof to satisfy the claims of all the creditors of the vendor into the hands of the official asignee to be distributed pro rata amongst the creditors, less the usual asignee's fees. The purchaser, however, can obtain the consent of the creditors to turning over sufficient of the proceeds to a nominee mutually satisfactory, thus avoiding the expense consequent upon handing same over to the official assignee. If the total purchase price is less than the total indebtedness of the vendor, it is necessary to obtain the consent of 60 per cent. of such creditors before any sale can be effected, thus preventing a bogus sale at a low figure and preventing fraud by any side deal being effected by the vendor in order to evade the provisions of the act.

A sale is considered to be a sale in bulk whenever the entire stock-in-trade of the vendor is sold, or part thereof, out of the usual course of business or trade of the vendor. The act in Saskatchewan covers not only a stock of goods, wares, and merchandise, but also an hotel or wholesale license for the sale of intoxicating liquor.

If the provisions of the act outlined above, are not carried out, the sale is void, as against the creditors of the vendor, unless the creditors are paid in full, and said sale shall be deemed fraudulent, and the creditors are, through the courts entitled to issue a writ of attachment against the goods covered by such sale.

The Manitoba Bulk Sales Act, which has been in operatian for the past two years, and upon whose provisions the Saskatchewan Act was founded, was amended at the last session of Parliament, so as to require the consent of 60 per cent. of the creditors in case of a sale, thus remedying a defect in the original act. This act has been a great protection to the mercantile community and is beneficial in its results.

Sitting on the counter discussing mat-ters with people who come to loaf and not to buy, is not good business. The active wide-awake merchant or clerk is the one who gets the trade.

Errors in Stating Coffee Prices

Some Interesting Data on Cheap and High Grade Coffees—Meeting an Advancing Market with Higher Prices to Consumers—Schedule of Profits—Is Cheap Coffee a Thing of the Past?

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

Here is a very pertinent comment from one of my attentive readers :

Dear Mr. Johnson :—In The Canadian Grocer of August 11, you have an article on "Raising the Grade of Coffee," in which you state that it would be well to have a coffee to retail at 15c. or 18c. per pound. I am at loss to know where it is possible for a retail grocer to purchase a coffee so as to retail at 15c., 18c. or even 20c. and make any profit. The cheapest roasted coffee to be had, that I know of, is from 18c. to 18½c., which would show very little profit at 22c. In reading your paper I noticed this article and thought I would take the liberty of writing you, as I am interested in all grocery lines.

* * * *

My subject in the article referred to was a series of questions relative to generally raising the grade of our business. In treating the subject, it happened that I used coffee as an exemplar of how persistent effort along certain lines would result in our general betterment. This is how it happened that I did not verify each statement in relation to present market conditions. Even so, however, my correspondent will find that I not only did not urge the dealing in 15c. and 18c. coffees, but said that these should be avoided wherever possible. I had in mind the fact that most grocers do not enjoy such an exclusively high grade trade as I do, hence often feel that they "have to" meet a demand for samething cheap, even with very little profit to themselves. My thought was, that these cheap lines might have to be carried in present circumstances, but the effort of the dealer should be constantly exercised to Raise the Grade—get away from those cheap lines and onto lines which would pay him more margin while also improving the standard of living and bettering the taste of his customers.

Sells Only High Grade Coffee.

Nevertheless, the figures given were misleading ; and I can only account for this by the fact that I have for years roasted my coffee, so have some considerable advantage in my costs, and the further fact that I sell so little coffee below 25c., that I had, for the moment, actually forgotten what that grade cost. I had likewise lost track of the fact that 18c. and 15c. are now out of the question.

So now I have made an exhaustive investigation, which has revealed a good many things, and I am thankful for my own sake that my friend brought up the question, since its treatment will result in my making a good many extra dollars during the next year.

How Advancing Market was Met.

The blends which I am using are almost the same as I had made up for me when, in 1902, I bought my roaster. A few minor changes had been made before the beginning of 1911. Once Maracaibo became too high to use, and we had to change some formulae to meet that condition. Into other blends at other times we put Bucaramangara, or "Bucks," instead of Bogota. On the whole, however, the blends have remained as they were, we being naturally loath to make changes.

In January of this year, it was evident that the steadily advancing market would soon force a raise in our prices, and it fortunately happened that there was a good deal of newspaper talk on coffee at that time ; so it seemed to me that the "psychological" moment to make a general advance had arrived. It was my intention to get busy on an analysis of our blends at that time, but I also knew our margins had been very liberal, so I felt safe and the analysis was not made until just now—for which, as I say, I am thankful to my friend. In January, as stated, we made one sweeping, general advance of 5c. a pound all along the line, excepting that we made our old 32c. blend 38c., and our old 22c. blend 28c., thus advancing these two 6c.

Kept Consumer Advised.

Very little trouble has been experienced because of our way of handling the change. We said nothing unless necessary to any of our customers. The woman who had been using 28c. coffee still got 28c. coffee, and if she did not notice the change, we said nothing. If she did notice it, we explained.. To offset the disturbance liable to result from such a radical change, we advertised our coffees, and have continued to advertise them steadily and exclusively ever since, until now there seems to be nothing to indicate that any change has been made.

But now as to costs. I find that our raws cost us from 26½c. for Java, to 14½c. for the cheapest Rio we use. This makes our roasted Java stand us 32.05c. and roasted Rio 17.76c.; with all the others coming between. This is on the basis that usually prevails, which is to figure 16 per cent. shrinkage in roasting and ½c. roasting charge. As a matter of fact, very few coffees shrink over 14 per cent. and many not more than 12½ per cent.; and it does not cost us ½c. to roast. But these are the customary ratios; men of large experience stick to them ; and they may be considered safe in all circumstances; so it is good business to observe them. It is to be noted in passing, that fine, mild coffees, like Javas, and usually high-priced growths, like Mocha, have not advanced in price, while Rios, Santos, Mexican, Bogotas, have all advanced and the lower grades have advanced proportionately very much more than the higher grades. So one can buy as good a drink as ever for from 30c. to 40c., but from 30c. down the value declines and it is impossible for the consumer to get anything fit to drink for less than 20c. with any margin whatever to the dealer.

Present Coffee Costs.

I find therefore, that my costs to-day are as follows :

The 45c. costs 25.84c.; the 40c. costs 24.82c.; the 38c. costs 20.52c.; the 35c. costs 21.33c.; the 33c. costs 19.43c.; the 30c. costs 20½c.; the 28c. costs 19.55c.; the 25c. costs 20.14c.; the 23c. costs 18.65.; the 20c. costs 17.76.

My margins are : 42 2-5 per cent. on the 45c.; 37.95 per cent. on the 40c.; 46 per cent. on the 38c.; 39 per cent. on the 35c.; 41⅛ per cent. on the 33c.;31 2-3 per cent. on the 30c.; 30 1-6 per cent. on the 28c.; 19.44 per cent. on the 25c.; 14.56 per cent. on the 23c.; 11 1-5 per cent. on the 20c. So everything from 45c. down to 28c. I am making very good money—just about what I have always made on my own roasts ; but below 28c. I am not doing what I should do on coffees, especially considering that I roast my coffees.

Another interesting result of this investigation is the revelation that things have got so far out of line that since the last adjustment that my 35c. costs more than my 38c., and my 30c. more than my 33c. or 35c., and within a fraction of the cost of my 38c.; also that my 28c. costs more than my 33c., and my 25c. more than my 28c. As things stand now, it is best for me to boost my 38c. in preference to any higher-priced coffee I have; and as that will be popular with my customers, I intend to do it. But it is obvious that the schedule calls for readjustment all the way through and I am at it now.

*The writer of this article is one of the most successful dealers on the continent. He has spent almost 30 years in the retail grocery business and is well equipped to answer questions and smooth out difficulties with which others may have met.

Cheap Coffee Disappearing.

It is the feeling and I may say it seems to be the hope of many large coffee handlers, that we have seen the end of what we have hitherto called cheap coffee. If that really means that we shall in future have no coffee to offer for less than 20c to 25c. and that the drink will be just that much better than it formerly was, I believe I shall also be glad of the change. A blend, say, of 4 or 5 Santos and 7 Rio, with just a little Mexican will make a drink that anybody can like, providing it is properly made; and that blend can be sold, with a fair profit, for 25c. When you get something cheaper than this, you reach a point where even skilful making will not avail; which means that coffee as a drink is discredited just so much; which again hurts all coffee business and is therefore bad for us.

I should delight in hearing more from my readers on this subject. It is important enough to merit full discussion.

How to Advance Trade in October

Methods That the Dealer Has at Hand to Start the Fall Trade Off at a Healthy Stride—Final Effort on Fruits—Opportunities of the Pickling Season—Specializing on One Line During Month.

With the opening of October we are well started on the fall trade. Prospects are excellent for a good volume of business during the coming months and the dealer who goes after it strong is the one who will get the greater percentage. Let the grocer put forth some extra efforts in all directions, including advertising, window display and personal salesmanship. If at all possible increase your advertising, or at any rate make it's sales' value as great as possible. Get your clerks enthusiastic over increasing their own sales and in keeping the window in its best garb. Then try yourself to keep the cash drawer clinking. Now with business conditions at their best is the time to get busy.

Make Final Effort in Fruits.

October is the month in which to make the final effort in fruit. It is a month in which a fair amount of preserving is done by the housewife and should be greater than ever this year because of the small amount of early fruits put away, and as the late fruits such as peaches, plums and pears are still fairly plentiful. Grapes are at their best and their sale should reach an appreciable volume. In some districts only small amounts are sold, while in others large quantities are disposed of. Make your town of the latter variety.

Grape Jelly Recipe.

One merchant last year to stimulate sales, published in his ad. a recipe for making grape jelly which he found of value in increasing the amount "put down."

Get After Pickling Trade.

Another avenue of the housewife's activity this month gives the grocer a cue to increased trade. This is the annual pickling season and from myriads of homes throughout the country is coming the smell and aroma of spices, vinegar and other pickling necessities. This means more business for the wide awake grocer. He will have on hand, a full assortment of these needs, and will give prominence to them both by display and advertising. Move the spice receptacles up to a handy position and where they will be seen. Don't forget to impress carefulness in weighing upon your clerks, if you wish the spice business to be a paying one. See that poor taps or other leaks are not carrying away the profits on vinegar.

Money in Oysters Now.

The oyster season is with us again. Here is presented another opportunity for increased trade. Some months have elapsed since consumers have been able to purchase oysters and their pent up appetite for this line should work for the good of the grocer who gets in a supply. A receptacle with a glass top showing the oysters, which are now packed solid without any water, is an excellent method of display. Proper refrigeration is necessary at this time of the year, however, in order to preserve the quality, so that oysters may have to be mentioned to customers in order to effect sales.

This is a good month to attempt to put fresh life into your provision trade. Smoked and cooked meats should especially be in demand. Let your customers know of the different lines of hams and bacon you carry; show them in a sanitary manner on a special counter with show or price cards attached. In country districts with threshing commencing, bacon, and especially long clear, will be in demand. Acquaint your farmer customers with the fact that you carry this line.

Sold Fresh Sausage.

At this time last year, a grocer, the writer knows, began getting fresh shipments of small sausage twice a week from a packing house. He told his customers the days on which he would have them and worked up a good regular trade. People began to buy sausage, thus affording the opportunity of introducing other lines to them.

A good plan followed by many grocers is featuring some one line each month. Perhaps you have a baking powder, tea, coffee or other line that would stand some special attention. Feature that line during October in your advertising, display and talks and results will be gratifying.

FIRST CANADIAN COTTON SEED OIL REFINERY.

Erected in West Toronto—How the Oil is Manufactured.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—A Cotton Seed Oil Refinery has been erected at West Toronto by Gunns Limited, pork and beef packers. It is the first and only one of its kind in Canada, while in the United States the production reaches 168,000,000 lbs. annually.

Cotton Seed Oil is used for edible purposes, as shortening. Its manufacture is interesting. When the growing crop reaches maturity, the seed is in a position to be gathered. This seed is sent to the mill and put through machines, which first take off the lint and then the hulls, leaving the kernels. These kernels are thoroughly cooked, after which, while yet hot, they are put into bags and pressed in hydraulic presses under an immense pressure. This presses out the oil which runs from the presses into tank cars, thoroughly sterilized before loading. This raw oil is then ready for the refinery.

STRAWBERRY PLANT IN BLOOM.

In his garden at 169 University Ave., Toronto, Geo. Burleigh has a strawberry plant in bloom, a most unusual thing for this time of the year. It is of the Chesapeake variety.

In regard to brooms some jobbers state that there will be a scarcity of the larger sizes and that they have withdrawn this line.

Some Canadian manufacturers report a decline in the price of macaroni. One half cent a pound is the reduction. Others have not reported such.

STABILITY IN TARIFF MATTERS.

After an election the partisan element is largely eliminated, and business men are more inclined to discuss questions on their merits.

A manufacturer in Eastern Ontario who worked against the Conservatives in the recent campaign stated the day after the elections he was not sorry the reciprocity bill was defeated, as it would show both political parties that the majority of the peole wanted stability in tariff matters.

There has been a feeling of unrest among United States manufacturers during the past few years, owing to the probability of a reduction in their tariff. Most manufacturers decided not to add any new machinery or make any extensions to their plant till they were assured that the Government was through revising the tariff. Much the same situation has been developing in Canada, but the period of suspense has been of short duration, and the verdict of the people, given September 21, has made it plain that all classes are in favor of stability in tariff affairs.

Canadian manufacturers will now feel safe in going ahead with extensions they had contemplated. A number of United States and British firms, either rightly or wrongly, expected that if the reciprocity agreement carried, it would be followed very shortly by a general reduction in duty on manufactured goods. These firms will now feel more inclined to establish Canadian branch factories, knowing that there is very little chance of any reduction in the tariff during the next decade at least.

Complaint has been made for some years that goods are being "dumped" into the Canadian market. A special clause was inserted in the tariff about seven years ago with a view to making it impossible to invoice goods for duty at a lower price than they were being sold in the home market. This clause has not been strictly enforced, and to meet this competition, some Canadian manufacturers have been compelled to sell their season's output at a loss. This is grossly unfair, both to the Canadian manufacturer and to the buyer who will not make a false statement to secure a lower price. It is putting a handicap on honesty, and the Government will do well to put forth every effort to make the dumping clause serve the purpose for which it was intended.

WHY COCOANUT ADVANCED.

The recent advance in the price of cocoanut does not surprise those who have understood the conditions of manufacture.

The price of cocoanut had not been advanced in years. The cost of the nuts had increased, labor was higher as was other incidentals connected with the manufacture of this article. The price, it is stated, has been simply at a figure in keeping with former conditions. This was one manufacturer's opinion, and while at the time he did not intimate an increase in the price of cocoanut, the news of the advance does not surprise one to whom an explanation was given of the manufacture of this article.

It would appear that there has been no effort at organization among the manufacturers, in fact it was the competition that kept prices at the low figure in spite of the general advance in the cost of production.

THE BROOM SITUATION.

Brooms have been ascending quite sharply in price on Canadian markets of late, the advance being ascribed to the higher prices of broom corn in the United States from where Canadian manufacturers secure their supply.

It was believed at first by many Canadian dealers that prices would recede after the first excitement was over but late information would seem to indicate that this will be a year of high prices in brooms, at least higher than the past twelve months. The situation is a somewhat peculiar one and only by close study can it be analyzed. The fact of the matter is, that the early broom corn crop was just about as heavy this year as last. However, just as soon as the harvest commenced, manufacturers who needed immediate supplies rushed into the market. Farmers noting the keen demand pushed prices upward. The result was an intensely exciting market with prices ranging away higher than last year.

A late report says that 90 per cent of the crop of Kansas and Oklahoma has been contracted for at the high prices.

There is still a late crop to be harvested. It is not known exactly how it will turn out, conditions at the present being unfavorable, rains interfering with the harvesting. Still, with the early crop having sold at a high price, the late one will have a tendency to follow suit. Farmers at least will hold with that in view. Thus, conditions would seem to indicate a continued strong market on brooms.

NOW FOR THE LAST QUARTER.

During the fall of last year a Canadian dealer in totaling up his sales found to his dismay that the business did not equal that up to the same time the previous year. Naturally with expenses continuing just as large as ever, the fact set him thinking.

He called a "council of war" of his entire staff, acquainted them with the fact that business was falling behind, and asked their assistance in making the total sales for the year as large as the one before. A spirit of enthusiasm took possession of the whole staff, with a silent determination that they would not only equal the last year but surpass it.

Each clerk made a stronger effort to increase his sale to every customer who entered the store, the window displays were changed oftener and more care given to them, and more careful planning was given to the firm's advertising. The result was that the sales showed a substantial gain over the previous year.

With October 1 the last quarter of the business year is ushered in. This is the time for the dealer to sum up his sales for the past nine months and compare them with the previous year. If they have not shown the increase that every sound business should, now is the time to determine you will make it up before the year closes. There is no better incentive to effort than the desire to excel previous records. Therefore let every Canadian grocery dealer decide to make the last quarter of 1911 the best three months in his business history.

Business conditions in Canada are good and the opportunity is presented to surpass previous records.

TRAINING THE CLERK.

The efforts of English grocers to improve the standing of their clerks are practically general throughout England. The following note is from the Grocers' Review: "The Higher Education Authority of the City of Leeds has again agreed to the arranging of courses of study for grocers and their assistants during the coming winter. There will be a preliminary course for younger apprentices, whose general education and experience are not sufficient to allow them to take the first year course with advantage."

Then follows the programme of studies, with the names of the instructors. The first and second year courses have on alternate Mondays, 8 to 10 p.m., "Adulteration of foodstuffs" (with application of tests;) and "Commercial practice and bookkeeping." On Tuesdays, 8 to 9 p.m., tea—characteristics of Ceylon, India and China, with experiments in testing and blending; coffee—description of various growths, roasting, blending, with experiments, coffee mixtures, coffee essences. On the same evenings there will be lectures on knowledge of commodities. On Tuesdays from 9 to 10 p.m. several authorities on the subject will deal with law affecting the grocery trade. Prizes are offered to the best grocers and clerks who take up this course, which is arranged in conjunction with the Leeds and District Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Association, and the Leeds branch of the National Association of Grocers' Assistants.

When practical work of this character is undertaken by Canadian grocers, we will have a higher standard of clerk in this country, which will tend to place trade on a much better basis.

SEEDS HAVE TO BE LABELLED.

During the last session of the Dominion Parliament, important changes were made in the Seed Control Act, respecting the sale of clover and timothy seed which will be of particular interest to the general merchant.

Under the old act the inspector sometimes found it difficult to prove violations though misrepresentations were being made. A dealer might offer red clover seed, containing as many as 92 noxious weed seeds per ounce and an unlimited number of other weed seeds such as Foxtail, represent it as his best grade and charge nearly as much as his competitor asked for No. 1. He would not mark it No. 1 but he might state verbally that it was No. 1 or just as good.

This has often been done, with the result that farmers as well as retail merchants who really wanted to buy pure seed have got badly contaminated seed and paid high prices for it. Under the new Act such misrepresentations will be impossible and both farmers and retail merchants will be able to buy their seed more intelligently.

Four grades are fixed by the Act for red clover, alsike, alfalfa and timothy seed, and all seed sold for seeding purposes by seedsmen must be plainly labelled with the grade. Any seed not grading No. 3, which is a higher standard than the old prohibitive line of five noxious weed seeds per thousand of good seed, is prohibited from sale.

In addition to the standards for freedom from weed seeds, standards for purity in other respects and general appearance are fixed for Extra No. 1, No. 1 and No. 2. Double the number of noxious weed seeds are allowed in alsike on account of the greater difficulty in cleaning this seed.

SUBSTITUTION.

Substituting an inferior article to the one asked for is poor policy on the part of any dealer. He is foolish who would attempt such a thing for he is bound to lose standing and trade.

Before offering one article in preference to another, the dealer must satisfy himself beyond all doubts that his recommendation is going behind goods of the right quality. There are in every store goods that will pay the grocer to push because of the margin of profit. In figuring the margin he gets on goods, the dealer should, however, estimate—and the manufacturer is justified in asking him to estimate—the profit received on the turn-over, as well as on the individual sale. Some lines move more readily than others because of their quality plus liberal advertising, and providing a fair profit is allowed, these are goods it will pay the dealer to push. These are the goods on which it will pay him to broaden the scope of demand by his own personal salesmanship.

But beware of substituting an inferior article to the one asked for. It is business suicide, because it lessens the confidence your customers are prone to repose in you, and even if your profit at the time should be greater you will lose in the end.

TIME FOR GOOD WINDOW DISPLAYS.

With the arrival of the longer evenings, better opportunities for making sales through the medium of the display windows are presented. This will be turned to good use by the progressive merchant.

Not alone are the evenings longer, but the temperature is such that a passerby will be inclined to stop and inspect the window that is attractively trimmed.

The merchant should keep this in view when making his displays and have them so arranged as to catch the eye. The difference between an attractive and unatractive window is mostly in the difference in time spent in planning and arranging it. Time spent in this work is valuable.

That the window may catch the eye during the evening, it is most necessary that it be well lighted. This is another side of the display question that the merchant should consider. Sometimes, proper lighting does not mean so much how many lights are used, as how they are situated. This point needs studying, too.

Good displays with proper lighting during the fall months will bring good results. The grocer should work with that in mind.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It is not a wise plan to let well enough alone when something better is within reach.

Now it's molasses that is advancing in price. It goes up in sympathy with the sugar incline.

The merchant and his clerks need a reasonable amount of rest, but the store is not the place to take it.

You can never tell when business is going to come your way. The customer who does not want a bag of salt to-day may require a hundred of sugar to-morrow.

Wide Awake Methods of Retailing

Curtain for Window Background—Some Ideas on Ad. Writing—Hunting Season Taken Advantage of—How Price Tickets are Valuable in Making Sales.

The Grocer will pay any dealer or clerk for practical items for this page.

Curtain Used for Background.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Fraser, Viger & Co. have a simple and effective background for a window that may be of interest to other grocers. The floor of the display window is only about two feet above the store floor, and no board background is used. Instead, about six or eight feet above the ground floor a metal rod extends across the window at the rear. From this a curtain may be hung. The curtain is back about five feet from the glass and thus ample room is allowed for displays. The curtain may be changed as often as desired.

Any dealer will recognize the commendable features of this idea in preference to buliding a permanent wooden background to enclose the window as is often done. During the cooler months when flies are not present, it is the best as it allows a change of background when desired and also allows more freedom in arranging the display.

Cultivates Present Customers.

Edmonton, Alta., Sept. 28.—"I try," said a local merchant, "to sell a customer all her wants. A grocer has in many cases numerous customers who buy a little from him but their purchases do not amount to any great volume. This is the kind of customer whose trade I try to increase. I give her the best goods and service possible, and do everything that will tend to attract her closer to the store.

"Many grocers try to secure as large a number of customers as possible but do not attempt to make each customer's trade as large as it might be made by cultivation. I think it would be much more profitable to cultivate the trade of old customers instead of rushing off for new business."

China Premium With Grocery Order.

Fort William, Ont., Sept. 24—Kirkup & Wilkie, grocers, are clearing out their china stock, and to do so and also help their grocery department, they are giving, free, with every $5 grocery order, two pieces of china. Their ad. in the local paper reads. "Free—Free—To clear out our china stock we will give free with every $5 grocery order, two hand-painted Limoges fruit, soup, dinner, tea or bread and butter plates. These are genuine French Limoges china, beautifully hand painted, and are valued at from 50c to 90c each. You will never get another chance like this. Don't delay. Order now."

A Unique Introdoction.

Sudbury, Ont., Sept. 28.—The J. D. Taylor grocery of this town take a great interest in giving something new and interesting to their customers in their newspaper advertising. The accompanying reproduction of one of their recent ads. illustrates this, particularly the introduction.

And Suddenly there came refreshing rains and the fruits and vegetables increased abundantly so that the cost thereof was less than aforetime.

Catching the Hunter's Trade.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—In keeping with their progressive methods in the grocery business, Fraser, Viger & Co., Ltd., published recently an advertisement that should appeal to hunters. They call attention to the fact that they provide hampers already packed with the necessities and quite a few of the luxuries that make the meal in the woods worth remembering. Part of the introduction to the "ad." reads as follows: "The hunting season is again at hand, and our friends are all getting ready for a few days' sport among the mountains, rivers and lakes. If you are intending going away for a short trip, you cannot do better than let us fit you out with your groceries, provisions, cigars, etc. We have for years made a specialty of this particular class of trade, and understand thoroughly all the details as to the packing, shipping, etc."

Then follows a list of some of the goods that are indispensable to the woodsmen with a six hours' hunger.

Value of Price Tickets.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 28.—"Those little pieces of pasteboard may look insignificant," said a local grocer this week, "but to me they are of value, and are as good as a well-informed clerk about the store." He was referring to price tickets which figure prominently on the greater part of his goods, and which he makes a specialty of having neat, distinct, attractive to a certain extent as regards design. He said that some might not think this latter feature of any consequence, but to his way of thinking, when a price card was cut oval, oblong or diamond shape, it was more noticeable than when in the form of an "awkward square."

"I have noticed women come into the store," he said, "and while making their objective purchase, they will naturally glance about them. These little pasteboard price tickets appeal to them, and I see them pondering as to whether or not the article is worth the money asked. By having the price displayed on the tickets, it relieves them of having to ask questions, or of feeling embarrassed if they have decided to buy and later, on learning the price, decide the article is too dear.

"There is also another good feature in having these price tickets," he contnued. "There s no necessity of any time being wasted in useless conversation in the asking and imparting of information, and this is certainly important on a busy day. That's the time they prove their value."

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Jobbers state that business is highly satisfactory. They apparently speak from a feeling that the people will now resume the even tenor of business, for it is as yet too soon to expect any results from the elections. There is no doubt that until the present week attention was more or less diverted from business, although trade remained good even throughout the crisis. However, with the opening of October real results of the resumption of busines should be apparent. We have had a great harvest, labor has been wholly employed during the year, and there is an air of prosperity that bespeaks a good fall trade, and a bright outlook for Christmas. The dried fruit season is almost here, housecleaning is still under way, the fruit season is at its height and the trade are gradually passing from the summer to the fall demand. Under the existing conditions it is surely worth the effort of making the close of 1911 even more profitable than the seasons that have passed. The country is prosperous and gives every promise of continuing so, a consideration that alone would suggest an attempt at securing an increase over last year's fall and Christmas trade.

Sugar.—Sugar remains at last week's figure. It is difficult to form an opinion as to what the next movement will be. The market is still firm and will apparently retain that position for some time. In the United States new crop sugar is expected shortly and will likely weaken the market, but their price now is greatly in excess of the local figure. Demand for sugar is good the fruit season being still at its height.

Dried Fruits.—Valancia raisins have been advancing and quotations now show an increase of 4s. over the figures offered but a short time ago. Jobbers are now beginning preparations for the delivery of dried fruit orders. There is a sign of new life in the demand for raisins, currants, etc., and it should only be a short time until business in this department will be commanding the most attention. There is a reported scarcity in the larger sized prunes. One jobber summing up the market, said Valencia raisins were likely to be much firmer and that apricots would not likely go any higher.

Tea.—One report in regard to India tea says that the average sale price for August was 9 5-8d. as compared with 8¼d. per lb. for the corresponding month of last year. The same report referring to Ceylon tea continues—"The London public sale offerings amounted to 93,000 packages as compared with 141,000 packages for the same month last year. There was a general tendency toward an improvement in quality of the teas from the gardens of high elevation. These, naturally created better competition, higher prices being paid for all those teas showing the improvement. The average sales price for the month was 9d. per lb. against 7 7-8d. per lb. during the same month last year. Another report states that the outturn to July 31st was nine million pounds ahead of the figures for the same time last year. A smaller production was expected during August and September but given normal conditions they estimated that the total crop would be about ten million pounds ahead of last year. Shipments of Indian tea to the United Kingdom from the opening of the season to the end of August were 7½ million lbs. in excess of last year.

In regard to Japan tea the home market for new leaf has continued firm since last issue, but notwithstanding this the demand has beeen quite active at advanced prices. The new teas arriving are giving general satisfaction, there being absolutely no objection to their natural color while there is a distinct improvement in the cup quality.

Coffee.—The market has been advancing during the past few weeks and prices to the trade have shown an increase. Statistics generally indicate the strength of the market. Roasters have recently sent out advices to their customers to the effect that prices have been advancing and that everything seemed to point to still further movement in that direction.

Canned Goods.

Montreal.—Jobbers expect to have the figures for tomatoes, corn and peaches this week. It is admitted that the canners waited until the disposition of reciprocity was determined, in any event; however, the announcement of prices will be welcomed if it were for no other purpose than settling doubts. There is a healthy demand for canned goods, including fish, vegetables and fruits. This is part of the fall trade and it has certainly made itself felt in no uncertain manner already. Salmon is steady.

Toronto.—Strength is not lacking in general canned goods. The whole tone of the market is one of steadiness. The fact that numerous lines were short and the good demand in evidence is responsible. The dealer has only to recall the short packs in general to sum up the situation.

Jams are short in this year, most particularly raspberry and strawberry. In Canada, strawberry showed the greatest shortage, in England, raspberry.

Salmon is another line in which shortage is present and prices are well maintained, and not alone is this confined to Canada. Most especially is the shortage present in the best grades. Some wholesale houses are said to have held off in purchases in the hopes of reciprocity. "I don't know where they are going to get supplies," said one broker. "I am completely sold out." The total pack of sockeye in British Columbia is set at 365,000 cases as compared with 565,915 in 1910. The total of all kinds is said to be 750,000 cases as against 762,201 in 1910.

Prices on tomatoes, corn, beets, pumpkin, peaches and other late fruits and vegetables are expected at any time. Tomatoes which have been on the market for some time are selling at various prices, which the announcement from canners will settle.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Sept. 28.—There is a tinge of quietness in the local grocery trade this week, which is almost unexplainable. Perhaps the country has not yet got back to a normal state after the excitement of the elections, but the good business previous to that event would go to prove that trade was influenced but little by it. It is just probable that a part of it can be explained by this being the last week of a month in which retailers bought heavily and they are waiting for October before doing further buying. There are no complaints being heard in regard to collections and conditions generally seem to be in a healthy state. Prospects are also bright for a substantial trade during the remainder of the year.

There is considerable speculation as to the next move in the sugar market and when it will come. There has been a good demand for some time back, but just whether this indicates the amount of consumption is uncertain. There is no doubt though that there has been a good demand for preserving purposes on account of the plentitude of late fruits and the small amount of early fruits that were preserved.

Sugar.—Sugar prices remain the same as last week. The market is apparently steady but the outcome problematic. A variety of different opinions on the probable outcome of the market are expressed. There are some who believe that prices will hold until January, but there are others who expect it to break before then. One sugar man predicted that sugar would ease around November 1st. He said: "A large portion of the Louisiana crop has been sold at prices said to be 40 or 50 cents under to-day's raw prices. This crop will begin to arrive at refineries around the first of November. When they begin to sell it, I expect the market to decline, that is barring any further bad news from Europe or from Cuban cane." This is the opinion of one man, and may probably indicate that the ideas of dealers are less bullish than a short time ago. However, it is not to be denied that there are others who expect the market to hold until the first of the year, but the fact that there is less strength in future raws is worthy of note. The market at the moment is holding steady.

Syrups and Molasses.—The syrup trade has taken on more life during September, as it generally does. However, retailers seem to be taking hold early this year. Prices are steady, while the same is also true of molasses. A routine trade is reported in the latter.

Dried Fruits.—Valencia raisins and currants both maintain a position of strength. There are features bearing on the Valencia raisin market that would not make further advances a surprise. It can be well said that prunes are holding their own. The large sizes will be particularly scarce, even 50 to 60s. being held at a premium. One report says that in California about 18 per cent. will grade into 100s or smaller, sizes which find but little sale on this market or in fact any place. Apricots and peaches are slightly easier on the coast, but they need to be, as opening prices were almost prohibitive.

New crop Valencia raisins are expected to arrive on the Toronto market any day. One dealer quotes new selected at 7½ cents. The market is bare of dried fruits, even raisins and currants. Prunes have been shipped but none have been received.

Tea.—One tea report on Ceylon tea, dated September, says: "The common and low medium descriptions, in sympathy with the Indian market, showed advances, with the result that the average of public sale prices for the month was 1½d. per lb. more than the average of the corresponding month of last year. The latest news from India is that they are experiencing particularly good weather for the manufacture of quantity. One report says: "It is yet too early to anticipate the extent of the Indian crop, but up to date it is certainly very satisfactory to know that 12,000,000 lbs. more have been manufactured than for the same period last year. With regard to Ceylon, it is hardly likely that production will be more than, if as much, as last year."

Coffee.—The coffee market is firm, both locally and elsewhere, and there is decided strength in local prices. In New York, coffee futures have reached the highest point in 16 years, and similar strength is reflected in spot stocks. With different varieties going upward, the margin on standard blends is being completely cut away, so manufacturers declare. "For instance," said one dealer, Rios in the past year have just doubled in price." Thus is the present strength in the market accounted for.

Spices.—It will not be a surprise to retailers to find that higher prices are generally being asked for both white and black pepper. The strength in that market has been apparent for some time. There has been a marked falling off in the production of every grade this year. Cloves have been marked up 1 cent per pound also.

Shredded cocoanut is higher, local quotations running from 19 to 22 cents per pound. At one time in certain sections of the West Indies, cocoanuts were somewhat of a drug on the market and producers had considerable trouble in getting rid of supplies. Conditions have, however, changed, for while demand has increased, production has not. One dealer stated that he had advices from Jamaica and Cuba that in recent years a rot has attacked the trees and interfered with the total yield.

Beans.—Any dealers who have supplies of beans are getting high prices for them. There are but few to be had. This year's crop will apparently be a trifle larger than last year, and the quality so far is better, "Even if the crop is a little larger," said one dealer, "I expect to see prices rule firm during the year as there will be a big demand from construction and lumber camps." There will be some arrivals within the next week. Prices will undoubtedly lower as supplies come on the market.

Evaporated Apples.—"Evaps" are being made quite freely throughout Ontario, and the tendency is towards a lower market. There has been quite a good demand owing to the clean-up of old stock.

Broom.—Last year the broom corn market opened around $85 per ton, while to-day sales are ranging around $140 to $150. That is the reason for the recent rise in brooms and the present strength. A local broom manufacturer just returned from a trip through Illinois, Kansas and Oklahoma, the broom corn producing districts, says that the early crop of corn was just as large as last year but manufacturers who needed supplies rushed in and the result was an excited market, while prices rushed upward. At first under such conditions he believed the market would recede to a lower level, but in his own words, "Broom manufacturers went crazy," with the result that 90 per cent. of the crop of Kansas and Oklahoma has been sold at high prices. "Under such conditions," he said, "there is only one conclusion I can come to and that is that the ensuing year will see high prices on brooms."

There is still a later crop of corn to be harvested and just how it will turn out is uncertain, as is also the possible effect, if any, it will have on prices. Farmers will no doubt hold for the high prices of the early crop. Present circumstances would seem to indicate a higher range on brooms than during the past season.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

POINTERS.—

Salmon.—Market bare.

Syrup.—Advanced.

Coffee.—Advancing.

Beans.—Steady.

Winnipeg, Sept. 26.—Trade during the week was broken into to some extent by the Dominion elections, but is expected to return to its normal basis before many days are out. It is predicted that an increase will be noticed in the next month as men will be able to settle down to their own business, and that a wave of prosperity will continue to spread over the entire West.

Harvesting is almost completed except in the late sections, and threshing operations are in full swing throughout the length and breadth of the country. Many encouraging reports are being received to the effect that threshing results are turning out better than the most optimistic had claimed they would. This fact is creating a feeling of safety and business men as well as farmers feel more than ever that great results can be expected from the West.

In general grocery lines, trade has been normal with orders a little on the small side this week on the account of the elections. Syrup which has been very quiet during the last three months showed its awakening by advancing 5 cents per case during the week. The high price of sugar at present is attributed to the advance. Salmon at present cannot be secured at any price, the market being completely bare.

Sugar.—The upward march in sugar appears to have received a temporary check at least. Wholesalers refuse to offer any predictions, but the feeling seems to tend towards steady prices for a while at any means. Stocks are of medium size and while the market remains strong the demand is normal. Prices remain unchanged.

Syrup and Molasses.—Considerable activity was noticed in syrup during the week, owing to the high price of sugar. All corn syrup advanced slightly during the week. Molasses, however, remains unchanged. Orders for logging camps are beginning to arrive and it is expected that with the arrival of cold weather an active movement will be noticed. New prices are :

Nova Scotia Markets.

Halifax, Sept. 21.—The wholesale grocery business was practically at a standstill during the past week on account of the elections. High prices still prevail in all lines, and this has a tendency to restrict business. In sympathy with the high prices in the sugar market, molasses has been advanced. Fancy Barbados is now quoted at 35 cents per gallon. The new crop of Valencia raisins is now on the way, and will be sold for about eight cents per pound.

New Canadian onions are being offered to the trade at $1.90 per bag. This advance is considerable over last price.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, Sept. 28.—The past week was a quiet one on the local market, and interest seemed centred more in the elections than in business. There were few changes in prices of any importance, and with the majority of business houses, the travelers came into the city off their territory in order to vote.

Molasses has been following close after sugar, and with indications that another advance may soon be looked for, fancy Barbados in casks is selling at 34 cents. There has been no change in sugar on this market since the 8th inst., but advices received here are to the effect that New York refiners have advanced another 75 cents per hundred. The American jobbers are now paying $7.50 per hundred for standard granulated in New York.

The highest point this year has been reached in pork, and the market at present is at a standstill. Lard is firm. Cheese, eggs and butter are also firm, cheese being up a cent.

LIBRARY VOTING CONTEST.

Hamilton Retailer Opposed to It Strongly—Compares It to Trading Stamp Episode.

Editor Canadian Grocer :—A regretable feature in trade circles here just now is the introduction of a scheme to lure money from the pockets of business men, who should manifestly have a little more sense than to have got caught. I refer to the Library Voting Contest. If I remember rightly it has been fully explained in your columns, it is just as bad for the dealers as the old trading stamp episode, only I think in the long run it will cost the merchants more. I am sorry to say that one of our leading wholesale drug and specialty manufacturers has been caught in the net, and as they control a number of retail stores it puts the voting on in all corners of the city. E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association here of the consequences of the scheme, and am pleased to say that only one grocer is in the game. I think it would be a kindness on your part to once again explain to the merchants how the scheme works out.

Editor Canadian Grocer :—I have been a reader of your most valued trade paper for "twenty years" and have received many helpful suggestions. The articles of Henry Johnson, Jr., are very practical and well written. The Grocers' Letter Box would be far more helpful if more of us would use it. Will you kindly answer the following : "Mr. and Mrs. Brown have been steady regular paying customers for ten years. Mr. Brown contracts heavy cold, which develops into a fatal disease. After Mr. Brown's death Mrs. Brown pays some on account ; then Mrs. Brown marries Mr. Jones. Can I sue Mr. and Mrs. Jones jointly for balance ? The answer to same will much oblige.

How Montreal Grocer Extends His Sales

Prints Show-Cards With a Five Cent Brush and Bottle of Stove Polish—They Are a Part of His Salesmanship Campaign.

Montreal, Sept. 21.—(Special)—A five cent brush and a bottle of stove polish is the equipment with which one Montreal grocer prepares the show-cards he places in his windows and in conspicuous points throughout the store. E. P. Dame does not attempt artistic flourishes. "I leave that to the millinery stores where it is appropriate. The plain style is all I ever tried and I think it is sufficient here when you are selling butter, cheese and the other commodities." But he has succeeded very well in acquiring a bold letter that makes his words stand out. It is just a little proof that others can do the same thing and should even do better in these days when every opportunity is presented to the aspiring clerk of facilitating the elementary steps.

M. Dame values his show-cards for the salesmanship assistance they lend him. "It is strange," he said recently to The Grocer, "that so many customers do not know what they want and moreover, they do not know what they need. You have to suggest one thing after another. This becomes monotonous at times, and by a glance around the store the customer's memory will be called to the various articles she may need. There is a sign in regard to tea. Well, my customer may not want that kind of tea, but she remembers that the tea canister is nearly empty and she asks for the kind she prefers. While you are serving one customer, another can see for herself what the various prices are. Then there is less interrupting you for the time being. Besides it concentrates their interest upon new honey, cheese, eggs, butter, etc., when they see the price and a written assurance of the quality of the various staples. Eggs on display are merely eggs, but with a card telling the customer that they are fresh and also giving the price—well, what more could I say? I might say it differently, but after all, the card had practically done the greater part of a salesman's work. This applies to all the staples. Eggs are but an example."

M. Dame's cards might not elicit the admiration of show-card experts, but he says that there are few of these same experts entering his store. Besides, he does not pose as an artist. It is sufficient to say that the letters are plain, that the different notices attract attention, that the ability to write them was self-acquired and that they are an asset in this particular store. The point to be emphasized is that others who may have responsible positions in the grocery business have the opportunity to acquire even greater results than has this grocer who uses only a five-cent brush and stove pipe polish. The style of lettering in one locality might not appeal to the customers of a store in a different locality. In the one, the women are the wives of workingmen, in the other they possibly have an art association, and while they may not expect a Durer or a Holbein's work they might look for something that does not suggest materials such as those mentioned above.

M. Dame also uses an outside board regularly. This is to attract the attention of the passersby. The writer has met quite a number of grocers who by dint of practice learned to write a fair letter for sign purposes. They had not the advantages of the youth of to-day, and yet under the circumstances they did well.

Easiness Continues in Live Hog Prices

Prices are Easier Again This Week Under Liberal Supplies—Trade Continues on a Moderate Scale — Smoked Meats are Slacker—Better Demand for Lard—Butter and Eggs Maintain a Steady Tone—Cheese at a High Price.

The tendency in live hogs is still one of easiness, further declines in price being reported from most markets this week. This is the season of the year when receipts of hogs are generally quite liberal, and in this regard this year is no exception to the rule. This present abundance of porkers with none too encouraging cables from the English bacon market has been responsible for the recent decline.

Trade in pork products is an appreciable scale. The demand for smoked and cooked meats is naturally not so brisk as during the summer, but any lack of briskness in these lines is made up for in others. With the cooler weather lard is in better demand and the price is ruling steady. With the recent decline in live hog prices, there is at least no firmness in general provision prices.

Butter prices exhibit a tone of steadiness. In the east the production seems to be quite large, but in the West it has been dropping off, and prices have been advancing. The result is that any surplus of stocks on Ontario or Quebec markets is taken by the West. Egg production just at the present is not large, although receipts are rather liberal in some districts. The demand is good, especially for best grade, and the market is generally firm.

Cheese still maintains its position of firmness, and although high prices are no doubt curtailing trade somewhat, there is still a fair demand in evidence. The demand from the English market has not been so brisk, although prices continue steady there. Indeed, by the high price of cheese, many combination factories which were engaged in making butter have changed to cheese-making.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—Pure lard has been firm during the past week, but live and dressed hogs are a little easier. There is a fair demand for hams and bacon, but barrelled pork is reported a little slow.

Provisions.—Live hogs are 15 cents per cwt. lower again this week. On September 1 they reached the highest point since October last, but have since declined a dollar all but 5 cents. One year ago hogs at country points were quoted at $8.75, as compared with $6.75 to-day. The late decline is attributed to the larger hog supply, which is always freer at this time of the year.

Provisions are unchanged, but with lower hogs, prices at least are not marked by any firmness. One year ago breakfast bacon was 20 cents, while to-day it is 16 to 18 cents; roll bacon 15 cents, to-day 11½ to 12; long clear 15 cents, to-day 12 to 13; while lard in tierces then 15, is to-day 10½ cents.

Honey.—Prices on honey are well maintained, stocks when compared with other years not being large. The yield of dark honey this year is about the same as that of 1910. Owing to the shortage in fruits resulting in less home canning, dealers expect a good demand for honey during the coming season.

WINNIPEG.

Poultry.—All classes of poultry at the present time with the exception of spring chickens are being received on the market, but the lack of chickens is beginning to cause serious comment. Prices at present quoted are:

Boiling fowl, delivered Winnipeg	0 10	Spring chickens	0 15
Turkey, del. Winnipeg	0 14	Ducks	0 14
		Geese	0 10

Butter.—The receipts of both dairy and creamery butter are very light and as a result prices have started to rise rapidly. Manitoba creamery bricks are now quoted at 28 cents per pound, an advance of two cents per pound over previous quotation, while the shortage may be attributed somewhat to harvesting operations, there is evidence of an almost universal shortage in Canada. Manitoba fresh made boxes are ½c per pound below the bricks. Dairy remains unchanged, strictly No. 1 delivered Winnipeg being quoted at 17c, No. 2, at 12 to 14 cents and No. 3 at 7 to 9 cents.

Cheese.—Predictions to the effect that very high prices will prevail this year are being heard from all quarters. Supplies have been light during the week, one large company receiving only 50 boxes and claim that it is impossible to get any more. Statements are made that there is going to be a big shortage of this product and that higher prices will prevail.

SHORT TALKS TO CLERKS

The Clerks of To-day are the Merchants of To-morrow

All clerks are not salesmen. Many are merely waiters. This is a fact that merchants are well aware of. The sales sheets of the different members of the staff demonstrate the fact most plainly. The ability of a clerk to make sales above actual demand is generally the gauge for the size of his pay envelope. Therefore, it behooves the clerk to develop his salesmanship ability.

Just because in the past you have not been a top notcher is no reason why you should not become so. The main essentials in this regard are increased efforts backed by a certain amount of study and common sense. Instead of merely handing over the counter the articles which customers ask for, make an effort to sell them other goods which you carry in stock. This will necessitate a little study to ascertain the talking points to be used with each article and the exercise of judgment in your attempt to introduce the additional lines.

Assist Sales by Display.

Every clerk, as well as the proprietor, recognizes the value of a properly dressed window in attracting the attention of customers and in selling goods. It is well for the clerk to work with a view of presenting better dressed windows and to increase their value as a selling agent.

He should constantly be on the outlook for any manner in which he can prepare a better window. He should carefully study all grocery windows he sees. From the good ones he will be able to ascertain new ideas along this line, while from a poor one he may study out what it lacks to be attractive. Then in his own displays he can avoid the bad features.

Study your own window and find out just the manner in which it should be trimmed to show up to the best advantage. A little effort in this direction will do a great deal.

Be on Time.

Much has been said in regard to punctuality. The desirability of the clerk being on time is so great that the question scarcely needs emphasis. However, even if he has determined to get down every morning on time there is apt to be some back-sliding unless he renews his good resolutions at times.

When the writer was a clerk he used to see how much he could accomplish, how nicely he could have the shelves arranged and how much business he could do before the proprietor arrived in the morning. He took an interest in getting down in the morning with this end in view. The employer realized the endeavors to do this, as every proprietor does, and gave full credit for it.

The Importance of Knowledge.

As in every line of endeavor, knowledge is a valuable asset in the grocery business. It allows the possessor of it to accomplish greater things both in sales and general advancement. Knowledge however, cannot be secured without study.

There are many things to be studied in the grocery business, among them, the sources and uses of goods handled, methods of selling goods, how to approach customers, how to display goods properly, management of the store, etc

A Practical Instance.

An example of how a little knowledge of goods helped one clerk will not be out of place here. He read an article on pineapples, their growth and food qualities. The next day by using the information when talking to customers he was able to interest them and make several sales.

In other lines handled, information regarding them can be turned to the same use.

The writer visited two stores the other day, both about of the same size and both carrying about the same stock; but one appeared to carry a good deal more goods than the other. The appearance of a small stock on the part of the one one store was the fault of the clerks. They had not given the proper attention to keeping it on the shelves in order. The appearance of a large stock is not the only value of well kept shelves. The shelves are in a manner silent salesmen, showing the goods up to the customers. Therefore you should have them so arranged that they will attract attention. The shelves are not merely a place to be filled up the same as under the counter. They are for showing goods to make sales.

Plan for the Future.

Ambition on the part of the clerk is something to be recommended. It will do much to bring advancement and success and the accompanying higher wages. Ambition is the something in the make-up of the clerk which engenders in him the desire to learn more about the business in which he is engaged. The result is increased interest in the business, a better knowledge of salesmanship, and all those many other features which eventually lead to success.

It is well that he possess that desired quality—initiative. The clerk with the inventive mind, who can think out new and improved methods of doing things, is the one in demand by business men throughout the country.

The mainspring of initiative is ambition and a desire to do things.

TRADE NOTES.

Holbrooks, Ltd., Toronto, are moving to larger quarters at the corner of King street and Atlantic avenue on Oct. 1, where they will have a railway siding to their building.

Some grocers in the United States use ice boxes on their delivery wagons during the warm weather. Their endeavor is to send out such goods as butter, lard, etc., under ideal conditions. Butter for instance is safeguarded from losing its firmness, and it finds its way from the grocer's refrigerator to the consumer's without any intermediate melting. The idea looks like a good one for more articles than have been named.

Fraser & Gaetz, Rocky Mountain House, Red Deer, Alta., are erecting an addition, 18 x 28 feet, to their general store. They are making special provision for a cellar for storing potatoes, apples, etc.

Down at Houston, Texas, housewives have started a movement to boycott the use of sugar on account of the high price.

Norman McLeod, president of the London Retail Grocers' Association, has the sympathy of many in the trade on account of the death of his mother last week.

A boy went into a shop to buy a ha'-pennyworth of nuts. The man at the counter, a cheery, good-natured soul, said to him:—

"You can have them mixed if you like."

"All right," said the boy; "you may put one or two cocoanuts in, if you please."

Grocers: The permanent success of any line of goods depends upon maintaining the quality. The cost of manufacture increases in proportion to the increased cost of labor and material. These facts and conditions must from time to time be considered by the manufacturer, and he must decide whether he shall increase the selling price or lower the quality of his goods.

Rolled Oats Highest in Two Years

Not Since August, 1909, Has Price Been as High as To-day—Mills Sold Well Ahead—Should be More Activity in Both Flour and Cereals at This Season of Year—Wheat and Oats Are Slightly Lower.

This is the season of the year when flour should take on more activity through the medium of the grocer. It is true that housewives are with cooler weather returning to the making of their own bread, but the chief reason lies in the general increase in activity at this time. Cereals also show a marked improvement at this time, and this year has been no exception to the rule. Dealers from various parts of the country report a better consumption, while the mills are already well sold ahead in this line.

Canadian wheat and oat prices affected to some extent prior to the elections are now adjusting themselves. Both of these cereals are slightly lower, although to no great extent. There are certain dealers who think that wheat prices may show some further easing. In this regard one dealer said that with the large yield of wheat in the West he didn't think prices could hold when deliveries start in full force. So far they have been small, only about one-half of the amount to the same time last year. This has been due to a later harvest, and the reciprocity issue also held back deliveries. Lower prices, he believed, will be necessary to get rid of the supplies as prices are now too far away from an export basis.

A bulletin from the Census Office, Ottawa, sets Canada's total wheat yield at 204,634,000 bushels as compared with 149,989,600 in 1910. Of this the three western provinces produce 184,728,000 bushels. The same report sets the oat yield in Canada at 368,153,000 bushels as against 323,449,000 last year. A department of agriculture report estimates the yield of wheat in eighteen of the principal producing countries of the world at 2,882,178,000 bushels as compared with 2,958,844,000 in the same countries last year. In the estimate is included Russia, United States, India and France, four of the big producing countries.

Ontario's crop of oats was poor this year, while that in the West showed a substantial increase. There will probably be considerable low grade oats.

Flour.—Flour prices are unchanged but steady. Trade is normal, the fall generally being the season of more activity in this line. Wheat prices influenced to some extent prior to the elections are adjusting themselves, and while there has been some decline, it has not been great as yet.

Ontario wheat is coming out but slowly, 86 cents being reached this week. The present is a fairly busy season for the farmer, but it is believed that deliveries will soon be freer. From New Brunswick, an advance of 15 cents per barrel on Ontario patents is reported.

STREETS FLOODED BY MOLASSES.

One million gallons of crude molasses went to waste with a loss of $100,000 at New Orleans, when a storage tank, the largest of its kind in the world, collapsed and sent a flood of molasses 15 feet high sweeping through the streets adjacent. Streets, yards and people were turned into sticky masses and it was several days before the mess was cleaned up. Millions of flies were immediately attracted by the sweet stuff.

His Knowledge of Geography is Quite Amusing

Montreal, Sept. 28.—What some clerks do not know about the grocery business has been the subject of many an amusing story, and J. A. Sharwood, an English grocer tells of an incident which came under his notice. He related it to show the necessity of an institute of certificated grocers.

A woman had been instructed by her physician to discontinue drinking tea. This was quite a sacrifice and she asked if she might not take a little. The doctor relented and permitted her to drink lightly of China tea, but it must be of the best quality.

She told the clerk at her grocery store that she must have some of his choice China tea. In a matter of fact way he made up a parcel, and several times the customer emphasized that this tea must be a China and it must be good. Finally she asked as the package was handed to her, "Now you're sure this is China tea?"

"Oh, yes, madam its one of our best, and I am sure you will like it."

Smilingly she explained why it must be that particular kind of tea, and as a last assurance the clerk said pointing to the package from which he had taken this pound—"Oh, its China alright. See there is the name Ceylon, on the front side."

AN ADVERTISING NOVELTY.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—East & Co., a Yonge street retail firm recently issued a small four-page booklet, that was unusual to say the least, as an advertising novelty. Its size was only 2x3 inches. On the front page were these words: "How we lost a customer," also adding the firm's name. The reader naturally opened it up to read the story, and his eyes met two simple words encased in a border of black. Those words were "He died." On the back the firm carried a small advertisement. These booklets which were distributed at the Exhibition attracted considerable attention and comment.

Domestic Fruit Trade on the Wane

Rush of Domestic Fruits Will Soon be Over—Supplies are Not So Plentiful—Considerable Trade in Grapes Expected Yet—The Yield of the Different Fruits—Prospects for Lemons—New Crop Arrive in November—Cranberry Prospects.

Not yet, but soon, will the rush of the domestic fruit season be over. Already a certain slackening can be felt. Although trade is as yet considerable, there is not the same continued hum around the fruit marts as has been in evidence. Supplies of late fruits are not so plentiful as has been the case for the past month or so. Plums have all but seen their day, while peaches are on the wane. Pears are still fairly plentiful while there will still be a considerable volume of trade in grapes.

Plums were earlier than usual this year, the crop being fairly good, but not excessive. In peaches, early Crawfords were light and late Crawfords somewhat better. In British Columbia, the crop was good but the area not large. Bartlett pears in Ontario were a medium crop, while some of the late varieties approached nearly a full yield. British Columbia showed a light yield of pears except Nelson, where a good crop is reported. Grapes are continuing to work generally for a full crop.

The warm weather of last week caused some revival in the lemon trade, but prices show no change. According to reports, present stocks are not heavy, and it is expected that decks will be well cleared before the arrival of new crop. They are not expected to arrive in any quantity before the middle of November. One dealer remarked in regard to the new crop that the early shipments will be rather light, due to an exceptionally heavy demand in European countries. The crop will probably not be as heavy as last season, although the quality will be good. Prices on the average may be a little higher due to increased general demand.

The weather has been a little warm for the sale of cranberries, and demand has been somewhat retarded. Prices rule about the same as for first arrivals. A recent report from producing centres says that the hopes of a big crop of cranberries this season by the growers on Cape Cod have been dashed by the extensive invasion of the fruit worm; and the estimates, which at the recent meeting of the Cape Cod Cranberry Growers' Association were placed at a figure that would indicate a 11 per cent. increase over 1910, are far above the crop that will be produced by the growers. The early brand, Early Blacks, which is now being picked on the bogs, has been found in poor condition, and it is very probable that the Howes, a berry which is picked later in the fall, will be affected by the same breed of worm.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruit.—The new apples are naturally creating an interest on the market. Quite a number of varieties are represented and there is a good general demand. Grapes are moving freely as also are pears, peaches and plums. There is nothing particularly new to report in this market. Business on the whole is good, but it is beginning to show signs of the transition of summer to fall trade.

Green Fruits.—The hum around the fruit market this week was not quite so marked. While a good trade is still in evidence, there is not the same abundance of fall fruits as during the past few weeks. Plums are on the wane, the best quality this week selling as high as $1.25. Shipments of peaches have also dwindled down, with some good quality still coming along, however, at unchanged prices. There will still be quite plentiful shipments of late pears to come along, while grapes will also be in evidence for a time. Supplies of Canadian sugar melons are getting smaller and the tendency of prices will be upward. Watermelons are off the market completely.

There has been a better demand for lemons during the temporary warm spell but prices show no change. Dealers say that stocks will be well out of the way before arrival of new crop which are not expected in any quantity before Nov. 15 or 20. Cranberries rule around $8.50 per barrel. The warm

New Brunswick potatoes are quoted at $1.20 per bag. Prices in the east are slightly higher due to a big general demand. Ontario stock which are coming along in rather limited quantities are not the best in quality, some arrivals not having fully matured.

FRUIT NOTES.

The first shipments of Florida grapefruit and oranges have arrived on the New York market.

The New York market is just now practically bare of limes. They come from Dominica.

Advices from Cape Cod state that the early cranberries are running far short of the estimates, the fruit worm being largely blamed.

The Ontario Apple Shippers' Association at a recent meeting passed a resolution to the effect that the closed auction rooms of England are detrimental to the Canadian apple shippers' interest, being, according to the wording of the resolution, "almost a combine."

Fish - Oysters

Bright Spots After Summer Dullness

Interest in Fish is Beginning to be Awakened — Favorable Improvement is Already in Evidence—Three Fish Days Last Week Helped Demand—New Lines are Arriving on Market—Halibut a Favorite—Oysters Doing Better.

Favorable improvement in the fish trade is in evidence in most of the centres of the Dominion. At some points trade has started off with a brisker stride than others, but business generally is reported quite good for the season.

Three fish days last week worked for a better demand and from now on with cooler weather the trade should gradually show increased activity

Halibut is still in good supply and continues one of the trade leaders. New fish lines are continuing to arrive, and with increased varieties, there should be more incentive for the retailer to take hold. Smoked and prepared lines are doing better, as are also oysters.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—The cooler weather has been beneficial to the trade and business is progressing favorably. The season should take on new activity as it goes on, from now until the first of the new year. Brook trout is arriving freely and the price is low. The season for this fish closes October 1. Halibut are arriving freely and salmon are in good supply. Lake trout are also plentiful with the price slightly reduced. Most of the fresh fish lines show fairly good supplies just now and if every week were as good as last there would be but little more to ask for. The demand for boneless and prepared and other varieties is improving. Oysters are in good demand and a good trade is reported. There is room for still further seasonable business in this department.

Display your Oysters in a "Coast-Sealed" Cabinet

This is the handsomest, most practical and convenient oyster display cabinet made.

It requires but ONE-EIGHTH the amount of ice used in other cabinets, owing to the vacuum chamber construction.

Ice tank sits in the centre, with three gallons of stock below and two above—thus enabling you to keep your stock absolutely fresh until the last pint is sold.

Sold Outright $17.00 f.o.b. Toronto

No strings attached—no jug-handled loaning agreements with the view of coercing you into buying any particular line of oysters.

Your own judgment will suggest that you handle only "Coast-Sealed" Oysters, because they are the cleanest, fattest, best flavored oysters on the market. They reach you in a container that is sealed at the coast and which holds nothing but pure oysters—all over four years old and with the real salt sea flavor unimpaired.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—Trade is again showing bright spots after the summer dullness. There has been no remarkable improvement, but there is an awakening of interest, which is regarded as favorable by dealers. New lines are arriving at intervals, Imperial cod, Quail on-toast and pickled lake herring having been added this week. Oysters are meeting with a fairly good reception, which will be improved as the weather gets cooler. Prices show no change.

Description of Goods Advertised Helps in Sales

Bare mention of goods even when prices are added will not sell in the same manner as if some description of the goods offered were given. In the first place people like to know something of the goods before they buy. Description is necessary if you would appeal strongly to the appetites and tastes of your customers. For instance you might say in your ad. "Lime juice—25c a bottle," but how much better it would be, and how much more it would be likely to interest customers if you said: "Lime juice—there is no more wholesome and refreshing drink than the pure juice of the lime fruit. That is what our lime juice is—25c a bottle."

It would undoubtedly require more space but results would well justify it. It will pay to mention less lines and describe them better. Herewith are some phrases you may use in the description of your goods:—

Our Cocoa—delicious, rich and pure. Unusual strength. Goes farther than most brands.

Peas—that are unusually sweet and tender.

Olives—popular with those who wish a rich appetizing olive.

Olive oil—The flavor is richer and smoother than most oils.

Cheese has as much nutriment as its weight in bacon or ham and is more digestible.

Flour—Blank brand bakes creamy and light bread, biscuits and cakes.

Corn starch—Quality always uniform. A wholesome, nutritious and palatable food.

Shredded cocoanut—Not sugared, but rich with its natural sweetness.

Brooms—The day of the big cumbersome broom in the home is past. Ours is light weight but the kind that wears well.

Coffee—Never a cup of more delicious coffee than is made from our brand.

The dealer should take plenty of time in writing his advertisements, to describe the lines mentioned so as to create the largest number of sales.

DONE UP IN BRIEF HINTS.

Do not only advertise, but give your ads. such attention that results will be profitable.

The Grocer's Encyclopedia—Coffee

How This Well-Known Beverage Was Discovered—It's Original Habitat was Probably in Southern Abyssinia—Facts Relating to It's Growth, Preparation and Roasting—Lose One-Sixth of Weight in Roasting—Information That Should Interest Both the Grocer and His Customers.

Starving and parched, a wanderer in the Arabian desert arrived at an oasis, and in despair threw himself down in the shadow of a tree to die. On the ground near him he found some berries that had been scorched in the ashes of a camp fire of former travelers. In desperation, he chewed the berries, was invigorated—and the world has been happy ever afterwards with its non-intoxicating cup of coffee.

The goats of an Abyssinian herdsman came home intoxicated every night and held high carnival instead of sleeping peacefully in the fold. Investigation showed that the goats owed their hilarity to some berries they found on certain bushes. The watchers gathered some of the berries and made an infusion of them in water which they drank. They became so invigorated that the habit grew throughout the tribe, and coffee becgme a national drink.

In contradiction of the first story, the Persians claim the discovery of the process of roasting coffee berries. However the important feature is that we have this invigorating beverage.

The Coffee Tree.

The coffee of commerce is the fruit derived from the Coffea Arabica, a tree belonging to the family Rubiaceoe. In its natural or wild state, it grows to a height of eighteen or twenty feet, but for the convenience of the pickers on the coffee plantation the plant is kept down to ten to twelve feet.

The original habitat of this extensively cultivated plant was probably Southern Abyssinia, but at least as early as the sixteenth century it was introduced into Arabia. Thence it found its way into Ceylon and the East Indies. It is also a historical fact that the inhabitants of Constantinople were enjoying their daily coffee in 1554. In 1714 an Amsterdam magistrate sent a coffee plant to Louis XIV., of France, propagations from which tree found their way to Martinique and Hayti. Porto Rico obtained her first plant from these sources. In the 16th century, Java acquired the first plants.

How the Berries Grow.

The fruit of the coffee tree grows on branches under the leaves. The seeds or berries are plano-convex and are enclosed in pairs with a paper like membrane between them. A thick husk or fibrous coating envelops the seed. For commercial purposes the coffee fruit should not be picked until ripe, when they much resemble cherries in color.

The process of preparation of the fruit before being ready for the market is not a simple one. The first requirement is to free the berries from their surrounding husk. This process is known as "pulping," and the primitive method was prolonged soaking in water and then drying in the sun, the pulpy mass afterwards separated from the berry, after bruising in a trough with stone rollers, by fanning. The present scientific method is to place the fruit in water tanks until the husks are in such condition that they are easily removed, when they are transported to the "pulping" machine. The latter consists of a revolving cylinder coated with an irregular surface that scrapes away the fibrous envelope and frees the berries, which are carried away automatically.

Next comes a fermenting process in water for about two days to soften the saccharine covering on the berries, when the sticky coating is removed by stirring in a stream of water. The berries are now dried on cemented floors or by hot air in a revolving iron cylinder. After drying they are subjected to a cleaning process in a machine that removes the skinlike covering that still encloses them. An air blast then eliminates the objectionable skins and the beans are ready for the "separator," which latter machine assorts the seeds according to their different sizes. After the defective berries are removed by hand, they are what is known to the trade as "green" coffee and are ready for shipment.

Lose One-Sixth in Weight.

On arrival, the berries are again assorted and put through a further cleaning process. They are now ready for "roasting," which is done in a heated cylinder having automatic apparatus for its continual agitation. This parching operation is carried on at a loss of about one-sixth in weight, the bulk, however, being increased a third.

A rapid cooling of the beans becomes necessary when they have attained a satisfactory brown color, in order that all the heat be eliminated, or the roasting will continue fed by latent heat. The cooling method consists of loading the berries in metal cars with perforated bottoms, through which suction pumps draw off the heat. This latter process "seals up" the essential oil in the bean (on which coffee depends for its aroma and flavor) by hardening the glutinous surface of the berry.

Although everyone is familiar with coffee as a beverage, few know much about it's origin or history, where it is grown, cultivated, or cured. Perhaps you have found something here of interest to you. It is just probable that those same facts will interest your customers.

Why Two Flours—If One is Better?

Remember this, Brother Grocer—
FIVE ROSES is not milled for pastry cooking alone.
Nor for bread baking alone.
But for BOTH — it's meant for both—milled for both.
A general household flour —a genuine family flour.
Milled entirely from the best pastry producing parts of the Manitoba wheat berry.
From the driest, whitest, purest parts.
Ground much finer than a flour meant exclusively for breadmaking.
Just as our second grade (called HARVEST QUEEN) is meant for bread bakers.
FIVE ROSES is infinitely superior than such flours —better color, better flavor, easier to handle, keeps better.
But to make good pastry and equally good pastry, FIVE ROSES needed Strength.
In order to make big, fat, healthy loaves with tender crust and spongy crumb. It had to contain more gluten—more of the purest quality gluten, neither too soft nor too tough.
Also remember, Brother Grocer—
The woman proud of her bread wants to be proud of her pastry.
She wants to be a good cook all 'round—sell her flour that is good all 'round.
She uses the same butter, the same sugar, the same eggs, the same oven.
Why not the same flour?
Most flours are not made for every recipe in her cookbook—but made for only one purpose.
Takes time, and trouble, and knowledge, and milling science to produce a flour to suit your customer's every wish.
But FIVE ROSES makes good bread and good pastry.
It is milled on purpose.
Therefore it is best for the housewife, best for your customers—best for every single one of them.
Don't you see the opportunity to give better service, better flour service?
Serve best and you profit best, Brother Grocer.
And then, just see how your sales are simplified by selling only FIVE ROSES:
Less bookkeeping — less correspondence—less mistakes—less excuses — less trouble—smaller stocks—steadier sales—regular repeats—stronger salesmanship through specializing.
If others are doubling their sales — why not YOU?
Don't delay — ask your jobber—or write our nearest office.
DO IT NOW!

FIVE ROSES
is packed to suit your trade in barrels and halves—also in bags of 7, 14, 24, 49 & 98 lbs.

Mince Meat Talk

¶ If there is any article that people should be able to pass judgment on as to quality, it is Mince Meat.

It must be therefore to the great advantage of every store to sell only the best.

¶ Beyond a shadow of doubt Clark's English Mince Meat IS ABSOLUTELY THE FINEST PROCURABLE.

Only the very best of Selected Fruits and Spices are used, and, to sum up the whole question of Mince Meat quality, Clark's is equal at least to any home make.

CLARK'S ENGLISH MINCE MEAT IS PUT UP IN

5, 10, 25, 45 and 85 lb. Pails. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 lb. Cans and 1 lb. "Inglass" Brand.

Make a point of getting your supply of CLARK'S MINCE MEAT early. It's better to be a little in front than behind.

A SOURCE OF PROFIT IN ARROWROOT

One of the best gifts of the New World has only recently come to its own in a large way. For a century or more St. Vincent has shipped the bulk of the world's supply because St. Vincent Arrowroot is the best.

Recently, the enormous increase of the use of cocoa and chocolates and the study of domestic science and nursing have brought it into common use among a much larger portion of the people.

There is a large profit for the dealer in handling Arrowroot as it rapidly makes its way among the consumers.

Arrowroot makes delicious Blanc Manges, Puddings, Biscuits, Cakes, etc., and is invaluable as a diet for invalids.

Samples, recipes, grades and prices given on application to the Secretary of the St. Vincent Arrowroot Growers' and Exporters' Association

New PEAS (with MINT) in Cooking Nets (Farrow's Patent)

You may have new peas now, or at any time of the year, if you buy Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas and cook them as directed.

FARROW'S 'Patent Net' PEAS

are the finest early green peas, gathered at the beginning of the season when peas are sweetest, most tender and delicious. Our process preserves ALL their natural flavour. When cooked they are so delicious and tender that you cannot detect them from fresh garden peas. They are very easily cooked and remarkably cheap —a 10 cent Net provides liberal portions for 8 people. Farrow's "Patent Net" Peas are English grown, absolutely pure, free from all preservatives and colouring matter.

The grandest 10 cent line the Old Country has ever sent us.

A Statement in Full

That is what the user of a McCaskey Account Register gives his customers after each purchase.

At the time of the sale the merchant who uses the McCaskey Gravity Account Register System posts and totals each account to date. He cuts out all useless bookkeeping (posting and copying from one book to another), prevents errors in his accounts and disputes with customers, because each patron has the same record of his account and in the same handwriting as he has, prevents forgo ten charges; that is, goods sold but never charged, collects his money automatically and faster than any human agency could collect it, has an automatic credit limit and is protected against loss of insurance in case of fire because with the McCaskey System proof of loss can be furnished in an hour's time to the satisfaction of any insurance adjuster

Seventy thousand retail merchants are using the McCaskey System and tell us that it pays for itself several times in the course of the first year it is installed.

A CONFECTIONERY CONTEST

To Dealers and Clerks:—

¶ Your ideas are worth money to us. We will pay you for them.

¶ Believing there is a still brighter future for the retail grocery dealer who lends his Selling Power and that of his clerks to the Confectionery Department, we are offering prizes for best methods of handling this class of goods.

THE QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED ARE THESE:

Why should every grocery dealer handle Confectionery and how can it best be handled to produce the maximum turn-over, profit and good will?

¶ For the four best essays on this subject we offer the following: First prize, $5 in cash; Second, $3 in cash; Third, The Canadian Grocer for one year and Fourth, The Canadian Grocer for six months.

¶ All articles must be in by Saturday, October 28. Sit down now and send your ideas. The more you study this problem the more profitable will your Confectionery Department become.

Results will be given in our big Fall Campaign Number of November 3.
Decisions will rest with committee composed of nine of the Editors of the MacLean Trade Newspapers

Opening Prices on Late Canned Goods

Majority of Late Fruits and Vegetables Have Opened at 2½ Cents Higher Than Last Year—Plums a Good Pack, and the Price is Lower Than Last Season—Only About 40 per Cent. of Tomatoes Will be Delivered—90 per Cent. of Corn—Blueberries Scarce and High.

The opening prices on late canned fruits and vegetables, which have been eagerly awaited by the trade in general have been named. The anxiety to ascertain these prices has been greater on account of the outturn of the earlier varieties, and it was wondered what relief, if any, from the general situation the later packs would bring.

While none of the prices when general information which we have had concerning the prospects are considered, are in the nature of a shock to those interested, still it brings out the fact that quite high prices on general canned goods will rule during the ensuing twelve months.

Early Estimates Favorable.

On account of the ever increasing demand for canned goods, canners this year put forth every effort to put up as large a pack as possible. Early estimates indicated a big yield but the hot dry weather early in the season acted adversely on the production. In the late varieties of fruits and vegetables, the majority show an increase of 2½ cents per dozen over last year's prices. Plums is one line lower in price, being 7½ cents per dozen, less than last year. The percentage of deliveries on each of the different lines is not known yet, the packing of some lines not having as yet been completed.

Tomatoes Open Higher.

Tomatoes, one of the lines in which the grocer is deeply interested, have opened at $1.17½ per dozen for group A, which is an advance of 2½ cents over the opening prices of last year. From information gleaned by The Grocer, it would appear that the pack of tomatoes this year is about the same quantity as in 1910. There is still some little packing going on, but which will not have any great bearing on the total. The demand is much keener. This is shown by the fact that with practically the same quantity packed as last year, canners will only be able to deliver about 40 per cent. of orders as compared with a 60 per cent. delivery last year. New pack tomatoes have been on the market for some time now, and in the absence of any named price have been selling at whatever each individual wholesaler thought they were worth.

Corn a Good Pack.

Corn, like tomatoes is 2½ cents per dozen higher, the opening price for 2's being 97½ cents. The pack is a fair one, and deliveries will be much larger than that of the kindred line, peas. It is believed that 90 per cent. of orders will be delivered.

Plums have been a good pack and fully 100 per cent. of orders will be delivered. Prices are materially lower than last year, with the exception of the green gage variety. Damson and lombards 2's in light syrup are 7½ cents less than last year, being quoted at 90 cents. In the heavy syrup these same lines are at $1.05 as against $1.12½ last year. On account of their abundance and reasonable price, these should be big sellers this year.

Small Pack of Blueberries.

Blueberries as it has been known for some time would be the case are considerably higher than last year. Standard 2's have opened at $1.50 as compared with $1.27½ last year. The pack has been materially smaller than last year, and one Nova Scotian firm states that it will only be able to deliver 40 per cent. of orders.

Cabbage, carrots, pumpkin, cauliflower, parsnips, squash, apples, grapes, peaches and pears are all 2½ cents per dozen higher than last year's opening prices. The delivery of these lines is not known. Packing of some of them has not as yet been completed. Fairly good yields of peaches, pears and grapes can be expected. The same may be said of apples. The hopes, however, of some retailers that a gallon of apples might be placed on the market that would sell at 25 cents have been blasted. The accompanying comparison of opening prices on some lines for 1911 and 1910 are for group A. Group B are 2½ cents per dozen less. Those who ordered previous to June 1, receive their canned goods at 2½ cents per dozen less than opening prices.

Tracing Shortage in Goods Received

The Probable Cause Not Due to the Transportation Company, Claims Railway Man—What the Retailer Should do on Discovering a Shortage—Study Nature of Route Over Which Goods Traveled.

Many a retailer is worried considerably when he receives a shipment of goods from some wholesaler and finds that one or more of the articles that should have gone to make up the consignment have been left out. He doesn't understand the situation exactly, and, after silently, or otherwise, criticising the shipping house, comes to a decision that the non-appearance of the goods might be charged to the transportation company that handled the box. This is most frequently the opposite to the fact, although, of course, there are cases in which the goods have been damaged or tampered with in transit, where the railway company can be approached as responsible for the injured property. But, generally, the fact is that some part of the consignment has been left out, with or without reason, by the jobbing house, and for that the transportation company cannt be held responsible.

Patience Necessary.

Because of these things it will be to the advantage of many a dealer to listen to the views on this matter as propounded by a freight official high up in one of the leading transportation companies. This man makes clear the way in which any "shorted" retailer may have his loss made good in the shortest possible time. It is all considered from the standpoint of system with him, and his explanation of the tangle shows that the great trouble lies more in not knowing the facts than for any other reason. Patience is the principal virtue, as he sees things.

"First of all," says this official, "every dealer in the country who receives shipments of goods from transportation companies, should study and discover just how these goods are transported. When a man has learned that much, there is only patience left for him to acquire. A little knowledge is really a dangerous thing in this connection; a man must know all he can. Apart from this, the dealer should try to emulate some of the methods practiced as continually by some of the largest shipping houses in the country."

Request to Note Shortage.

"For purposes of comparison," he continued, "it would probably be best from the retailer's standpoint, to discuss the thing from the retail end. There is no better way of illustrating the case. Let us suppose then, that a mail order house is sending a bill of goods to some customer in the country. Along with the invoice there is sent out from the shipping house offices, a blank form with a note inviting the customer to go over his goods as he receives them and note any shortage. If this latter contingency should be a fact, the shipper asks the man getting the shipment to fill in the blank form, clearly setting forth the shortage and to forward this form at once. It would be an added precaution of value to have the local railway agent endorse the shortage. The company shipping on receipt of this card could then take the matter up without loss of time with the transportation company, and the question would then be threshed out before the complaint has been filed away for further information thereon. As a general thing this speed of taking action brings about the desired result. The shortage is accounted for and the company and customer satisfied and pleased, as well.

Lesson 5--Course in Card Writing

Illustrating the Numerals Used With the Two Foregoing Alphabets, Showing the Various Strokes Practised in Forming Each Figure.

By J. C. Edwards. Copyright, Canada, 1911.

The numerals are almost as important as the letters themselves, and in many cases they are even more so. Good price tickets form a strong link in the chain of direct advertising. Where a card bearing only a few words referring to the goods may command attention, yet it tells only half the story and does not suggest a good reason for buying from the price standpoint.

The accompanying plate shows the single stroke block and the single and double stroke block numerals. The former are made as the single stroke block letters, with a series of single brush strokes, as indicated by the small figures and arrow.

The single and double stroke numerals are formed with single and double strokes, the same as the letters of the same name and are used when prices are necessarily large and in need of prominence.

Pronounced Price Tickets.

The single stroke numerals make very pronounced price tickets, and are quite speedily executed. They can be made of double thickness where a large figure is necessary and rival in popularity the single and double stroke.

The complete combination is shown in the show card which is illustrated here. The single stroke lettering and price are used for the inscription of lesser importance, while the stronger line and price are made prominent by the single and double stroke style. It will also be noticed that in this card the important words are made with capital letters, and that in the minor phrase, "our regular price," the lower case or small lettering is brought into use.

Strokes the Same.

In the single stroke numerals the student will find that the strokes are practically the same as found in the lettering. 1 and 4 are the only two formed of straight lines exclusively; 2, 3, 5 and 7 combine the curves and straight lines, the curves ranging from the slightly curved lower portion of the 7 to the almost full oval of the 5.

One stroke is sufficient for the 1; 3 strokes are required to form the 2, commencing with a slight curve as indicated by stroke and arrow 1, then No. 2 stroke, which is joined by a straight bottom stroke, completing the letter as shown.

The 3 is often a difficult figure to make, but if the strokes, as shown, are practised and combined in the order indicated, the 3 will be as well formed and easily executed as any other.

Note.—The third or centre stroke of the 3 may be straight, as shown in the large figure, or curved, as is seen in the small shaded index figure, preceding the strokes. The 4 is composed of three strokes only, the first being a 1, is made within a quarter of an inch of the extreme right-hand side of the space, No. 2 crosses it about the same distance from the bottom, the two determining the height and width of the figure. No. 3 stroke joins the two, thus completing it.

A Common Mistake.

The first mistake the amateur card-writer makes in making a 5, without proper instruction, is to form the lower portion first, getting it too large, not allowing room at the top for the horizontal stroke. If the strokes are followed as shown in the plate, this trouble will be avoided.

The figures 6 and 9 also give a similar trouble if care is not taken, but a close study of the strokes will put the student right. The 8 will bother the beginner more than any other, but is simple enough when he considers that it is practically composed of two Os, the top one slightly smaller than the bottom with the centre stroke joining the two together in such a way that they are made into one figure.

Note the order in which the strokes are made, also that the last or 4th stroke serves three purposes, viz: the completing of the top circle, the completing of the lower circle, and the looping of the two together. Care must be taken in making figures, as with lettering, to see that they do not lean either to one side or the other.

This style of figure does not lend itself to the slant style with very much grace. It is a straight up-and-down letter absolutely, but can be made either normal, elongated or condensed, the normal being formed in a space the width of which is the same as the height, the elongated or extended is wider than it is high, and the condensed is higher than it is wide.

The single and double brush stroke block figures are made with practically the same strokes as the other style, with the added double strokes as shown, giving the figure a heavier appearance.

Always remember that when cents follow dollars, as in the card shown, a period should be placed after the dollars under the first figure of the cents, or when the cents are made the same size as the dollars, the period should be between the two. Always use the dollar mark before dollars, and when the card shows a price below a dollar, the cent mark should invariably follow. It makes the card stronger to follow this rule.

The shading in these figures will easily be understood, as each style practically repeats that shown in their respective lettering plates in previous lessons. Use the red sable flat brush in albata. A number 7 is the most useful and was used in the execution of the accompanying work. Note the methods of holding the brush.

The Outfit for a Beginner.

One brush, as suggested above, one T square (2 feet) and a bottle of letterine in black. Always rub the brush out flat on a piece of cardboard before writing, and often during writing. Wash the brush well in water after you are through, and gently draw it out to a chisel point before laying it away to dry.

SPOT TOMATOES HELD HIGH.

Prices on spot tomatoes are already considerably higher than the opening figure on this vegetable. For instance in Montreal, wholesalers quote $1.50 for 3's, while in Toronto, $1.40 and above is being asked. In fact, jobbers, until they find out how they stand in regard to supplies are not anxious to take further orders.

While the total pack of tomatoes this year will be about the same as last season, canners will only deliver 40 per cent. of wholesalers' orders as compared with a 60 per cent. delivery last year. This indicates that the volume of orders this year was much above that of last. Whether this means they expect that much larger consumption or whether they were guarding against a short delivery is a question.

However, it is true that the consumption is yearly increasing in Canada. The West is a big consumer of all kinds of canned goods. Last year production did not come up to the demand and it was found necessary to import from the United States.

Prospects for tomatoes across the line are none too favorable, goods cannot be imported to break the price, so that it looks like a relatively high market on tomatoes for the next twelve months.

DROUGHT AND HIGH PRICES.

The year 1911 seems destined to pass into history as a period of almost world-wide drought coupled with extremely warm weather which has been responsible for higher prices on many foodstuffs.

In Canada, this has not been so marked as in certain other countries, although the heat waves of June and July are yet fresh in our memories with their adverse effects on certain crops.

From Germany, France, the United Kingdom and other parts of Northern Europe, come reports that the highest temperature in many years has been detrimental to crops in general.

Perhaps the most prominent example of the effect it has had on prices, is sugar, which through the damage to the beet crop in Europe has been forced upward to the highest point in 22 years.

Then, we have rice, the yield of which has been materially cut down in the East and which advanced 50 cents per cwt. in Canada within a month.

In England, the production of cheese is said to have decreased 20 per cent. this year. This, coupled with a none too plentiful make here has put prices at an extremely high figure. In the United Kingdom, butter has been similarly affected while this year's crop of raspberries and strawberries there, particularly the former, have been short.

Rioting in France over food scarcity and prices, reached the point recently where the government was compelled to take measures towards relieving conditions, as well as suppressing disorder. The cost of everything eatable is said to be higher throughout France to-day than ever before. Prices suddenly increased this summer as they did all over Western Europe, principally on account of the drought and the consequent failure of fodder and vegetable crops. A line which Canada imports from there that was affected is canned peas, which were also short in Belgium and Holland, from where we also import.

In United States the oat yield as well as that of corn has been shortened, although wheat was not materially reduced. In Canada, we have been particularly fortunate in having a bumper crop of both wheat and oats.

Throughout the Dominion, the crop of early fruits and vegetables was reduced considerably by the dry, hot weather. The fact that only 65 per cent. of strawberries and 63 per cent. of peas was delivered shows this.

However, on the whole, when compared with other countries, Canada seems to have been fortunate in her productions this year.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF FREIGHT RATES.

The attention of the trade is directed to the possibility of saving money on express rates by securing deliveries by freight before the cold weather makes the latter method prohibitory. This applies particularly to grocers who have the choice of boat delivery.

When the navigation season closes express charges become dearer and there are many articles that may be carried by boat from now until the ice forms.

Looking over the list, there are mineral waters, light wines, pickles, ketchups, vinegar and other articles that are put up in liquids. Those who can afford to purchase their supplies for winter now for shipment by freight will be able to make a saving over the other method of buying from hand to mouth and securing the goods by express. Little savings like this ultimately make the large gains. Some grocers may not be so situated that they can take advantage of the freight rates referred to, but there is a large number to whom this reminder may be opportune.

EGGS TO ENGLAND AGAIN.

Last week some 250 cases of Canadian eggs went forward to England, which is the first shipment in about two years.

At one time Canada's shipments to England were very large, for instance, in 1901, 231,532 cases were exported from Montreal. Since then our export trade in eggs with Great Britain has gradually decreased, and a year or so ago ceased entirely.

This falling off in shipments was due to the fact that values were higher in Canada than in England, owing to our increased home consumption, along with decreased production.

STANDARD FOR BROOMS WANTED.

A good many grocers in Canada are asking why there is no agreed standard for brooms in this country. If there were it would greatly simplify buying and give the grocer some idea of what he is purchasing and how prices compare with those quoted by other manufacturers.

For instance, if he wishes to find out exactly what kind of a broom he is purchasing he must ask first the weight, the number of strings, the kind of binding as well as the quality of the handle. Then, he has great difficulty in comparing it with other brooms.

In the United States, brooms are standardized and a broom of a certain weight, number of strings and quality of binding and handle is known by a certain number. Thus, the dealer, when made acquainted with the number, knows exactly what he is getting and whether the price is right for the grade offered.

There has been some effort put forth in this direction, but results, as yet, have not been forthcoming. By standardizing brooms, it would greatly simplify matters for all concerned, manufacturer, wholesaler as well as retailer. It is something in which the grocer should interest himself.

COMFORT HELPS PURCHASES.

Was your store comfortable last winter? If not, now is the time to make arrangements so that it will be during the ensuing season. Most especially in the country districts is it well that the store be kept comfortable during the winter months. Customers, after driving a distance, like to have some place to warm up after their arrival as well as before they leave.

If a customer is not comfortable in your store, her purchases are likely to become less. Warmth and comfort put them in a buying mood.

COLLECT ACCOUNTS NOW.

This is the season of the year when the grocer should make a special effort to collect outstanding accounts. If there is any time at which debtors are more able to pay than another, it is the present. Employment in the cities and towns lately has been good and here money should be free. In the country district the farmers are now beginning to reap the fruits of the season's work. Crops are being turned into money, proceeds from the butter and cheese factories are being received and the farmer's finances should be in a rosy state. Now is undoubtedly the time for the grocer to go after that which belongs to him.

A faint, unsteady effort in this direction is not going to be productive of results either. If the dealer hopes to put his bank account in a healthy state he must commence his collections with a strong determination. While he should attempt to draw his own from his customers' pockets with the least friction possible, he should give them to understand that he wants his money. He understands, or at least should, each of his customers and the method that must be used with each. Some must be approached tactfully so as not to drive good trade away. With others there is no necessity of juggling words; they must be given to understand plainly that you desire your money.

There are dealers who have, lingering on their books, debts which are long past due and which the proceeds of former harvests should have cleared away. Now is the time to bring these to a head and clear them off the books in some manner. Canada is generally in a prosperous condition this year and if ever it shall be, it should be possible now to collect past due accounts. Right now is the time to get busy too, before your debtor's money has gone for other causes. Pull down your books and get busy.

SELLING AT LESS THAN COST.

In Toronto the other day, a grocer was selling sugar at five cents per pound while it was costing him $5.95 per cwt. to buy it. This was not a cut price either but just the result of ignorance on the part of that dealer as to what sugar was really costing him.

There are many other dealers who are conducting business on similar loose methods and who are daily losing money. Not alone is this confined to sugar but includes many other lines in which the grocer deals. The successful merchant knows exactly what an article costs him and sees that he secures a reasonable profit on it.

A merchant in the United States declares that laws are needed to stop price cutting. He says that if the matter were one that concerned the price-cutter only, there would be little need to discuss is. But when, as in the grocery business, there is an endless chain of the famous '95 per cent.' cutting and failing and demoralizing other men's business, then the moral aspect of the matter demands attention.

Grocery Advertising in a Small Town

Question is Asked How Much Money Should be Spent on Publicity in Town of 1,500—A Dealer's Estimation of Poor and Effective Mediums—Advertising is Investment—Copy Should be Changed for Every Insertion, he Maintains.

*By Henry Johnson, Jr.

"How much money should a grocery store in a town of 1500 population, doing a business of $27,000 a year, spend in advertising? What are the best methods to use in advertising?"

About 2 per cent. is generally considered the correct advertising expenditure in the retail grocery business. Hence, this business should spend $540 per annum, or thereabouts. That, as you will notice, is $45 per month. The question is so far easy to dispose of.

How to handle the appropriation so as to get adequate returns on the investment, is a much more difficult problem. And perhaps, to begin with, we better clear away some rubbish.

Different Kinds of Expenses.

All expense is investment, properly considered, because you get it back; hence, it justifies itself. But, while many items of expense are settled and fixed, belonging there, as it were, by custom and usage, in determined ratio and all that, some expenses are productive or not according as they are intelligently handled or not. Among the fixed, settled expenses are rent, light, heat, insurance—all arbitrary, more or less. Among those capable of government by intelligence are, for instance, clerks and advertising. These can be dead-weight expenses or profitable investments, depending on our care or the want of it. All of which is pretty generally understood and realized by most dealers, in relation to all except advertising; and that is still largely regarded as a gamble on which we must take a chance, with the inevitable result that it IS largely a gamble. Advertising, however, need not be a gamble in any business for one minute longer than the advertiser cares to allow it to be so. It is up to him.

Going on the theory, therefore, that the man who asked the question which heads this article really wants information, I shall try to make a few points clear. We shall begin, as I said, with the rubbish.

What is Not Advertising.

Notices and announcements—especially "announcements"—inserted in programs of local entertainments, lodges, churches, etc., are not advertising. This should be made clear; for you may be inclined to reply that you have followed the practice of using these things and you feel that you have always got value. The point is that advertising, properly so called, is spreading news about your business and must be used with the end in view of advising more people, in an attractive way, about what you are doing, and getting their interest purely on the strength of your businesslike offerings. Mediums which have special strings tied to them cannot be regarded as diffusers of such news and therefore their use is not advertising—it is contribution to "certain worthy causes." The correct idea is, that if you feel like contributing to such things because they really are worthy, do it to the limit of your inclination; but do not confuse this with advertising, for that it is not nor should it be.

The Unchanged Newspaper Card.

Your "card" inserted in your local newspaper, remaining unchanged through two or more issues thereof, is not advertising—it is waste, pure and simple. For if we grant that your townspeople may see this stuff the first time it is inserted, the repeated insertion of the same thing will tire and eventually disgust them as much as the repeated printing of any bit of news would disgust you. What would you think of the paper which should insert the news of a great railroad wreck, unchanged, even twice? Yet that crime is constantly being committed by advertisers—so called. I have before me a copy of my home paper, which is not published in a town of 1500 but in one of 35,000; and for weeks the following have daily stared me in the face:—

SUCH MOVING WAYS.
We have such moving ways. We, etc.

ONLY A SUGGESTION.
Perhaps you have a daughter, etc.

SMOKING AUTOS.
The time is coming when, etc.

MORE EVIDENCE.
A certain furniture store on, etc.

A Contrast to Good Copy.

None of these was a bad "local" to start with, though many of them might have been better; but they are nothing short of nightmares now and any reader will turn from them as promptly as his eye is hit by them. This is not so bad for the good advertiser, for his work stands out from the run of rotten stuff; but it is bad for the paper, most decidly. In fact, bad all round, for if advertising were made universally interesting and informative, people would always be glad to read it. They would look for it and enjoy it—much to our general benefit and greatly to our financial advantage. That would help me as well as the other fellows. Meantime, such ads as this one stand out by pleasing contrasts—and I have plenty of evidence that they are read:

Johnson's 40c Mocha & Java Blend
A well-balanced blend of true Mocha, Java and other high grade coffees. Absolutely dry-roast.

And I want to tell you that the readers of that paper never have that ad. repeated to them at intervals of less than four to six months, and often not at all. Do not get the impression that "Keeping Everlastingly At It" means repetition ad nauseam—for it does not You see, you may be everlastingly wrong; and if you are, the harder you keep at it, the worse off you are.

Maybe that will indicate part of what I mean by rubbish, and we can get down to what it is well to do. It is hard to say what are the best methods in any particular town without knowing local conditions. Sometimes there is a good, lively paper even in the small town. In that case, the daily or weekly paper should be used. Then you might use the circular to distribute to the farmers. Get those into the wagons, among the bundles you send out; have them put into all wagons that come to town; send them out by mail.

Personal Touch Effective.

One very successful trade-builder of whom I have heard, sets his clerks, male and female, at work during all odd hours of slow business, writing personal letters, enclosing circulars and sometimes samples, to the neighboring farmers. These letters are written in an intimate, personal way, the same clerk writing to the same list of names. Then the same clerks wait on those particular people when they call, so that the "personal touch" is worked for all it is worth; and that is about the most effective feature that can be built upon.

But that brings us to the meat of the cocoanut; the fact that advertising

Montreal, Oct. 5th.—Business shows signs of complete recovery from the "nervousness" the election possibilities created. The trade has settled down to the new conditions and prospects are bright for a good fall trade. They would undoubtedly be much improved if economic conditions were more favorable, but even if prices are slightly above what consumers desire still there is an encouraging spirit of confidence in the country and in the future. It will not be long now until navigation closes and those grocers who benefit by boat service should take advantage of it before the season is concluded. Some have been wondering whether the Tripoli affair is likely to interfere with eastern fruit shipments, but nothing serious in this regard is expected.

The first shipment of new Valencia raisins recalls the dried fruit season. A few more weeks and the trade will be selling their new supplies for mince pies, puddings and the other heavy foods that will soon return to their own.

Sugar.—The market remains steady, but it is impossible to say for what time this will continue. The American beet crop is coming in now, and the Cuban and Louisiana cane crops are beginning to have an effect. However, the feeling seems to obtain that prices will show no change during October. One factor toward lower prices will be the relaxed demand once the fruit season loosens its hold.

Syrups and Molasses.—There is a good demand passing for syrups. The grocer would do well to make sure that he has a fresh stock of syrups now, especially with Shrove Tuesday approaching and because of the natural increase in demand for this article that accompanies the colder weather. Dried Fruits.—The first new fruit to arrive is Valencia raisins which came by a fast steamer. The new price is quoted in the list below. Prunes are dear and the price is undoubtedly curtailing the demand. A traveler stated that he had taken an order for 15 boxes of large sized prunes from a grocer who would usually laugh at such a supply. On this point it seems that reports to the effect that large prunes are going to be short is well founded. Prunes have been excited of late. Evaporated apples have been selling at the old price of 14 cents, but are now down to from 11 to 12½ cents, due to the arrival of new stocks and the new apple crop. Currants are holding their position firmly.

Rice and Tapioca.—The position of rice is very strong. The Rangoon supplies are just as reported in these columns a few weeks ago, the crop being short. Japanese rice has been plentiful, but the dealers have been succesful in securing higher prices in sympathy with the situation in India. The Japanese authorities are opposed to this method of business and are taking steps to prevent the advancing of the price of the home product. The market is strong and there is a feeling that prices are likely to go higher.

Brooms.—All that has been said of the broom situation is fully verified. Manufacturers have advanced prices on stocks that are made from now on, but it is understood that the goods they held are being let go, as previously stated, at the former price. The advance is said to be from 20 to 25 per cent.

Macaroni, Vermicelli, etc. — As announced in a recent issue of The Grocer, Canadian manufacturers of macaroni and vermicelli have advanced their prices The quotations now in force are as follows: 4-lb. boxes, 18c; 8-lb. boxes, 36c; and loose at 4¼c.

Teas.—The market shows continued activity and strength under conditions that have not changed perceptibly in the week. Since last report cable advices from Japan state that owing to scarcity of leaf the home market has advanced fully 3 yen per pound. A large proportion of import orders have already been filled, but there is still quite a number to be executed for lower grades, and importers have within the past few days consented to pay the advanced prices. There has been considerable activity in the United States markets during the week where large quantities of spot teas have been purchased at an advance over previous week's figures, and the United States Government standard has jumped from 17½ to 18¼ cents.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—The slackness which followed in the wake of election week has apparently passed over, and wholesalers report that the grocery trade is again returning to the healthy stride which has been apparent for some time back, even during that portion of the summer months when there is generally a tendency to quietude. The balance of the year looks bright for the grocery trade. The housecleaning season has not as yet completely passed, new crop fruits and late canned goods are arriving, lumbering and mining camps are making preparation for the winter, while general good conditions in Canada have put buyers in a good buying mood. It is true that prices in some instances are high, but this should be no reason for the grocer to rest on his oars with the present excellent opportunities at hand.

Sugar.—Refined sugar quotations remain as last week. The market is apparently waiting developments. Prices for raws are showing some fluctuations, probably explained by speculators taking profits. Bullish bearings on the market are not so marked but just how much easiness this denotes is a question. It may be interesting to consider some portions of Willets & Gray's weekly sugar report. "The European beet crop," it says, "has begun to be made into sugar and the first report from the actual manufacturers is that the crop prospects are improving and continental sellers are in the market. It is quite possible that the fear of extreme high prices, such as prevailed in 1889 is no longer necessary." Again it says: "Cuba crop prospects are fortunately very favorable thus far. Louisiana crop prospects are also excellent. In regard to refined it says: "All refiners have improved somewhat in deliveries, partly because the return to the American prices indicates a limit reached for the advance and a passing by of the crisis in the situation. However, it may be two or three weeks yet before a decline in cane granulated can be expected, as it requires that length of time for the domestic beet crop to become an important factor." How far Canadian prices will be affected is the question.

Syrup and Molasses.—With the advent of the cooler weather an appreciable improvement in syrups which have been inclined to quietness during the summer months can be noticed. Dried Fruits.—First shipments of Valencia raisins and medium size prunes have been received. These are the advance supplies and the volume is limited. Selected Valencias are quoted at 7½ to 8 cents for the first shipments as they are in demand, but it is understood that some of the later offerings may be a shade under that price. The larger sizes of prunes will be a scarce article this season. New crop 80 to 90s are quoted at 9½ cents.

Prunes on the coast reflect a steady tone, but California raisins have a slight tendency towards easiness as have also apricots. Currant prices are on a firm level, and a full shilling's advance is the result of the difference in exchange due to the war that is now involving the Mediterranean districts. The troubles now present in that part of the world will have the tendency of somewhat detaining shipments. Citron peel according to a local wholesaler will be cheaper this year than last.

Compared with 1909, one statistician has figured out that this year's world's yield of raisins will be 48,000 tons short. The estimates show a decided falling off in all sections of production, —California, Spain and Smyrna.

Tea.—Conditions in regard to tea remain without any features of special importance. A steadiness marks the market here as well as abroad. That there has been a marked increase in the price of tea in recent years is a well-known fact," remarked one dealer, "but in spite of that the consumption is not only being maintained but is increasing. People do not stop drinking tea because the price is high. Quality is regarded of more importance by the majority of tea users than price. For that reason, I think it pays the grocer to handle and push the better grades of tea, because they are sought after by consumers who are willing to pay the higher price that is warranted."

Coffee.—Last week a firmness was reported in lower grade coffees. That firmness still continues here and elsewhere. Some local dealers have already increased the quotations on straight Rios, Santos, Maricaibos and Bogotas, while others report a marked firmness which besides affecting these named goods has also strengthened standard blends of individual manufacturers whose profits have been closely clipped by the late advancing tendency. The conditions that have worked for higher coffee during the past year or so are still present.

Rice and Tapioca.—The strength reported in rice markets has not as yet passed. Conditions are most unusual. One report from England speaking of conditions says that the rice crops throughout the world are very poor; the Southern China crop has been practically washed out, and there will be a heavy deficiency in Saigon and Siam. Java has already booked freight for 30,000 tons new crop Burmah rice for January shipments, and through the irregular monsoons in India supplies will have to be drawn from Burmah. Other grades besides Rangoon have been influenced by the strength in this line.

B. C. MARKETS.

Vancouver, Oct. 5.—It is comparatively early in the season as yet, but none too early for prices to climb up. There has been much debate during the recent election campaign as to cheaper prices and what they would mean to the retail grocer. Many contended that reduced prices, even a cent or two per pound would mean a difference, and the cheaper goods were, the more business there would be. The result of the election has set at rest any question of reciprocity in natural products, and prices are firm.

Butter is now retailing at 60 cents, that is the Cowichan brand, manufactured at the Cowichan creamery on Vancouver Island. With five cents a pound margin, this allows little profit for the retailer. The inference always is that the retailer should not have more than five cents a pound, and though the price is high, none of the increase comes to his pocket. In fact, his percentage of profit is reduced the higher prices go, as he cannot afford to charge any more than he can possibly help. This creamery is an exception, and is generally five cents a pound more than other creamery, simply because the demand for good butter is beyond the supply.

The Edenbank creamery has gone out of the butter-making business temporarily, finding better returns in disposing of its raw cream.

Other butter is being put on the market under different labels, being made up of eastern butter. This is put into pound prints, but the makeover is so poor that various shades of color is apparent. This jobs at about 35 cents. Eastern butter in bulk is arriving in very good quality on this market, and is quoted wholesale at 32 to 34 cents. As long as the quality of this is good, the demand will maintain. This winter there should be a market for almost any quantity, for already good butter is scarce.

The supply of eggs is very variable in quality. With high prices, the eastern eggs are well sorted out, and those that pass the candle test job at 35 cents, with a lower grade at 30 and 31. The newly laid may be had at from 57 to 60 cents, retailing at 65 cents. The supply of the latter is always limited, so the price is no barrier to disposing of stock.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, Oct. 5.—The past week has brought few changes of importance in the market, although business in general was on the mend, after the slump of election week. The most noticeable feature of the market has been the strength taken by rice. Local dealers have received advices that the crop will probably be small, owing to failure in India, Korea, and China, by floods and heat, and on this account, the price has been increased slightly already.

The same dealers also look for a shortage in teas this year in some districts, and their expectations are that tea in several of the more common grades will be high. The harvest has not come up to expectations, and the fear is expressed here that it will cause a slight increase in the price of teas. California stocks of raisins can now be bought cheaper than at any other time during this crop, local merchants say. They are now commencing to reach the city. There has been no change in currants or raisins for some time, but the market is expected to remain firm.

In the country market there seems to be a plentiful supply of green goods and farm and dairy products of all kinds. Eggs and butter are fairly abundant, but are selling at good prices, while vegetables of almost all kinds remain about the same. Cheese is higher by one cent than last week, and another advance is looked for.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Oct. 5.—Business has improved considerably since the passing of the elections. The wholesale grocery travelers now on the road are sending in good orders, particularly from the shore districts. The sugar market continues unchanged. Extra standard granulated is quoted at $5.95; United Empire is $5.85; bright yellow, $5.75; No. 1 yellow, $5.45, and unbranded yellow, $5.30.

The receipts of molasses are considerably below last year. Prices are firm. Fancy Trinidad is off the market, and Barbados is 33c to 34c. As a result of the high prices quoted for sugar and molasses, the confectionery dealers have advanced prices on chocolates and penny goods.

The flour markets are firm and business is fairly good. There has been a decline in the price of rolled oats, which are now selling at $5.30 to $5.40 in barrels. Cornmeal in bags is quoted at $1.70 to $1.75. Canadian hand-picked beans are selling at $2.45 to $2.55, and prime at $2.35 to $2.45.

Dealers have advanced the price of corn brooms 75c per dozen all round, and condensed milk has been marked up 30c per dozen.

Canned Goods.

Montreal.—As will be seen in the appended price list, the new quotations on corn and tomatoes are in the hands of the trade with the information that the deliveries of corn will be about 90 per cent., and of tomatoes, 40 per cent. Grocers who gave their orders before the first of June will of course pay the list prices and will probably receive their supplies in the same ratio that the jobbers secured from the canners. Some wholesalers, one at least, stated that they will probably be able to fill their orders to the retailer on a sixty per cent. basis. "Suppose I were to give you an order for fifty cases of tomatoes, what would your price be?" the representative of The Grocer asked one of the trade. "Well, to begin with," he replied, "I am not in a position to give you fifty cases. Some jobbers I believe could, but I could not. However, the price is $1.50." This is the prevailing price for present orders. The question is a difficult one to consider. Independent canners are holding their goods, in the expectation of higher prices being offered. They are now asking from $1.35 to $1.40. Importations from the United States may be made, but the price in this country will not be relieved. To lay tomatoes down in Montreal now, the best that could be done is $1.40. There are reports in the United States canned goods districts that the tomato pack will be considerably below last year's. In the face of these conditions it is certainly not too much to believe that there will be little enthusiasm on the part of consumers to grab at the new prices. Another point that will be of interest will be what the retailers will do with their supplies. Apparently they could turn over their supplies to the jobbers right now and make a profit. Corn is coming on a bare market and will undoubtedly become more valuable in the near future. Altogether it looks like an interesting canned goods market, especially when the price is already higher than the retailer's buying price.

Toronto.—Prices on new canned goods have been received and are generally higher. Tomatoes, one of the lines which have aroused interest, opened at $1.15 to $1.17½. That is the price at which the retailer who has booked ahead will receive his goods but not the the price that the goods could be purchased at to-day. The retailer who has a good big order in for tomatoes is lucky. He could sell them back to the jobber at a fair profit. "What would you sell me tomatoes at to-day?" The Grocer asked several dealers. "I would ask $1.40, because independent canners are asking the jobber close on that price. They say they can get that for them in the West," replied one man. "I would quote you $1.55," remarked an extremist, "but I wouldn't sell them to you at all." Two others quoted spot stocks at $1.40, and that seems to be the general price. The percentage of deliveries to wholesalers will only be 40 per cent.

Corn has opened at 95 to 97½, with a 90 per cent. delivery, and with the high prices for both tomatoes and peas should be in a special demand and prices will probably rule firm.

Fruits are generally slightly higher than last year with the exception of plums which are a full pack and are considerably lower. The new quotations given above under Montreal apply to Toronto as well. These are F.O.B. factory.

TRADE NOTES.

The Dominion Chicle Company, of London, Ont., has been incorporated for the manufacture and sale of gum, chicle and confections.

Excavations for the new plant for E. W. Gillett Co., Toronto, have been completed, and the contractors have already begun the erection of the plant which will consist of six buildings with a total floor space four times the size of their present factory at the corner of King and Duncan Streets. There will be over two million cubic feet of space in the main factory building alone.

WELL TO REMEMBER.

must be intelligently and painstakingly handled, or it will become a dead expense, yielding you little or nothing. You must study your local problems and solve them in the light of your deductions from local conditions. Think, if you can, of the infinite, patient perseverance of the man who coached his clerks into writing personal letters to his customers. Think how steadily he kept at it. Imagine him teaching some girl whose mind was mostly taken up with her "puffs," how to get the letters properly, interestingly written; or picture him beside some doltish boy, endeavoring to work out of him a few practical ideas. Yet he did it and his reward was considerable. Soon his people were used to the work and began to take interest in it. After that his task was mostly that of direction. But it was for the conception of the idea and the introductory work involved that he deserved great credit.

Serious and Important Matter.

With $45 per month and intelligence behind your plans, you can do a great deal in a town of 1500. In fact, if you do give the matter the right amount of thought and attention, you will soon be out of the $27,000 class and into one wherein $45 will not cover your legitimate expenditure. But to do this you must regard advertising as a matter so serious and important as to deserve the very best that is in you in the way of planning and execution.

THOS. DUKE,

New President of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association.

AUTPMATIC PRINTING ATTACHMENT

There is still another new device of interest to the grocery trade on the market. It is an automatic printing attachment that fits onto the paper cutter and is shown in the accompanying illustration. The device is attached to the top of the paper cutter by means of a thumb-screw, which holds a type roller against the roll of paper. It enables the dealer to have an advertisement on every parcel leaving the store, and the mechanism is so arranged, that the advertisement can be changed by the installation of a new roller. It can be used, for instance, to advertise secial sales or to introduce new lines. Paper bags can also be run through. J. R. Wilson, of Toronto, is placing this article on the market.

The Rochdale Co., and the Canadian Co-operative Concern, Hamilton, Ont., have amalgamated, the new firm to be known as Arcade Limited.

According to one report the consumption of all kinds of coffee in the United States has fallen off from 18,824,000 bags in 1908-09, to 17,663,000 in 1910-11.

Don't get excited during a rush hour. Keep cool and you can work much faster and the cash will be more likely to balance at the close of business hours.

Wiley Attacks Manufacturers of Impure Foods

Kansas City, Oct. 4.—Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, in the department of agriculture of the United States, delivered a speech on The Health of the People, here recently, the feature of which was an attack on the manufacturer who sells adulterated foods and drugs, and who was characterized as a "thief and a corrupter of public morals."

In attacking manufacturers who sell adulterated foods and drugs he declared the human animal is entitled to a pure and wholesome diet. "The drug store and the grocery store," he said, "should be distinct concerns and not sell each other's wares. The man who converts peanut shells into pepper on the ground that the poor man is not able to buy pure pepper is a thief and a corrupter of public morals. The wealthy man possibly may be able to afford peanut shells, but the poor man, never. The man who dilutes the milk waters the stock of the wealthiest company in the world.

"Especially is this principle true," he declared, "as regards children, and no penalty is too severe for the man who deliberately puts a poisonous dye into candy to sell the stick for a penny and puts two-thirds of the penny into his own pocket.

"And by what principle of political economy can the practice be justified of keeping wholesome food in storage until its taste has vanished and poisonous degradation products have been produced ?"

Great Britain is the heaviest sugar consumer in the world. Last year 1,745,120 tons were imported, of which 1,303,319 tons were beet sugar, and 441,810 tons were cane sugar. For the sugar imported £25,307,214 were sent abroad.

A recent dispatch from Illinois says the new broom corn crop is moving and some of the sales recorded are the highest in thirty years. One farmer of Douglas county sold nine tons for $160 a ton. It is said the supply of broom corn this season will be limited, and some growers are predicting that $200 a ton will be paid before the season ends.

Eggs Firm Under Smaller Production

Stronger Tone in Egg Market Due to Decreased Supplies—Storage Eggs Being Used at Some Centres—Live Hog Prices Show Further Easiness—Butter Takes on a Firmer Feeling—Cheese is Steady.

Last week we reported a firm market in eggs, the result of decreased production. During the past week this has become more marked and prices are firmer, with advances at a number of centres. Indeed, at some points it has been found necessary to call storage stocks into service. Strictly new-laid are not plentiful and prices are high.

Last week witnessed a shipment of 250 cases of eggs to England, the first export to that country for close on two years. Canada's production of late years has not been measuring up to the home demand.

This week again further easiness in Canadian live hog prices is announced. This follows out the predictions of certain dealers that prices would show a substantial decline during September. It is usual during the fall to see a larger offering of the porkers, and this has been true this year, with a marked decline in values. Since the first of September, prices on the Toronto market have eased off $1.20 per cwt. In the United States markets the same situation has developed, with a larger offering of hogs and a consequent decline in price. If the supply that has already come forward can be taken as an indication of the holdings in the country, seemingly a fairly good run during the balance of the fall can be expected, although it will not measure up with the offerings of early fall.

Provisions, under the decline in live hogs, at least, have no features of strength, with the exception of certain lines which are in special demand at this season. In this particular might be mentioned long clear and heavier lines, which, with the preparation of fall and winter camps, are in good demand. Lard, with the advent of the cooler weather, is meeting with a larger consumption and prices are accordingly steady.

The butter market from coast to coast reflects a general stronger tone. While in Ontario and Quebec there appears to be a fair production, the other provinces report a scarcity of stocks. It is for this reason that eastern Canada is finding a good inquiry from western points. There is also a fair export trade in evidence.

Cheese continues to hold its strong position. There has at certain points been a slight wavering, but general conditions point to a steady tone.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—The demand for all lines of provisions is reported good. Pure lard is in small supply with some houses, pork is showing a marked improvement, and hams continue to hold their own. Hogs are a little easier and the whole market shows a good activity.

Butter.—The market is steady and tends to higher prices. The export trade this year has shown a great increase. The figures are 110,000 boxes, as compared with 26,000 boxes last year. Higher prices are looked for in the near future with a continued export demand and a heavy home consumption.

Provisions.—The general tone of provisions is slightly easier. This is only natural with the lower price for live hogs. This week's decline of 25 cents in the porkers brings them down to a figure $1.20 below the level of September 1. The increased offerings, which is usual at this season, is the cause of the past month's decline. Smoked hams are ½ cent per pound off this week, while long clear on account of a brisk demand has moved in the opposite direction and is quoted at 13 to 13½. Lard is somewhat steadier and is generally held at ½ cent higher this week.

Wide Awake Methods of Retailing

Price-cutting in Portage la Prairie Disturbs the Trade—Value of Keeping the Name Before the Public—Prizes Offered in Kingston, Jamaica, for Unique Contests—Stopping Leaks by Checking Goods Coming Into the Store.

The Grocer will pay any dealer or clerk for practical items for this page.

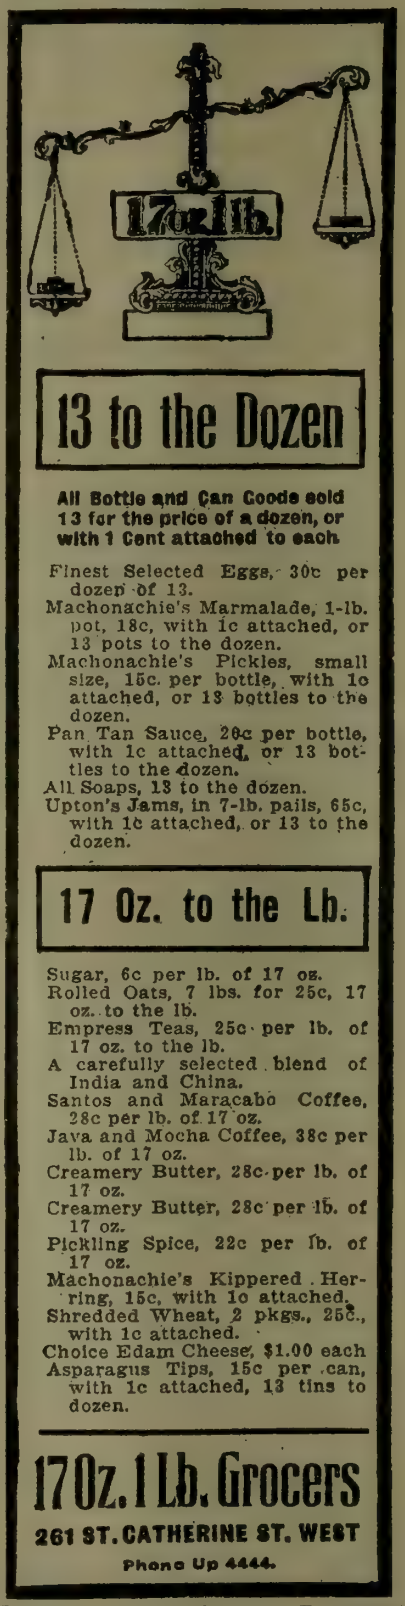
Price-cutting in Grapes.

Portage La Prairie, Man., Oct. 5.—Some recent price cutting in grapes has been the subject of considerable discussion among the trade.

One dealer announced last week that grapes were 30 cents a basket when other stores were selling at 35 cents. So far as the former is concerned his position is tersely stated in the following advertisement in a local paper:

"We announced on Monday the price of grapes as 30c a basket, which at the price we bought at we consider, left us a fair margin of profit. One of the local dealers came to us and made a kick because we brought down the price from 35c, and said he would drop them to 25c, he did not do so however, but brought them down to 27½c (when he had been paying 27c for them). Another dealer at once came down to 25c. That, in a nutshell is the reason you are getting 25c grapes.

"Our position is this, we can buy just as cheaply as anyone else and are willing to sell at a fair margin of profit. But will not sell at cost, or a loss, simply for spite. To-morrow grapes will be 30c and will not be lower unless the wholesale price comes down."



Keeping the Name Before the Public.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Neil Carmichael, retail grocer, 1212 Yonge St., believes in keeping his name well before the public. For a city the size of Toronto, this cannot well be done by the ordinary grocer through the medium of the newspaper, so that other simpler methods productive of good results have to be brought into play.

One of these which Mr. Carmichael uses is an advertisement on the paper bags which he sends out. It is just a simple ad., giving his name, showing that he sells groceries, and giving his street and phone number.

He also has his name on a special bag in which he delivers bulk tea. This bag, which is colored, also helps tea sales, as an attractive package always does. He has, too, an advertisement on the small safety egg carriers which go out to customers, while his delivery wagon carries his name, store and phone number.

All these things, he maintains, contribute to keeping the store before the public as well as helping the customer to ascertain the street or phone number with the least difficulty.

Store Competitions in Jamaica.

Kingston, Jamacia, Oct. 4.—In the annual Christmas competitions of the Kingston Gleaner there are some events of interest to grocery merchants and clerks. A. F. Dunnett, of Nathan & Co., offer two prizes, one guinea for the first and 10s. and 6d. for the second prize for the best paper, not to exceed 1,700 words on "the best method of improving the relationship between employers and their clerks."

Shopping in a tropical city is more or less a tiresome task. It is, however, made more pleasant when buyers are attended courteously by the clerks waiting on them. In this regard, some clerks are more popular than others, and with a view of getting the opinion of the public, the people are asked to send in the name of the clerk whom they prefer to serve them. Hon. H. A. L. Simpson, who has always taken a deep interest in the welfare of the clerks, offers a prize valued at two guineas for the clerk receiving the largest number of votes.

Check Goods on Arrival.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—A firm believer in the proper checking of goods is Wm. Miller, grocer, Yonge St., and he carries this out to good advantage in regard to profit. Not only does he believe in watching the greater and more noticeable, but also the smaller goods, which combined amount to a great deal.

The other day Mr. Miller sent in a rush order for a small quantity of bacon. When he received it, the invoice called for 21 pounds. However, when he placed it on the scale, it only weighed 19¼ pounds. The firm from which he bought was perfectly reliable, but a mistake, which is liable to happen with the best firms, had occurred. Had he not weighed it on arrival, he would have had just so much less profit.

In a similar manner he checks over other goods. Sometimes with glass goods he finds several packages broken and which if not reported to the firm sending them, would result in further reduced profit.

It is well, he points out, to carefully check goods if for no other reason than to be certain you are not losing money in this way.

A Newfoundland Ad.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 28.—J. J. St. John, grocer, of this city, starts off his advertisement in the local paper: "The assurance of being right is, undoubtedly, comforting." Then follows: "We can give you that assurance only when you buy your provisions and groceries at our store, and thereby get the advantage of our excellent values. Try an order with us."

Grocers: It has been in the past, and shall always be the aim of this company to manufacture goods that will continue to add to our reputation, and under no circumstances whatever shall the increased cost of production tempt us to sacrifice the quality.

Good Season for Flour and Cereals

Consumption of Cereals Shows a Good Increase—Mills Are Well Sold Ahead on Rolled Oats—Present is Good Time to Push Flour Sales—No Change in Prices or in General Situation

There are no features in regard to price movements to record this week either in flour or cereals. There has been some booking of orders for fall and winter requirements in flour, but this trade is as yet not large. Now is a splendid time for the dealer to push flour, for his efforts should result in an increase in this line of business. Housewives, who during the summer months purchased their bread, are now in many instances commencing again to make their own. In the country districts, the farmer is now reaping the money from his season's labor and this should be a good time to induce him to put in a supply of flour.

More life is also present in the cereal trade and should at this time be given attention. In rolled oats purchases for winter requirements have been large and mills report that they are well sold ahead.

There has been little change in the price of the raw material during the week past. Both wheat and oats are hovering around the same level. A Winnipeg despatch early in the week indicated that although receipts are heavy, the amount of wheat offering is really light. Apparently the farmers are holding for higher prices.

The world's wheat shipments last week totalled 10,176,000 bushels, as against 11,200,000 bushels the previous week and 14,549,000 bushels a year ago. Corn was 1,174,000 bushels as against 2,664,000 the previous week and 4,640,000 a year ago.

Flour.—Flour prices are holding steady with no special features in this regard. Wheat is practically at the level of last week. There have been some bookings of orders for fall and winter requirements, but as yet these have not reached a large scale. Some of the smaller bakers have made contracts, it is said, but the larger firms seem to be holding off. The larger portion of this trade does not generally become apparent until October or November.

Millfeed.—Shorts are quoted at $25 per ton in car lots on track, Toronto, while quotations for bran are $23. Prices are high at the present time, the result of a good home demand while orders from Germany a few weeks ago had considerable influence on prices. When wheat starts to be milled in quantities, it may result in some easing off in prices.

EXPORTS TO BERMUDA.

Canada exports to Bermuda have increased from $277,000 in 1906 to $417,000 in 1910. This growth is all the more remarkable when it is considered that there is only a 12 day service between Canada and Bermuda, whereas, there are three competing lines from New York, making weekly and fortnightly trips. Butter and flour are two of the main lines taken.

WIFE CAN'T BE A COMPETITOR.

$10 SUGAR IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

The Wholesale Price for the Best—Beans Scarce—The Lobster Fishing Good.

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 1—(Special)—The price of sugar seems to be at a standstill; wholesale dealers are now quoting $10 per cwt. for best American granulated. It is thought that the highest notch has been reached. Not for years has the price been so high.

Beans seem to be a scarce article in the market and it is difficult to purchase any in the Canadian market; our heaviest supply comes from Germany; but rumor has it that the Continental crop is a failure this year owing to drought.

Our market is well supplied with green fruit of all kinds. No. 1 Gravenstein apples are selling from $3 to $3.25. The quality of apples sent to this market is not up to the standard and numerous complaints are continually being made by importers; it seems we get what's left after everybody else is supplied.

This market has been affected by the reported shortage of the rice crop and dealers holding stocks have all advanced their prices.

The lobster fishing is over and is considerably in excess of last year. Price current now is $17.25, but as high as $17.75 has been paid.

COMFORT SOAP'S LATEST PREMIUM.

The Comfort Soap people are to be congratulated on the success of their latest premium, viz:—The Comfort Soap Sealing Machine now so largely used by up-to-date Toronto grocers. This machine saves time and twine, and gives an up-to-date appearance to the counter.

The Comfort Soap people are giving Free this Rapid Sealer to purchasers of 25 cases of Comfort Soap.

The machine is the most modern invention adapted for the wrapping of packages.

This up-to-date idea is a saver of time, labor, and money. Two inches of tape will do the work of two feet of twine, and do it better, neater, quicker and cheaper. On one roll of tape you may have 4,800 advertisements, and can seal up as many as 2,400 parcels.

These machines will make an attractive addition to any counter, and will not occupy any more space than a twine holder. The idea is simply for your parceler to draw a moistened tape with your advertising on it from the machine and place it on your packages wherever the paper meets.

Tapes with The Comfort Soap advertisement are supplied absolutely free by The Comfort Soap Company, which fact alone means a great saving of twine expense to the owner of one of these machines. The grocer may have his own advertisement on the tape at less than cost price. Every grocer should secure one of these machines at once before the supply runs out, especially when they can be had absolutely free of cost.—See full-page advertisement on page 6 of this issue for further particulars. It will be well worth your while.—Advt.

Apples Being Given More Attention

Other Fruits are Smaller in Supply, and Apples are Now Coming to the Front—No Need to Rest on Oars From Lack of Fruit—Fancy Lines Coming in From the States.

Wholesale fruit men are now having resting periods at intervals, which were altogether absent during the rush of early September. There is, however, a considerable trade in evidence, late peaches and pears still coming forward while Canadian grapes are still next to plentiful. Retail fruit men need not rest on their oars from lack of fruit, for besides the domestic lines which are still procurable, most markets are receiving shipments of fancy peaches, prunes, pears and grapes from across the line, so that dealers need not allow their sales to fall off because of lack of supplies.

While a few months back dealers were looking for warm weather to stimulate lemon sales, to-day the cooler weather is the kind they welcome in this regard. Once the temperature drops below a certain mark, it needs to swing to the opposite extreme in order to make a good demand for lemons. There are no special features present bearing on prices. New crop does not arrive until in November and present stocks will apparently be well out of the way before that time.

The prospects for apples as a whole has depreciated slightly. All Duchess and other first early varieties yielded medium crops, which have been harvested. Spys are reported particularly scarce, except in certain parts of Nova Scotia and along Lake Huron, as well as Lake Ontario counties in Ontario. Greenings are abundant. Apples are generally of good quality, and in this respect are ahead of last year, and indeed, as a whole, better than is generally the case. Apples are now being given more attention by dealers. The fact that other domestic fruits are not so plentiful are bringing them to the front. In certain districts retailers are now selling customers their winter's supply.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruit.—There is a good demand for apples of which the Famouse late arrivals to the market are selling at $5 a barrel. Green Fruits.—While there is considerable trade being transacted in domestic fruits, the briskness of early September is lacking. Plums are off the list with the exception of an odd belated basket, sugar melons are practically done, while shipments of peaches show a marked shrinkage. There are still late pears arriving, but shipments are not large. Grapes are still in abundance. There is no particular change in other lines such as lemons and oranges. Cranberries are steady at $8.50 to $9.00 per barrel.

Shipments of such lines as fancy peaches and prunes are being received from Idaho, Utah and Colorado, while table grapes are coming in from California and are being taken up well, especially by city fruiterers. U. S. TOMATO PACK.

The fact that for the past three months Canada has been importing tomatoes from across the line, makes the yield in the United States of some interest. One canned goods brokerage firm estimate that the total pack of tomatoes in the United States for 1911 will be about 7,000,000 cases. "The total pack of 1910," they say, "which was considered two-thirds of a pack, was 8,000,000 cases, and there was a carry over of about 2,000,000 cases. This year no carry over and a smaller pack will undoubtedly be the record."

COCOANUTS IN TRINIDAD.

The commercial agent in Trinidad says that while a few years ago, cocoanuts were almost a drug on the market and purchasers had it all their own way, the situation is now changed. "There is probably no article of tropical production so sought after to-day as the cocoanut," he writes. "The planter has no need to trouble himself to find a market, as buyers will come to him."

Trinidad produces about 30,000,000 cocoanuts annually. Of these, in 1910 some 20,000,000 were exported, 7,000,000 manufactured into the shredded product and 5,000,000 into oil. There is a big home demand for the oil.

Fish - Oysters

Fish Trade Now Off to a Good Start

Trade is Well Under Way, Although the Season is as Yet Young—Many Merchants Taking up This Line for the First Time—Besides Direct Benefits, it is a Trade Attractor—Oysters Doing Well.

Considering that the season is as yet only young, the volume of trade that is being done, as evidenced by reports from various secrions of the Dominion, is quite satisfactory. Many of the dealers have already got their fish departments off to a good start, while not a few who have hitherto given no attention to this phase of the trade are taking it up for the first time this season. It is a line which comes most decidedly within the scope of the grocer, and besides the direct profit which is reaped, it helps to attract other trade. Those dealers already not interested should consider the possibilities of this side line.

The fall run of mackerel has struck in along the Nova Scotian coast and already some fair catches have been made. There was no September catch of herrings worth while in that province but there is still time for the poorer grade of fish to come along.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—Business is reported quite satisfactory and orders to the big dealers are coming in from the west and other parts of the country. In this district business is steady and as the season advances there should be an encouraging growth in the trade. The brook trout season is over. Lake trout are in good supply at a fair price. Salmon is reported scarce, but halibut, pike and pickerel are coming forward freely. It is apparent that grocers are taking a deeper interest in their fish departments and not a few are taking up this end of the business for the first time. Such, at least, is the statement of one prominent fish authority. Oysters are in good demand with the season getting away to a good opening. The taste for the bivalve has been unsatisfied for months and the beginning of the new season has been encouraging. Haddies are receiving close arrention and kindred lines are coming more into use again since the middle of September.

NEW BRUNSWICK.

St. John.—Dry salt cods are reported as being a scarce article in St. John, and it is expected that the merchants will have to pay a stiff price to have them on hand to meet the demand. The cost is expected to soar, as this commodity is scarce. Fairly large quantities have been received from Halifax and Newfoundland, but one of the best sources of supply, the Bay of Fundy, nearest the home market, has seemingly failed for a time at least. There is a possibility of its improving, however. Much bait has been taken along the coast, particularly on the north shore of the province, where at a rough estimate, between 600 and 700 barrels have been secured. This is used mostly for lobster fishing and sardine fishing.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—Trade in fish is taking on a noticeably healthier stride than has been apparent so far during the season. The cooler weather which has been in evidence is responsible in part no doubt while there is also the fact that the domestic fruit season is drawing to a close and dealers who have during the past month or so been devoting their attention to fruit are now beginning to push fish. Oysters have met with a favorable reception so far, bearing out the fact that retail dealers are giving them attention early in the season. Finnan Haddie are slightly higher, now being quoted at 9c, but that is about the only price change. A variety of new lines of smoked and pickled will be arriving during the next couple of weeks.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Wholesale dealers report considerable improvement in the fish business during the past week. The fall run of mackerel has struck in along the coast, and during the week some fair catches were made. Most of the fish are large and fat, and those placed on the local market found a ready sale. Owing to unfavorable weather on the Banks, the receipts of other lines of fresh fish have been rather light. Oysters are only in fair supply. The demand is good and the price high. Prices in the dry fish trade are uncertain at the present time. Much will depend on the Labrador catch, news of which is now awaited by the local dealers. The tendency, however, is for higher prices. There has been a slight advance in the best grades of dry codfish, and the outlook for Bank fish is also reported to be a little better.

Fat herring continue to arrive in small lots, quite a percentage of these fish are soft, having been caught in hot weather and improperly cured. This means a great loss to the shore fishermen, and much inconvenience to Halifax buyers.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

St. John's.—Several Labrador fishing schooners have arrived with good fares whilst other floaters are reported as having done poorly. The shore crews in some instances have done well and whilst early reports looked like a remarkably good fishery, the voyage will only be an average one after all.

The current price off the coast is $3.80 but some have paid $4 and $4.20 in their haste to make up cargoes; the price quoted in the foreign market at present is about 21s. which does not leave much margin for profit to the shipper.

Some new firms have introduced themselves to our fishery this year and have bought considerable salt bulk fish and paid good prices. The introduction of these firms is a good thing for Newfoundland and some others are negotiating for suitable premises in St. John's and rumor has it that a purchase has been made. These outside competitors tend to keep up the prices, and are welcomed by the fishermen.

Good Profits in Fresh and Smoked Fish

Varieties Being Handled by the Canadian Trade—A New Line in Fillets of Haddock—Canadian Fisheries One of Canada's Best Resources.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—(Special)—In several previous issues The Grocer has advocated the handling of fresh and smoked fish by the retail grocers throughout Canada, and personal canvass amongst the trade has demonstrated that the article has been well thought of, so much so that some of the grocers interviewed were making preparations to have a special fish department.

To those who have not already taken over the handling of fresh and smoked fish, it would be well to call their attention to the different lines of fish which are offered and which show a good profit to the trade. Sea fish from the Atlantic Coast is becoming more popular throughout the different centres, and such fish as fresh haddock, codfish, Atlantic mackerel, soles, pollock, halibut, salmon and other varieties are the leading lines of sea fish. In lake fish throughout Ontario a large trade is done in whitefish, dory and pike.

Produces Good Profit.

Particular attention should be paid to finnan haddie. This is a line in which the trade can deal to advantage, and with the small amount of money invested the profit to be derived is larger than in handling the majority of lines of staple groceries. Some grocers are under the impression that losses are apt to occur in handling fresh fish, but this is not the case, as the article being perishable, is turned over quickly, the profit ranging from 50 to 100 per cent.

Fillets in Haddock a New Line.

A. H. Brittain, managing director of a large fish concern, interviewed by The Grocer, confirmed this investigation, and furthermore stated that the sale of finnan haddies from the Atlantic now extended as far west as the Pacific Ocean. The lines being put up in popular packages was no doubt responsible for the increased sale. Many grocers and large handlers are now being supplied direct by express shipments, the product arriving in fine condition, by which means the sale is much increased.

A new and popular line taking the market of Canada is fillets of haddock. These fish are put up in 15 lb. boxes, all the bones and other waste removed, making it easy for the dealer to handle at a good margin of profit. Finnan haddie and fillets can be as easily handled as fish in cans.

Steam trawlers working off the coast of Nova Scotia effect a steady and uniform supply which enables the trade to get fish in all weather conditions, and weather conditions in the past have hindered operations and the development of the industry.

Over $29,000,000 worth of fish were taken from the waters of Canada last year, which when properly developed, will be one of Canada's greatest resources.

BIG ALASKA SALMON PACK.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 5. (Special)—While the pack of salmon on the lower Pacific coast was quite small this season, in Alaska the pack was the best yet, the total being 2,800,000 cases. This is 175,000 cases more than in 1908, the last banner year. The salmon from the north are generally of good quality. This year the packers are asking $1 a case more for reds, and 80 cents more for pinks.

Importance of Big Exhibition of English Grocers

London, Eng., Oct. 4.—A grocers' exhibition, or more correctly an International Grocery, Provision, Oil and Italian warehouse and Allied Trades Exhibition is held annually in London, England. This year marks the 19th annual. It continues for a week and at it manufacturers and dealers in grocery lines show their wares, and a great deal of purchasing is done by visiting merchants.

Numerous competitions for grocers, assistants and clerks are held in which diplomas, medals, etc., are given. Altogether this year there are 79 different competitions, among them window dressing, tea and coffee blending, coffee roasting and valuing, writing advertisements, rapid freehand ticket writing, butter judging, counter display, bacon slicing, tea and dried fruit valuing, tea and coffee weighing, wrapping and tying, invoicing, etc.

These exhibitions are always memorable occasions in trade annals and carry out still further the policy of education for grocers and clerks for which England is now noted.

There are also discussions on trade matters, while this year there were several lectures and illustrations on the best methods of window dressing and on other subjects of grocery interest such as tea planting, the preparation of the leaf and so forth. These exhibitions do much to raise the standard of efficiency of both merchants and clerks in this country.

FOOD VALUE OF RICE.

A writer, in giving the value of rice as a food says:—

Rice, for example, is more nutritious than wheat, rye, oats, corn, potatoes, fat beef or lean beef. There is as much food value in one pound of rice as there is in three pounds of potatoes or 18-10 pounds of fat beef.

A bowl of rice for breakfast is as nutritious as two strips of bacon and two eggs. The same bowl of rice for breakfast will carry one as far as a pound of steak.

Rice is the most digestible cereal. It is wholly assimilated in one hour. It takes more than three hours to digest white wheat bread.

Any man can live by eating two pounds of rice the day.

The white rice commonly sold in Canada is minus the hull, which originally covers the grain. The hull taken from the rice is fed to cattle in the form of bran. It is said to be very nutritious.

Coffee—Its Varieties and Blending

Different Classifications of Coffee and Where They are Produced—The Peculiarities of Each—How Different Kinds are Blended Together to Give a Good Flavored Coffee at a Moderate Price.

While the consumption of coffee in Canada per capita is not large as compared with other countries, still the amount consumed is yearly showing a decided increase. The dealer, if he understands coffee and it's different varieties will be able to increase the popularity of this beverage among his customers.

Brazil is one of the principal producers of coffee and it is from this country that we get our Santos and Rio. There are other coffees that come from Brazil such as Victoria, Bahia, etc., but Santos and Rio are by far the principal ones.

Origin of Mild Coffees.

Mild coffees really include all coffees but those that come from Brazil. Of these, there are Java and Sumatra produced in their respective countries, but which are practically identical. Mocha is grown in Arabia and shipped out from Aden and Hodeidah, while the same coffee in the long bean is called Harar. Then there are washed mild coffees, embracing Bogotas, Guatemalas, Mexicans, Costa Ricas, Maracaibos and Meridas, and unwashed mild varieties such as Maracaibo, Mexican, Bucaranranga, etc.

Javas and Mochas.

All things had a beginning and so did coffee. The first coffees were Java and Mocha. Java is a heavy, thick coffee, highly fermented, almost too heavy to use alone, and so it has always been mixed with Mocha in varying proportions. Mocha coffee is of a sharp acid type, and the blending of these two characters of coffees produced the best results, so a cup quality was established as a standard, and the same basic idea adhered to, for in coffee as in whiskey or tobacco, blending has developed better results than are obtainable by using the straight article. It is this blending that has allowed manufacturers to produce coffees that will appeal to consumers more so than others.

That Palate of the Public.

Cheap, dear and medium priced coffees are blended together in order to secure something that will appeal to the public palate, and also which is reasonable in price. If the dealer has something to offer a little different, a little better than can be obtained elsewhere, he has made a big stride towards increasing and holding his trade. Of course, the requirements in the way of cup flavor vary somewhat with the locality and it is for this reason that one particular blend might not suit all places.

Coffee and Alkali.

A coffee authority points out that there are certain sections of the country where the water is filled with alkali, and it is hard to get delicate flavor out of coffee and he advises the use in such cases of a very pungent coffee which will stand up and show some merit when such water is used.

It is interesting to note that there is a marked increase in the consumption of better grades of coffee. The fact that low price coffees have been advancing considerably in price, and a great deal more than better grades, may partly be the cause, but it is also true that the public are becoming more discriminating and particular about their coffee each year.

The Dealer's Opportunity.

As has been said before, the consumption of coffee in Canada per capita is still small, and there is, therefore, excellent opportunities for the extension of its sale. The grocer realizing this should put more selling power behind coffee.

STORE PHILOSOPHY.

Every business needs system to make it run smoothly, but don't let system reach the point where it is nothing but red tape. Red tape is system gone to seed.

If you maintain a store clock, see that it keeps correct time. There is nothing more conducive to tardiness than dependence upon a wrong clock.

It is a poor salesman who insists that he knows more about what his customer wants than the customer himself knows. Let the customer think he knows something anyway.

It is an art and one decidedly worth while to be able to say, "Thank you," to the five cent customer with the same accent as to the buyer of five dollars' worth.

The merchant who calls down a clerk in the presence of customers need not be surprised if a day comes when the clerk returns the compliment, also in the presence of customers.

To increase a man's capacity, instead of relieving him of responsibility, place more responsibility on him.

Just being the proprietor doesn't give a man the right to abuse his authority and misuse his employes. You can't keep good help unless you treat them as you yourself would be treated.

PRICE CUTTING IN OIL.

A great oil war is being waged in England between the Schell Company, an English concern, and the Standard Oil Company, of the United States. As a result of the price cutting, oil has fallen from 14 to 9 cents a gallon.

You Must Realize

that an article which has a huge amount of consumer advertising behind it to pull it through the stores, as has

2 in 1

must be a profitable and quick-selling line to handle.

But in addition to this ad-pulling force, "2 in 1" has sterling merit behind it. It preserves the boots and makes them pliable; is waterproof; shines quickly and lasts a long time; does not soil the clothes or clog the brush, and is just now in increasing demand.

You can't afford to be without "2 in 1" on your shelves.

The Best Proposition!

Looked at any way you please, no line of goods holds out the same inducements to the Grocer as

UPTON'S
Jams, Jellies and Marmalade

First, they are made from the finest fruits in the world---Canadian Fruits---selected by experts and preserved and bottled in an up-to-date, sanitary factory, which is a model of cleanliness. Second, the "Upton" line never 'sticks,' because our extensive consumer advertising has created a demand for these goods; and third, selling "Upton's" specialties invariably leaves a satisfaction and profit-margin behind that makes trading a pleasure.

Are you featuring "Upton's"? If not, fall in line with the 'wise' ones.

Wasting Your Energies?

If it pays to push an article, it pays to push it to some purpose and to push more with an object of gaining permanent trade than of temporary profit. If the demand for any article stops when you stop pushing it, 95 per cent. of your energy has been wasted.

You waste no energy whatever in advocating the sale of these Fish, because people who buy them once will buy them again and again. Briefly, the intrinsic merit of both these articles backs up the highest praise you can give them.

If it's an "Enterprise" it will be backed by the oldest and largest manufacturers of these goods in the country.

Note the style illustrated. The grinders are connected direct to the shaft of the motor. No belts or gears to litter up the store and make it look like a machine shop and fewer parts to wear.

Perhaps you'd be glad to look over a catalog of electrically driven Coffee Mills, Meat Choppers, etc. Glad to send it.

"GET A RECEIPT"

Putting a Receipt in Every Parcel Benefits the Customer

It prevents disputes. Prevents overcharging.

Prevents mistakes in change. Stops mistakes in charge accounts.

Insures a proper record of money paid on account.

Gives information about special sales and new lines of goods handled by the merchant.

Protects children and servants by giving them a receipt to take home.

Shows which clerk waits on each customer, and in case goods are exchanged proves the price paid and date purchased.

Putting a Receipt in Every Parcel Benefits the Merchant

It stops mistakes. Stops losses. Removes temptation.

Increases trade. Increases profits.

BECAUSE It enforces a correct record of

All cash sales. All credit sales.

All money received on account and all money paid out.

It wins the confidence of the public. Makes every sale advertise your business. Satisfies customers.

Makes each clerk responsible for the way he serves customers.

Every merchant's success depends on whether his methods of handling his business gives the above results.

National Cash Register Receipts protect millions of customers daily against mistakes and carelessness.

Considering the material, workmanship, and what they do, National Cash Registers are the lowest priced machinery made. They sell from $13.00 to $870.00.

National Cash Register Receipts protect hundreds of thousands of merchants daily. . . . . .

Every one of these merchants had large stores in which buildings with contents were completely destroyed, but they all saved their accounts through the Keith Fire proof System.

This positive evidence of the fire-proof qualities of the Keith Systems actually spreads all over the United States, and yet, strange as it may seem, certain manufacturers of drop-leaf systems who would first sell their system and would then afterwards sell you an expensive safe in which to store the accounts—call us fire-proof fakers.

They have an axe to grind.

We have given you facts backed by sworn affidavits and we, therefore, feel safe in leaving this matter to your intelligence.

The fire-proof feature is only one of the many points of protection offered by the Keith System.

Cause of the High-Cost-of-Living Riots

WHY GROCERY STORES IN FRANCE WERE ATTACKED AND WELSH DEALERS CONDEMNED—WRITER POINTS OUT THIS IS DUE TO LACK OF PUBLICITY AS TO REASONS FOR PRICE ADVANCES—SOLUTION OF THE PROBLEM SUGGESTED.

By H. Theobald.

Recent happenings in the grocery world demonstrate the necessity of publicity and its value to the trade.

In France, only a few weeks ago, grocery shops in a number of districts were attacked and damaged because of the high cost of living. In South Wales, the scene of a recent strike, the grocers were condemned for raising their prices. In the United States where investigations follow one another seemingly without interruption, there is an undercurrent of opinion that the middleman should be removed, and there is likewise a suspicion of the retailer's integrity.

And as a last straw, the writer chanced to enter an east end Montreal store last Saturday morning, just as several women were trying to tell their grocer that he "required watching." "You never can tell what these fellows are giving you," one of them said inelegantly, "and everything seems to be getting dearer. What's your butter this morning?" she asked. "Thirty cents," replied the proprietor. "My goodness, you can get it up town for twenty-seven."

Do the People Trust the Trade?

Now, what is the underlying reason for all these conditions? Some grocers may sit back in their office chairs and ask with an air of superiority! "What has this question to do with me? My customers trust me implicitly, and I am doing all in my power to deserve that confidence."

Undoubtedly, this is true in a great many cases, but by the people, the purchasing public, as a whole, unreservedly trust the trade? What about the Welsh and French illustrations?

In South Wales, when the grocers had been charged by the strikers with the responsibility of increasing the cost of living, the grocers arranged a conference with the strike leaders and clearly proved to them that the profits in the grocery trade were smaller than those obtained by any other class of retailer in the country.

In other words, the people did not understand the conditions under which the grocers worked. Similarly, in France, the retailer was blamed for high prices because he was the party who was brought in direct relation with the consumers. The latter never thought of the results of a hot and dry summer on certain commodities, nor did they stop to consider whether there were reasons for higher prices in the other markets. The grocer was to blame! Was he not asking the high prices? Go where you will there is more or less of the opinion that grocers get their supplies for nothing. The general public have no other considerations than what they have to pay for sugar and tea and the other staples.

Pittsburg Dealers' Methods.

One more example. In Pittsburg recently, the grocers had printed an explanation of the high price of sugar, in order that their customers might be acquainted with the situation. Every paper bag and every wrapper in which sugar was sent to the household bore the following inscription:

"The tariff on sugar benefits nobody but the sugar trust. Were it not for the tariff and the trust, this package would cost you two cents a pound less. Urge your congressman to vote for the removal of the tariff on sugar. If he doesn't do it, don't return him to Congress. It isn't our fault."

Pittsburg grocers, declare that within another year, they will have the poor people thoroughly informed regarding the price of foodstuffs and that blame will be put on those responsible. It is also interesting to note that within a few days after the appearance of this announcement in the press of New York City, the American Sugar Refining Company used considerable advertising space to explain their position.

Now glancing over what has been shown, it is very evident that the French, the Welsh and the Pittsburg grocers had to contend with the ignorance on the part of at least a portion of the consuming public. Here then is the answer to the question asked avove, "what is the underlying reason for all those conditions?" Can it be anything but ignorance? In each instance the grocers took no action until a crisis loomed up, when in order to allay the public's suspicions an announcement was made. As a result the people understood. This is true at least of the affairs in Wales and in the United States. There is no information at hand of the aftermath of the assaults on theFrench trade.

How to Obtain Information.

Grocers are kept in touch with the world's markets by travelers, manufacturers and the trade newspapers. Here and there the daily press gives some market news but it is desultory, and usually the grocer receives scant consideration. The daily papers appeal to the general public, and the writer knows of some papers which seem to take a particular delight in announcing the wholesale prices of commodities. The retail grocer has no special objection to this, if his own point of view were also published.

Where Lies the Remedy?

In the cases referred to, it was concerted action by grocers, followed by information handed out to consumers that allayed doubts. This was in time of need, when the "multitude" was angry, or at least was beginning to feel that something was wrong.

But in times of peace it is a wise policy to prepare for war; so say many great men. Could not grocers solve the problem of educating their customers in the market conditions of the day? Ideal conditions of trade should exist when the buyer knows that an article is worth the price demanded by the retailer.

If sockeye salmon sells at the rate of two tins for thirty cents one year, and the same quantity for thirty-five cents the next year, how is the consumer to know the reason for the advance? Then if in the following year the grocer announces that he cannot do better than sell sockeye at twenty cents a tin, is it not reasonable that the general salmon-buying public is going to ask "why?" This is practically what has taken place during the past few years in regard to salmon. Many advances have been recorded in groceries, and yet the buying public do not understand the conditions that have made necessary these higher prices.

Concerted Action Needed.

The solution of the problem lies first in concerted action. Thus, in Canadian cities and towns where there are live associations of grocers, meetings could be held, when the conditions of the markets could be discussed and reports of these meetings should be given to the newspapers. The latter will undoubtedly be glad to give space to this kind of news and thus a double duty is performed; the grocers learn the nature of the situation, and the public through the medium of the press is given the same information. Correct information could also be given by individual dealers in their advertising, circular letters, personal talks, etc. Surely, then, the grocers of such a town will be dealing with enlightened consumers! Not only will increased prices be explained, but when there are any reductions these, too, should be referred to. Ignorance is a mighty opposition in any walk of life, and there is no doubt that the great public does not appreciate the retail grocer's position. The idea held by the farmer and mechanic, that any one can sell groceries, seems to obtain almost generally.

When the People Understand.

These recent occurrences in various parts of the world are certainly food for reflection. Individual efforts on the part of retailers will scarcely avail much, but a united body of grocers, confident in the knowledge that they are right and sure in the conviction that the general public understands their position, such grocers need have no fear of the future. They will be safe from such manifestations as were witnessed in France and South Wales, not to mention the removal of the suspicion that seems to abound wherever a grocer stands behind his scales, day after day doling out with even handed justice the nation's food necessities.

FREIGHT RATES IN GERMANY CUT.

Because of the recent drought and the high cost of living, the Prussian ministry has decided to cut in half the railroad freight rates on potatoes, fresh vegetables, corn and fodder grain and to reduce the rates on sea fish.

The minister of agriculture has ordered the sale of fodder to needy persons at reduced prices.

An official report places the potato crop of Germany at only 60 per cent., against 74 a year ago.

Educative Campaign for Shorter Hours

THE GROCERS' SECTION OF TORONTO RETAIL MERCHANTS BELIEVE THAT SHORTER HOURS CAN BEST BE SECURED BY EDUCATING THE PUBLIC—THE AID OF THE CHURCHES, SOCIETIES AND LABOR UNIONS TO BE ENLISTED IN THE CAUSE—FALL CAMPAIGN IN THE INTERESTS OF THE GROCERY TRADE HAS COMMENCED.

Toronto, Oct. 12 (Special).—The Grocers' section of the Retail Merchants' Association made a good start in their fall and winter campaign in the interests of the grocers at their meeting at 21 Richmond street on Monday night. Several important questions were brought forward for discussion while the number on the slate to be dealt with at future meetings betokens that some good work in remedying trade grievances is to be done.

The question of early closing was the principal subject dealt with on Monday night. It is through an educative campaign that they believe the best results must come and they have already enlisted support from ministers of the city. However, the scheme is yet young and they realize it will mean a good deal of planning in order to perfect it.

Wanted Church Co-operation.

J. F. Holloway, president of the Grocers' section, introduced the question. He believed an educative movement for the general public was necessary and that if the church would co-operate with the trade a great deal could be done. He pointed to the difficulty of bringing an early closing by-law into effect.

Minister Gives Address.

Rev. Dr. Turnbull is one of the city ministers who believes that the grocers should have shorter hours.

"I scarcely know why I am here," he said, "unless it is that I am interested in anything that will help my brother. I am in favor of shorter hours for the grocers, but I realize there are difficulties in the way of securing them, although I can see no great objections why the grocers should not have them.

"I am in favor of shorter hours because you are men living in the 20th century, and should not be mere slaves, which you are in a certain way when you work from early morn until late at night. Every man and woman should have some spare time for recreation, culture of the mind and for the development of their religious side. When I see grocers at work until 12 o'clock on Saturday night how can I expect them to get to church on Sunday morning.

Blames Public and the Grocer.

"The public are to blame in the first place, but the grocers are to blame next for yielding. I see people who could order their groceries early, walk around until late and then go to the grocery."

"We will have to get shorter hours, or we will not be able to get clerks," maintained Mr. Holloway. "In other lines of work clerks get time for recreation and that is the work the young men will take up."

By-Law Had Failed.

F. C. Higgins spoke of the efforts that had been made in the past to secure shorter hours but which being half-hearted, failed. A city by-law closing grocers at a certain hour had once been put into force, but many evaded it by carrying some side line. He realized that a young man in business had to work hard in order to make ends meet, and therefore, such a person wanted to keep open.

Frank Giles, although in favor of short hours, pointed out that the working people were not through until late, and in order to accommodate them, he believed that the stores should be open until 7 o'clock. He maintained that no law could be passed to make a grocer close if he opposed it. The dealer would get around it by handling side-lines. "Personally, I would like to see the hours shorter. I don't think it pays to stay open. Besides it makes help a bigger problem as other trades have shorter hours and just as much pay. However, we must not consider ourselves, but the majority."

Eight O'Clock Too Late.

Mr. Holloway in speaking of eight as an hour for closing, said that while it would help, it did not give the clerk or employer much chance for recreation. He pointed out that with the additional expenses and the trade he would get earlier if he did close, that a grocer did not make anything by staying open. "I believe," he said, "that the churches can do a great deal in this direction. Through this source the public can be asked to patronize and encourage the man who closes. You cannot drive the people but you can lead them, and this can be done by getting the churches to select a certain Sunday, and preach on this particular question."

It was pointed out that additional educative work could be done through the labor unions as well as the different societies and lodges. The women's Christian Temperance Union have already taken up the subject in Toronto.

Three Methods of Operation.

Rev. Dr. Turnbull, after listening to the animated discussion on the question said there were three lines of operation. First, that they consider the advisability of applying to the city for a by-law for early closing; second, that they conduct an educative campaign through the churches, by having one Sunday especially devoted to that question, and third that they put the matter before the labor unions and enlist their aid, as well as the societies of both men and women.

The association believe that this is the best way of remedying the grievance of long hours and will consider the best means and methods of doing so.

Invoicing Biscuits.

"Are you in favor of having biscuits invoiced at uniform price with discount off?" was a question put to the meeting. There were some objections to the idea but the majority voted in favor of it.

Some interesting discussions in other trade problems took place and another big question, that of manufacturers and wholesalers selling to hotels, restaurants, etc., was left over for the next meeting.

RICE ADVANCES AGAIN.

This week, the announcement is sent out of another advance of 15 cents per cwt. in the price of rice. To those who have followed our market reports this will not be a surprise, as it has been pointed out that conditions seemed to warrant the expectation of higher prices. This is a total advance of 65 cents per cwt. within two months —an unusual occurrence in this commodity.

A combination of adverse conditions in many producing sections of the East is responsible. In China, conditions are reported the worst in a long period. In the Yangste Valley there have been very serious floods. In normal years this section exports rice to the remainder of China, but when floods occur it is necessary to import large quantities. In 1907, a year of flood in that district, 900,000 tons were brought in.

In the Dutch East Indies, the Governor-General has temporarily prohibited the export of rice in order to safeguard the natives. There is little available Burma rice in any of the producing countries. The position in India is improving according to late reports but it is seemingly certain that there will be a shortage of foodstuffs. Therefore it seems that high prices are fully warranted.

SHORT CROP OF PICKLE VEGETABLES.

The production of vegetables used in the manufacture of pickles has been even smaller this year than last when the crop was shorter than for some years before.

This is true not alone in Canada but also throughout the United States—the result of the dry, hot weather during the summer months, which seriously affected the growth of the cucumber.

One manufacturer stated to The Grocer that on their own acreage this year, the yield was only 2¼ tons to the acre as compared with 2½ last year, and an average of five tons.

It will be remembered that last year, prices were considerably higher than in previous years and as the season advanced and supplies of the vegetable became scarcer that prices went higher. That the prices of last year will be maintained under these circumstances can only be looked for.

Probably, as the season advances and supplies become more limited, a firmer feeling may develop. Canadian manufacturers find it necessary to import large quantities of vegetables from the United States during the winter months and spring, and much depends on how prices on the other side act.

ADULTERATED PEPPER.

Investigations by the Inland Revenue Department, Ottawa, regarding our pepper supply, indicate that for the past 33 years, 40 per cent. has been adulterated. The commonest adulterant is ground olive stones. Recently, 2 carloads of this have been sent into Canada, but because olive stone is used for other purposes, its entry cannot be prohibited. So say the authorities.

The question to be considered by the retail dealer is whether he asks for pure pepper and doesn't or does get it. If he asks for genuine pepper, is confident he is getting it 2and does get it, he can, without fear from visits of inspectors, offer it to his customers as absolutely pure.

If, however, the dealer gets a compound article he should know it. In justice to his customers he should tell them when he tenders them compound pepper. If he doesn't he is not only liable to a fine from a government inspector, but in time will lose the confidence of his clientele. This would be far more disastrous than any fine imposed.

The time will come when dealers will fear no more the visit of an inspector; but only when they insist on getting pure spices when they ask for them. Judge the manufacturer by his reputation. Learn all you can about him and act accordingly.

CLEAN WINDOWS AND SHOW-CASES.

The grocer who takes a pride in the cleanliness of his windows and show-cases is bound to impress his customers with the idea that he is aiming at cleanliness and that this principle is applied to all his methods.

On Monday morning last, a representative of The Grocer called at a store, the windows of which were daubed with some polish. Inside, you could scarcely see through the show-cases because of the polish that had been rubbed over the glass. Presently a young clerk was found at one of the windows with a dry cloth and a stout arm. The white stuff was fast disappearing, but the glass thus treated shone bright and clean. The proprietor noticed the effect from time to time and was delighted. "That is a regular duty," he said. "Not daily, of course, but so frequently that the dust and dirt have no chance at all."

A little water, a polish preparation, a dry cloth and a willing arm will work wonders on the glass every Monday.

EDITORIAL NOTE.

Some one has said that the buyer forgets the price, no matter how low it is, if the purchased article fails to prove satisfactory. That person understood human nature.

The Grocer's Confectionery Contest is off to a good start. Last Monday's mail brought the opinions of two dealers and more have since followed. Last week's issue contained full announcement, Page 23. Results will be given in our big Fall Campaign Number of November 3. Put your opinions on paper to-day and mail them to us.

Montreal, Oct. 12.—It has been stated that business did not show any great change after the elections had blown over, and apparently trade was not deeply affected by the turmoil of the campaign. At any rate business is running along, giving a good share of satisfaction to all concerned, and holding out hopes for the coming season. One gentleman told The Grocer that in spite of the good summer with a great deal of work for everybody there was not the expected prosperity. This is offered as the advice of simply a man who in his dealings with the trade has formed his own opinions. He claims that when people now-a-days make an extra dollar they have a dozen or more methods of spending it. Amusement parks, excursions, fashionable clothes and such things always appeal to the man with more money than his accustomed amount.

However, there is a general air of prosperity. Payments have been rather good and there is nothing to be gained by casting a doubt over our conditions.

Sugar.—The market remains firm and high, with no present indications of relief from high prices. The Cuban cane crop is likely to be good one, but there are no immediate sources of supply that can be expected to furnish stocks adequate for demands. While it is unsafe to try to form an idea of what future prices will be, still the present aspect is so firm that the general opinion is apparently that sugar prices will continue to hold their own for some time yet. The demand is fairly steady.

Syrups and Molasses.—There is a likelihood that when the new cane crop is being reduced to sugar there will be much less attention paid to molasses than usual owing to the high price of sugar. Fancy molasses are firm and as stated before they seem to be a good buy. Syrups are in good demand and will surely continue to be active with the price unchanged in a market that seems to be advancing in every direction and with a good season of demand.

Dried Fruits.—Some of the leading retailers are showing new figs, but the jobbers have not reported the arrival of stocks. The retailers who wanted these first shipments paid extra express duties in order to get fast delivery from New York. The trouble in the east will scarcely affect the fig market for most of the supplies have been shipped and are beyond the war zone. Currants are firm and raisins are steady. The dried fruit market is, generally speaking, steady and strong. The situation is unsettled owing to the fact that some stocks are arriving, others are yet to be shipped, and so on. It has not yet settled down to steady business.

Rice.—It has been indicated quite clearly in these reports during the past few weeks that rice which made rather phenomenal advances of late was still strong and was likely to advance still further. The news of the past week includes an advance of fifteen cents per cwt. in the regular prices. This is for Rangoons, Japans and Patna rices. To those who have followed the recent reports on rice the advance of the week does not come as a surprise. It was said that conditions of the market seemed to warrant the expectation of higher prices.

Brooms.—As stated in these columns a few weeks ago, brooms are very firm, and the price is high. An advance of 15 per cent. has been quoted during the past week and at the new figures the market is firm. The prices now quoted are as follows: Five strings, $4.50 to $5 a dozen; four strings, $3.75; three strings, $3.25; two strings, $3. The trade have had ample warning of the coming prices and should be well supplied before the new prices become active. The cause has been explained before, the main reason being the shortage of the new broom corn crop. The present advance brings the quotations to quite a figure for the everyday broom which has usually been at a normal price. One jobber stated he had just sold one lot of brooms at $4 a doz., for which he would have been glad to get $3 ten days or two weeks ago.

Tea.—A general firmness prevails in the tea market. Good sales of Japan have been reported at firm figures. Reports from various dealers may be boiled down to the statement that prices are generally strong.

Evaporated Apples.—The trade are quoting from 12½ to 13 cents for the best spot evaps. There is nothing definite about the extent of the present evaporating work. One jobber wanted to secure the entire output of one man but learned that 1,300 boxes had been sold at 10—10½ cents. The price will likely be rather firm.

CANNED GOODS.

Montreal.—Naturally enough canned goods is one of the principal topics in grocery discussions. Tomatoes have not been standing still during the week and what some call alarmist prices are now being mentioned. One house announced $1.75 for new pack 3s, and was upheld by others. But another jobber mentioned $1.55 to $1.60 and stated that prices could not go much higher for the reason that goods from across the line could be imported. Against that, however, is the fact that reports from Baltimore indicate a rising market and one local jobber stated he had made enquiries in that market without any hope of securing supplies. The pack is just about the same as last year's and it is not likely that the canners in the south will have any surplus goods. One canner sold 10,000 cases of tomatoes on Tuesday afternoon at $1.45. That is quite a healthy price to pay the packer and the information came from a jobber.

French peas have advanced $1 a case, and are now quoted at from $10 to $17, according to quality. This is just another little indication of the general tendency in the canned goods market.

Next consider lobsters. Stocks are very low and prices are higher. Some of the houses are reduced to only ½ lb. flats, and with slight supplies it will not be long until they are about finished.

Strawberries are firm as well as other fruits, and it is safe to say that the trade in general will feel better when they have received their deliveries of canned goods in full.

And lastly, salmon. There are ten buyers for every seller. Red sockeye was delivered to the extent of 35 per cent. talls. There was not a great demand for flats. The market is firm with supplies not at all encouraging.

Toronto.—It might be said that the canned goods market is unsettled, especially in regard to those on which prices were only named last week. It might also be stated that there is no tendency to weakness in any of the lines, but there is strength apparent in several.

In the face of the small delivery, spot tomato prices are going upward with a stride which denotes what dealers believe the real situation in this line is. Quotations rule from $1.50 to $1.65 this week. There might be some who would quote a higher figure because they do not want to sell.

Tomatoes in the United States are considerably higher than when they were imported in the spring, and just now could not be brought in to break prices. The high prices will no doubt act as a check on the consumption that would be apparent under more reasonable values.

There are several firms quoting beans at $1.25 per dozen, but others maintain quotations at $1.10. Prices depend on how each individual wholesaler stands in regard to supplies. Strawberries and raspberries are generally held at a figure considerably above the opening price, while gallon rhubarb is also strong.

It is definitely announced by canners that there will be a 40 per cent. delivery of tomatoes, 89 per cent. of corn and 10 per cent. of plums. Other lines of late fruits are not known yet.

ONTARIO MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Tomatoes—Spot, 1.50 to 1.65.

Canned Goods—Generally firmly held.

Rice—Up 15c per cwt.

Beans—Somewhat firmer.

Toronto, Oct. 12.—The pulse of the grocery trade has returned to a good steady beat, and wholesale dealers have no complaint to make regarding the present volume of business. Collections are also reported quite satisfactory.

Retail dealers are now preparing for the fall and winter trade, which promises to be bright. Supplies of canned goods, dried fruits and other winter necessaries will now be finding their way into the retailer's store house. Good sized orders are reported to be coming forward for shipment by water before the close of navigation.

Sugar.—"How and when is the sugar market going to act?" is a question, prominent in grocery trade circles just now. True it is that the market at the moment is firm, and has been for the past week with the outcome somewhat problematic. "Some of these days, but the time is uncertain," declared one sugar man, "the market will begin to adjust itself to the new conditions, namely the production of new beet crop in the States and the preliminary quotations on Cuban crop for January shipments which are a full $1 per cwt. below spot prices of raws."

While Cuban sugar has been sold to speculators at 4.85, a full cent below spot prices, beet sugar for May shipment is quoted at 5.84. Demand for sugar with smaller fruit supplies is decreasing, but normal for the month.

Dried Fruits.—The first arrivals of new Elemes figs are on the market, with 12½ to 13½ cents being asked. While some new prunes were received last week, all the wholesalers have not as yet received shipments. New Valencia raisins arrived last week. The primary market on this line is firm. Large sized prunes will be scarce. California apricots are easier and coast raisins show a slight weakness.

Tea.—Local conditions in tea are unchanged but the market is steady. A late report from Colombo, Ceylon, says that in all the markets for Ceylon tea, the rise has continued and quotations are higher than a month ago. It is almost impossible for it to be otherwise, considering the actual decrease in supplies. Continuing, this report says: "Until supplies materially increase prices must keep up. It is possible that a rush of low quality Indians may temporarily ease the market for common tea during the next month or two, but prices for all medium and fine Ceylons are certain to be maintained or even go higher."

Weather of late in all the tea-growing districts of India is reported favorable and there are prospects of a considerable increase in this year's Indian crop.

Coffee.—The strength in the coffee market is still apparent, and most local dealers maintain that with present conditions they can discern nothing but strength for a considerable period ahead.

Winnipeg, Oct. 12.—In spite of the wet weather which has been prevailing during the greater part of the week, trade has maintained its standard and orders have been arriving steadily. The stop to threshing operations has increased considerably the retail trade in the country, as many farmers have been able to get to town in places where the roads were anywhere decent and consequently have increased their purchases. The collection department is feeling the brunt of the inconvenience of the wet weather, as the grain has not been taken to the elevators and consequently payments have been delayed for a month.

There is considerable concern at the present time regarding the canned goods situation, and from all jobbers the one word "serious" has been heard. Tomato canners have announced that they are only going to deliver 40 per cent. of the orders, as the crops secured by them is only a 40 per cent. one. Other lines are reported to be in a bad shape and considerable speculation is being indulged in as to the future trend of the trade.

Sugar.—Sugar prices remain the same as last week and, while the market is firm, predictions as to the probable outcome are being indulged in. Jobbers are still declining to stock heavier and are only keeping enough on hand to supply the trade comfortably. Price quoted are as follows:

Syrup and Molasses.—Steady demand continues to prevail for syrup but prices have not taken the predicted advance and are held steady at last week's quotations. Several large orders were received during the week from northern points and several of these have been supplied which have to some extent affected the stocks on hand. It is expected that they will be replenished shortly.

Dried Fruit.—The first shipment of prunes in the market came during the week and a rapid sale was immediately made on the basis of 8½ cents for 90-100s. This is an advance of one-half cent over previous quotations, but it is expected that prices will ease off somewhat. No other lines are expected this week, although from now on new stocks should be arriving steadily. New prices for prunes are as follows:

Evaporated Apples.—The situation in evaporated apples is reported to be somewhat easier, but as yet no reduction in the prices offered by the wholesalers has taken place. Orders for quick delivery upon the stocks are being made on the basis of 11 to 11½ per pound.

Coffee.—Coffee is firmer and an active demand has been in existence during the week. That high prices are likely to prevail for some time is the opinion of many of the large wholesalers.

Beans and Peas.—For the first time in many months the bean market has received a setback and prices have started to decline. The reason of this decline is given by one wholesaler this morning as follows: First, the failure of reciprocity; second, better crops in the east than were expected; third, light demand at the present time in Western Canada. The reduction on new prices is 15 cents per bushel on the price quoted last week.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Oct. 12.—Wholesale grocery markets are now active. There is a good demand for nearly all lines carried by the trade. Prices continue firm, and in some lines there has been an advance since last week. Wholesale dealers report the molasses market continues to show strength, and there has been another advance of two cents per gallon since last report. Fancy Barbados is now quoted at 34 cents per gallon in puncheons, and 38 cents in barrels. There is a probability that prices will go still higher.

New stocks of this season's canned goods are now on the market, and tomatoes are going to the trade at $1.40 per dozen. Foxberries are now coming in and are selling at $6 per barrel. Valencia raisins will soon be along, and they will probably go to the trade at 7½ cents per pound.

The flour markets are slightly firmer, Manitoba patents selling at $6.15 to $6.25, and Ontario blends from $5.10 to $5.20.

Enormous quantities of apples are now being shipped to England. One steamer sailing from here recently, took 35,000 barrels. The shipments so far this season are over 200,000 barrels, which is more than was shipped the whole of last season.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

St. John, Oct. 12.—Business in the grocery trade has apparently recovered some of the briskness lost by the calm following election week. A moderate movement of general lines is in evidence.

The strength which has been reported in the molasses market is beginning to make itself felt in higher prices, late advances bringing quotations for fancy Barbados up to 35½ to 36 cents. The high price of sugar backed by other market conditions is the reason ascribed.

Ontario flour is easier by 15 cents, counteracting the advance of a similar amount on September 21.

The short delivery which will be made on tomatoes this year, namely 40 per cent., has raised the price of that vegetable to a high level. New corn opened slightly higher than last year, but there has been a fair production, and a 90 per cent. delivery is expected.

TRADE NOTES

Joseph Bates Gould, Boston, Mass., representative of E. & T. Pink, London, Eng., was in Toronto during the week.

NORTHERN ONTARIO'S PRODUCTS.

Not only grains and roots, but grapes and apples figured among the products of Northern Ontario at the Temiskaming Fair. Potatoes were exhibited 11 inches long, which on being cut through were sound "to the core." There were turnips weighing 51 pounds, and a splendid showing of ripe tomatoes, while grapes, ripened out of doors, were also shown.

POINTERS IN BRIEF.

The first step in making a sale is to make the customer want the goods.

It's not how much you say, but what you say and how you say it, that makes the sale.

Don't wait for customers to inquire for the new lines. Introduce them to them.

When you give an order, it is well to get a copy, with dating and other particulars marked.

When you are inclined to let your temper rise, remember that everybody has unpleasant occasions at times.

PRUNES

Crop is said to be of very indifferent quality this season on account of the bad weather during the growing time, and we were agreeably surprised to find that three cars which we have already received and which are now mostly all shipped out, are of extra fine quality; in fact, as fine as any we have ever seen. This is worth considering this year, as there is a lot of poor quality to be disposed of out of the crop. We offer

A General Test of High Quality Goods

WHAT IS THE REPUTATION OF THE MANUFACTURER? SHOULD BE THE QUESTION FOR THE DEALER TO CONSIDER—THE PURE MAPLE SYRUP PROBLEM DEALT WITH—BIG MARGIN OF PROFIT ON INFERIOR GOODS DOES NOT BUILD UP GOOD-WILL.

By H. A. Harvey.

The grocers of Canada believe that the success of their business depends, to a great extent, upon the maintenance of a high standard in the goods they sell. Look over the shelves of the average grocery store that makes any effort to improve its standing in the trade, and you will find but few articles open to question on the ground of quality. It is not that opportunities are wanting to substitute inferior articles, but that such a policy would ultimately prove fatal to those who attempted it. The purchasing public is prosperous and has the wherewithal to demand not only purity in their groceries, but high quality. This is the tendency in canned goods, spices, jams, and almost every article offered by the grocer.

Test of Genuine Maple Syrup.

But is maple syrup included in this list, you may ask? It is, and to a certain extent, it is not. How can a grocer satisfy himself that the contents of a bottle labelled "Pure Maple Syrup," is really the genuine article? That may be answered by asking a somewhat similar question. How can the grocer feel sure about the quality of flour, or spices, canned goods or jams? One of the ordinary methods is to judge by the manufacturer. What reputation does this man bear in the trade? Is his flour reputed as good as, if not better than, any other brand in the market? Similiarly is this jam manufacturer regarded as basing his reputation on the quality of his goods? Similarly with this spice grinder? Such is one of the tests generally employed. It is hardly fair to the new manufacturer, but the public is usually willing to give everyone a fair trial, and having gained the approval of the trade, it should be the manufacturer's aim to hold that golden opinion.

In the Dealers' Interests.

Thus, when the grocer considers the question of his pure maple syrup supply, he should, if he has the interests of his customers at heart, endeavor to satisfy himself as to the standing of the manufacturer from whom he is purchasing. Customers have formed the habit of trying to find out what they are buying. When they ask for pure syrup they want it; if a compound they want compound. If a question is asked about a brand of maple syrup, what will the grocer say in reply? Which of these will it be? "Well, I don't know, it says 'Best Maple Syrup' on the label. I guess it is pretty good stuff," or, "I have bought a great deal of goods from those people and have never had a complaint from my customers. The company that puts up this brand stake their reputation on their goods. They have an extensive business among the best grocers in the country, and I have no hesitation in recommending their goods."

In the one case, the grocer knows nothing about the article, in the other, he evidences the utmost confidence.

A Day of Reckoning.

There is another instance where a grocer may be carrying an inferior line of what he considers to be the genuine article, because it is cheap, and at the same time offers a good profit. He may continue this for a long time, but there is bound to come a day of reckoning. When some of his customers discover that they have been receiving an inferior article for what they had thought was pure, their confidence is gone. Not only does their change of attitude affect sales of syrup, but every article that is not widely known. It is not a safe policy, this playing with inferior goods for a slightly better price consideration. If a compound article is sold, it should be made quite clear that it is such.

There is on the market to-day not only pure maple syrup and its imitations, but also maple mixtures. Between seasons, the pure syrup is naturally higher than in the early spring. The maple mixture, therefore, finds quite a demand among those customers whose means are limited, but as regards quality, the principle applied above still obtains. The grocer can figure out the proposition for himself. The maple quality of any mixture depends on the manufacturer; and the grocer, not being able to actually test the goods, must place his dependence upon the man who prepared the article.

Study Source of Goods.

The grocer who feels that he owes his customers quality goods will endeavor to make himself acquainted with this house and that, and it will not be long before he can satisfy himself on this score. The same principle is applied to butter and cheese, to coffee, jams, etc. Why should any kind of syrup, designated "maple," be accepted without question? The modern grocer has only one principle for his store, and in applying it to his goods in general, maple syrup should receive the same attention that is directed toward his other goods.

TO OPEN MACHINE SOWN BAG.

In a grocery store the other day, a clerk was found opening a machine sown bag by cutting it across with a knife, which besides destroying the bag was wasting time. The dealer by following out the very simple instructions can open the bag in an instant, as it simply requires the cutting of the chain at the side and pulling out the single thread. Should the wrong end be cut, it is only a moments work to cut the other end and pull out the thread. Once the simple knack of opening the bag is acquired, a machine sown bag can be opened in a fraction of the time required to open a hand-sewn bag, and besides it will be in much better condition and more salable.

We often imagine ourselves busier than we really are. The merchant who is too busy to change his advertisement often, or to trim a window, or to arrange a counter display, is too busy to be a merchant.

Firm Tendency in Butter Markets

IN EVIDENCE FROM COAST TO COAST—PRODUCTION IS NOT OVERLY LARGE—GOOD DEMAND—BOTH DOMESTIC AND EXPORT—LIVE HOGS CONTINUE ON THE DOWNWARD TREND—PROVISIONS ARE ACTIVE—LARD AND EGGS STEADY.

A general firm tendency is in evidence in the butter markets throughout the Dominion. The production just at the present is not overly large, and indeed in some sections a falling off is reported, probably due to the poorer pastures. The market is, however, active in all directions. Eastern Canada is finding a good inquiry for export as well as from the West and Coast.

Export shipments to England are on a good scale, but this business will not be so marked after the new season's Australian and New Zealand butter arrives in England, which will probably not be to any extent before the latter part of November, or the first of December. Later on in the season in some sections of the country cheese factories close, which will tend to increase the yield of butter.

Live hogs continue easy, and reductions in price of porkers on hoof, as well as dressed, are general. Demand for provisions is active, while the same may also be said of lard. Lower prices on hogs are due to increased supplies, and if traced farther back, the reason is found in the higher price of feed, which is inducing farmers to sell.

During the month of September the packing of hogs at Western United States points has steadily increased. The gain in the hog packing for the month compared with last year, has been 375,000 hogs, showing that the country has sold hogs with increasing volume, but the demand for product has been sufficient during the month to not only take care of the increased packing at western points, which has amounted to a gain of 375,000 hogs, but there has been a material decrease in the stocks of product, which reflects a material increase in the demand for distribution.

Eggs are holding steady, as is also cheese, but a slightly easier tendency in the latter is reported from country boards at times.

MONTREAL.

Provisions.—During the week live hogs have shown an easier price, and the decline acted on dressed hogs, although in the latter case there was no actual change in price. Business in the various commodities has been good. Pork is now moving well and so is lard. The cause of the decrease in prices for live hogs is said to be the high price of feed, which forces the farmer to dispose of his stock.

Provisions.—A good general trade is in evidence in provisions, which dealers report satisfactory for the season. Lard has been in good demand and is firmer and quarter cent higher. Live hogs continue plentiful, and are coming forward so freely that an additional 35 cents has been lopped off prices this week, bringing the porkers on the hoof at country points down to $6.15. Butter.—Futter prices are unchanged, but steady. The production does not measure up quite with the volume hitherto coming forward. Perhaps the poorer pastures is the chief reason. However, later on in the year in certain parts of the country, factories give up the making of cheese and turn to the production of butter. This may be of some account, although the fact of poorer pastures will have to be considered. Demand locally is on a good scale, as are also western and export shipments.

Cheese.—Cheese prices are at the moment stationary. It is not a surprise though to hear that prices at country boards are wavering somewhat, for values for the past few months have been climbing with a marked rapidity, that will mean a good return to the farmer this year from this line. Trade in general is routine in character.

Poultry.—Clucking and cackling around the produce houses denote that a goodly portion of the poultry is still coming to market alive. They consist principally of chickens and fowl, with a sprinkling of ducks. "There should be plenty of poultry for Thanksgiving," remarked one local dealer. "In regard to prices at that time, it will depend on supply and demand, both of which are increased at that time." Turkeys are not quite ready for shipment but should be before the end of the month. One dealer quoted 15c per lb. as a probable price for live turkeys.

Ever Notice?

That you seldom see soiled packages on Grocers' shelves of either Postum, Grape-Nuts or Post Toasties—the great cereal sellers.

"There's a Reason"

Postum, Grape-Nuts and Post Toasties don't roost on the shelves. They have the merit claimed for them, and heavy continuous advertising of that merit keeps them moving.

If any grocer, wholesale or retail, gets a bit too much stock, the Postum Co. always stands ready to move it at once and send check to cover.

But that don't happen very often nowadays.

Better keep well stocked. There's no risk. The sale of every package is guaranteed.

Postum, Grape-Nuts and Post Toasties are as staple as sugar and flour, and the profit much more pleasing.

Steadiness in Flour and Cereals

PRICES SHOW NO CHANGE BUT STEADINESS PREVAILS IN BOTH FLOUR AND CEREALS—TRADE IS APPRECIABLE IN VOLUME—WHEAT QUALITY IN WEST HAS BEEN AFFECTED BY MOISTURE—PROBABLE PRODUCTION OF WHEAT.

Items of interest in the flour and cereal markets are not very prominent this week. There have been no price changes in either lines, and new features having a bearing on the general situation are lacking also. Prices of raw material after a week's fluctuation have arrived back at about the starting points. Steadiness, however, is the general report.

Trade in flour is on a moderate scale for domestic purposes but export business is inclined to quietness. There is, however, a good demand for rolled oats, and mills are well sold ahead. Consumption of cereals is on the increase.

In regard to the Western wheat crop, it is evident that the frost which came just before the harvest and the continuous wet weather since have caused a heavy deterioration in quality, but the consensus of opinion is that with conditions as favorable as they now appear, there would be from 165,000,000 to 175,000,000 bushels of milling wheat.

The preliminary estimate of wheat production in the United States is 655,516,000 bushels, compared with 695,443,000 bushels last year.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—With reports in the primary market giving strength to flour, the market has been well maintained, and prices are firm. Western wheat reports had been bullish following rains, and what was claimed to be a loss to the wheat still uncut and unthreshed. Flour strengthened its position in sympathy.

TOILET SOAP TRADE.

Laundry soap is a line which the grocer handles exclusively, and why should not more of the toilet soap trade belong to him too. A great deal of toilet soap is sold, and by a little attention he can work up a nice trade. The amount invested in this line need not be large, as a few dozen cakes will make quite a complete assortment for that matter.

The story you are listening to may be an interesting one but when a customer appears, she should receive your undivided attention. The story can wait. The customer doesn't have to.

W. H. Millman & Sons, Toronto, received two cars of white beans this week, the first to arrive on the market. —Advt.

The MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., are putting up a Pimento cheese in small glass jars. It has taken well with the trade wherever it has been introduced, and for any wholesaler or retailer interested in this line of goods, it would be to their interest to inquire for full particulars from the MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto or Montreal.—Advt.

What Would It Be Worth

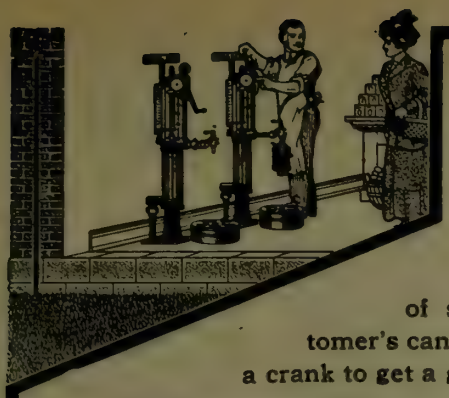
To Have an Advertisement on Each Wrapper or Paper Bag That Leaves Your Store?

Figure it as you may, the actual value you would gain would be hard to estimate.

Does not that seem a mighty good means of your advertising, and especially when the system is so simple—by just a pull of the roll paper, this device enables the merchant to have his own printing and advertising on every parcel that leaves the store, without costing any extra time, trouble or expense.

The Automatic Printing Attachment

fits onto the paper cutter, as shown in the accompanying illustration. It is attached to the top of the paper by means of a thumbscrew, which holds a type roller against the roll of paper.



The Automatic Printing Attachment is just the thing to advertise special sales and sales days, besides being an economical method of introducing new lines to your trade. There are many other ways in which the Automatic Printing Attachment can be used.

More Interest in Imported Fruits

WITH SUPPLIES OF DOMESTIC FRUITS ON THE WANE, ATTENTION IS BEING GIVEN TO IMPORTED LINES—PEACHES, GRAPES AND PLUMS COMING IN FROM THE STATES—A REVIVAL OF THE ORANGE TRADE SOON EXPECTED.

There is more interest being evidenced in imported lines of fruit, with the supplies of domestic lines diminishing. Such lines as peaches from Colorado, fancy grapes from California, and plums from Utah are finding their way to Canadian markets and are being taken up well. Oranges are also coming more into the limelight, although not as much as expected when grapes come to an end. Cape Cod as well as Nova Scotia are shipping considerable cranberries to the various markets.

Apples are being given a good deal of attention just at the present time. Plums are off the market altogether, peaches and pears are decidedly on the wane, and while there are considerable grapes coming forward, there is no overplus of supplies, for indeed in most markets the supply does not measure up to the demand.

"The demand from the Western Provinces for Ontario apples," remarked a Niagara district fruit man, "is brisker than usual this year. A new movement is taking place in the Pacific coast states, a number of carloads of apples being sent by way of Vancouver to Australia."

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Apples and grapes present as much of the present activity in fruits as might be expected now that their season is at its height. There are not only Canadian grapes, but a fine quality of Californias with Almerias coming on the market. The demand for apples is good, the Fameuse receiving particular attention just now. Peaches, pears and plums are declining and some dealers report these Canadian fruit off the market.

TORONTO.

Green Fruits.—Although there is considerable business being done in domestic fruits, the same briskness as heretofore is not in evidence. Plums are done, peaches are on the wane, while grapes are still fairly plentiful. There are considerable apples on the market and are being given more attention. There are offered fancy peaches from Colorado, grapes from California and plums from Idaho. Oranges are in somewhat better demand and are firmer. P. W. Hodgetts, director of the fruit branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, stated this week that recent storms in the province had resulted in the destruction of from 25 to 30 per cent. of the apple crop. According to reports he had received greenings suffered more than any other variety, especially in the Georgian Bay district, where from 40 to 50 per cent. of the crop will be a total failure.

Vegetables.—Potatoes are somewhat firmer this week, New Brunswick being quoted at $1.25 and Ontario stock at $1.15. Supplies forthcoming from Ontario are not as large as they apparently should be. "Probably holding for a higher figure," as one dealer put it. There is still a certain demand in evidence for green peppers, cucumbers, green tomatoes and other pickling necessities. Ripe tomatoes are higher for good firm stock.

Green Vegetables.—The supply and quality of fresh vegetables arriving in the market continue to keep up with the standard stated a few weeks ago. Native grown onions are getting scarcer and prices have risen 5 cents per dozen. Pickling cucumbers are also in the same predicament and an advance of 20 cents per dozen is noticed, while Brussels sprouts on the other hand are more plentiful, and are 5 cents lower. Pickling cucumbers are off the market, while head lettuce is very scarce, and has doubled in price and is quoted at present at $1 per dozen bunches.

Fish - Oysters

Fish and Oysters Going Out Well

SEASON IS GETTING OFF TO A GOOD START—INDICATIONS OF BETTER TRADE THAN LAST YEAR—ATTENTION CHANGED FROM DOMESTIC FRUITS TO FISH DEPARTMENT.

A healthy general demand for fish is reported from the various sections of the Dominion, with every indication of even better business as the season advances. New lines are arriving from time to time and the dealer now has a good sized list to pick from.

"Our domestic fruit trade is dropping off," said one retailer grocer, "and we are now turning our attention to our fish department." The same thing is probably true with many more, accounting in part for the present good fish movement. Oysters are going out well.

From Nova Scotia comes the report that salt codfish prices will go higher. Lunenburg dealers are asking $6 per quintal now, and some of them want $6.25 for the choicest fish. Despite the fact that the foreign markets are unsettled, Newfoundland is sending large shipments of fish to the Mediterranean.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—There is quite a healthy general demand and from a number of reports the business seems to have fully arrived for the season. B.C. salmon (fresh) is reported a little lower, being more plentiful than last week. Halibut is arriving steadily and is easily one of the favorite varieties. Fresh whitefish is reported scarce, but a choice variety of frozen is offered. Lake trout are in good supply, and at a medium price. There is a steady demand for the other lines of fish. Oysters are naturally moving well with their new season. Even better business than the present is looked for in this department.

ONTARIO.

Toronto.—Trade is satisfactory for the season of the year, and shows an improvement since the set in of the cool weather. Sea herring and mackerel are now on the market, while fillets of haddie is a new line that is being offered. It is quoted at 12 cents per pound. Labrador herrings have arrived, barrels being quoted at $5.25 and half barrels at $3.25. A normal trade is in evidence in oysters.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—Fish receipts at Halifax during the past week have been light. Fresh haddock are scarce, and are in good demand. Owing to the stormy weather only a few mackerel have been taken along the coast. Large mackerel are retailing here at thirty cents apiece, and the same class of fish are selling in Boston at thirty-five cents.

The indications are that salt codfish prices will go higher. Lunenburg dealers are asking $6 per quintal now, and some of them want $6.25 for the choicest fish. Some Lunenburg fish have been sold in Gloucester at a price which equals about $6.75 for the dry product. Despite the fact that the foreign markets are unsettled, Newfoundland is sending large shipments of fish to the Mediterranean. Two steamers sailing from St. John's, Nfld., this week took 35,000 quintals, and another steamer for Naples took 12,000 quintals. So far this season about 100,000 quintals of codfish have been shipped to Mediterranean ports.

Nothing definite has as yet been ascertained regarding the Labrador catch. Reports from some districts, however, are not favorable, but on the whole it is thought that the total catch will be ahead of last year.

On the Cape Breton coast the fishery is reported to be fairly good. About four hundred barrels of mackerel have been taken in the vicinity of Margaree. The fish are large and fat. The catch of mackerel at the Magdalenes is about 2,500 barrels to date. Over half of these have been sold in the American market.

Oysters are in good demand, and dealers report sales of bulk oysters heavy. Shipments of finnan haddies are light owing to the scarcity of stock, but kippered herring are in good supply.

STORE PHILOSOPHY.

The man who is made happy by being lazy is not the man you want on your force. He is a drag on the business wagon.

The salesman who finds it difficult to be polite to folks in dowdy clothes should learn to be so because it pays, if for no other reason.

When you find a salesman being polite only to the people who have money it is time to have a heart to heart talk with him about the common people.

The salesman who can bring his friends to trade where he works is a help to the store, but he who brings them there to loaf can well be spared—or at least his friends can.

THINK IT OVER

Is it worth while starting a Fish Department? If you don't, you let trade and good trade go past your door. You know that a dollar is a dollar; therefore it IS worth while, and we are in a position to give you the best possible assistance.

This is the handsomest, most practical and convenient oyster display cabinet made.
It requires but ONE-EIGHTH the amount of ice used in other cabinets, owing to the vacuum chamber construction.
Ice tank sits in the centre, with three gallons of stock below and two above—thus enabling you to keep your stock absolutely fresh until the last pint is sold.

Sold Outright $17.00 f.o.b. Toronto

No strings attached—no jug-handled loaning agreements with the view of coercing you into buying any particular line of oysters.
Your own judgment will suggest that you handle only "Coast-Sealed" Oysters, because they are the cleanest, fattest, best flavored oysters on the market. They reach you in a container that is sealed at the coast and which holds nothing but pure oysters—all over four years old and with the real salt sea flavor unimpaired.

Making Profitable a Fish Department

SHOULD BE OPERATED SOMEWHAT SIMILAR TO FRUIT DEPARTMENT IN SUMMER MONTHS—THE FACT THAT FRIDAY IS ALWAYS A FISH DAY MAKES A CERTAIN DEMAND THAT DEALERS SHOULD TAKE ADVANTAGE OF—MANY MERCHANTS TAKING UP THIS PROMINENT SIDE LINE FOR FIRST TIME.

Montreal, Oct. 11.—(Special)—Some grocers may be delaying the adoption of a fish department on the ground that they are afraid of loss through waste.

In other words, they fancy the fish will not keep, and that there would be a continual loss on that account. But how does the grocer handle fresh fruit. In spring he buys six crates of strawberries, or even more, and when night comes they have all been disposed off. Then come raspberries, and cherries and peaches and so on. Fruit will not keep for any length of time. It must be sold quickly, and the grocer turns all his activities towards accomplishing that end. He has informed his customers, he advertises, he writes bulletins, send out circulars, and in various methods lets the neighborhood know that he has new fruit and that he wants to sell it.

Apply Same Energy as to Fruit.

This is the method to be employed in handling fish. There is not, the same necessity of immediate disposal as in the case of strawberries, but the grocer who wants to handle fish should adopt a fish policy just as he has a fruit policy.

Friday is a special fish day. There is going to be an assured call for fish that day. Here then is the opening—a supply of fish for that demand. This is the advice of a prominent fish authority. His opinion is that Canadian grocers who do not handle this article are missing a good chance to increase their total trade, and also their profits. It is not only one class that eats fish. Everyone becomes tired at times of meat, and a jaded appetite demand something of a change. But the other point is that it is very nourishing, tasteful and is cheap. The cured fish, haddies, kippers and cod, besides the many other varieties are fast growing in favor.

Comparatively Cheap Food.

The high cost of living can be met in one direction at least by suggesting the more general use of fish in the average consumer's weekly menu. Fish will come to its own in due time, but tardiness should not be tolerated by the grocer.

The representative of one large Maritime company showed the representative of The Grocer a file of new letters—orders and enquiries—from grocers throughout different parts of the country. This was an illustration of the new interest that is being awakened in the possibilities of handling fish. The opportunity is there for the grocers with the right amount of initiative, and the fish season has arrived already and will continue right through to the return of the warm weather.

Nova Scotia apples were on the Englisa market one month before their usual time.

HANDS OFF PLEASE.

"I don't quite see the point of that remark of yours," said the grocer, as he tied up the package of sugar. "What remark was that?" asked the customer. "You just remarked that some men had an offhand way of doing things, and you wished I was one." "Yes; I wished to remind you that your hand was on the sugar when you weighed it."

GOOD OYSTER SET.

The oyster "set" in Connecticut waters this year, is not as extensive as in some previous years, still it is more abundant than any year since 1906. In Long Island sound, off New Haven, Conn., the "set" is in deep water and quite thick. In shoal water the "set" is light. It is several years since there has been a really good set. It takes four or five years for it to develop.

It is estimated that there are 10,000 acres of peanuts in cultivation in Arkansas this year, compared with 3,000 last.

Purnell & Panter, Bristol, England, who are now selling extensively on the Canadian markets, are the oldest and most up-to-date vinegar brewers in the Kingdom. But to compete with the increasing demand for their goods, they have had to make considerable alterations to their factory and brewery. They are now making a sweet pickle, especially for the Canadian trade. As it has a particularly fine flavor, and is attractive in appearance, it is assured a good reception here.—Advt.

Consumption of Coffee—Valorization

THE CONSUMPTION OF COFFEE IN CANADA IS AS YET SMALL BUT STEADILY INCREASING—UNITED STATES IS A BIG CONSUMER—PRICES HAVE SHOWN SUBSTANTIAL INCREASE IN PAST YEAR OR SO—VALORIZATION AS EXPLAINED BY A COFFEE DEALER.

The Canadian was not primarily a coffee drinker, but is becoming more so every year. The big influx of other nationalities has been responsible to a large extent, because the European and more especially the Dutch and German are great coffee drinkers, while the people of the United States, so many of whom are yearly crossing the line are also big consumers. The demand throughout the Dominion has accordingly widened, and has now reached something like 1¼ pounds per head. There are, however, splendid chances for its expansion, because compared with other countries this is small. For instance, in the United States the consumption per capita is around 14 pounds.

Reason for Price Advance.

Coffee has been making substantial gains in price during the past year or so. More especially has this been so in the lower grades, some particular lines of which have advanced a full 5 cents per pound during the past year. The better grades have not advanced in the same proportion, and this has been partly responsible for the increase in the use of the better grades. The facts in regard to the advance in coffee are rather interesting, because it is generally claimed that there is plenty of coffee in the world. However, the last two crops of Brazilian coffee have not been as large as formerly, and this is the reason advanced for the rise in price. Whatever the facts may be, it is true that the statistics in regard to the world's visible supply warrant the present strength.

Valorization Explained.

The dealer has heard much during the past year regarding valorization coffee, in control of the coffee interests and of which they placed 1,200,000 bags upon the market in April in order to afford relief, but which had no effect whatever in relieving prices. An explanation of the valorization scheme as set forth by one dealer is as follows:

"A point of interest is to know why coffee is so high while there is so much coffee in the world. You probably have heard of the valorization scheme. Coffee is the principal production of Brazil, and Brazil was producing coffee in such quantities that the farmers or producers were getting a very small price, not enough to really pay for the handling of the crop, which, of course, caused financial depression in the whole country.

"There were various schemes suggested for taking off the market this surplus of coffee. It was proposed that some of the trees be destroyed. It takes about eight years for a tree to reach it's best bearing, and while each farmer wanted the other man's trees destroyed, he naturally did not want his own tampered with, so this scheme was not feasible. A plan was finally worked out by an association of bankers both on this continent and Europe, whereby they would buy the surplus of about $40,000,000 worth of coffee, and sell it out in so many thousands of bags per year, in that way relieving Brazil from its immense over-production of coffee.

Worked Well for Brazil.

"By many it was thought that this scheme would never work successfully, as it was contrary to the law of supply and demand; but unfortunately for those in the coffee business, up to date it has worked successfully for Brazil, and has caused the high market that there is, and we are in the position of having to pay more money for coffee when there is actually plenty of coffee in existence."

MORE STORE PHILOSOPHY.

Be content if you will with each step of your progress as a step, but do not accept any such step as a destination. Keep going.

The store that gets into the habit of being "just out" of things the customers want will be likely to find itself getting just out of money.

Don't hire a man of bad habits with the idea of reforming him. Like marrying a man to reform him, it is beginning at the wrong end. Reform him first.

Every salesman in every store should understand that the goods in that store are no more his property than they would be if he were a customer instead of an employe.

It is the employes of a store who are in a position to discover the little leaks that are letting the profits ship away. When you want to find a leak inquire of the man most likely to know about it.

SODA-CRYSTALS (WASHING SODA)

Foreign Soda Crystals—and some of English manufacture—are being extensively offered for sale in this country which are grossly adulterated with Glauber-Salts (Sulphate of Soda), a cheap product which is not only entirely useless for washing purposes, but is even likely to injure the fabrics with which it comes in contact. The Adulterated Soda-Crystals, although nominally lower in price than BRUNNER MOND'S PURE SODA CRYSTALS, are in reality much dearer owing to the large quantity of useless and injurious matter which they contain.

Why Two Flours—If One is Better?

Remember this, Brother Grocer—
FIVE ROSES is not milled for pastry cooking alone.
Nor for bread baking alone.
But for BOTH — it's meant for Both—milled for both.
A general household flour —a genuine family flour.
Milled entirely from the best pastry producing parts of the Manitoba wheat berry.
From the driest, whitest, purest parts.
Ground much finer than a flour meant exclusively for breadmaking.
Just as our second grade (called HARVEST QUEEN) is meant for bread bakers.
FIVE ROSES is infinitely superior than such flours —better color, better flavor, easier to handle, keeps better.
But to make good pastry and equally good pastry, FIVE ROSES needed Strength.
In order to make big, fat, healthy loaves with tender crust and spongy crumb. It had to contain more gluten—more of the purest quality gluten, neither too soft nor too tough.
Also remember, Brother Grocer—
The woman proud of her bread wants to be proud of her pastry.
She wants to be a good cook all 'round—sell her flour that is good all 'round.
She uses the same butter, the same sugar, the same eggs, the same oven.
Why not the same flour?
Most flours are not made for every recipe in her cookbook—but made for only one purpose.
Takes time, and trouble, and knowledge, and milling science to produce a flour to suit your customer's every wish.
But FIVE ROSES makes good bread and good pastry.
It is milled on purpose.
Therefore it is best for the housewife, best for your customers—best for every single one of them.
Don't you see the opportunity to give better service, better flour service?
Serve best and you profit best, Brother Grocer.
And then, just see how your sales are simplified by selling only FIVE ROSES.
Less bookkeeping — less correspondence—less mistakes—less excuses — less trouble—smaller stocks—steadier sales—regular repeats—stronger salesmanship through specializing.
If others are doubling their sales — why not YOU?
Don't delay — ask your jobber—or write our nearest office.
DO IT NOW!

FIVE ROSES
is packed to suit your trade in barrels and halves—also in bags. of 7, 14, 24, 49 & 98 lbs.

BE HONEST WITH YOUR CUSTOMERS.

GIVE your customers a sound and pure article at a fair and just price.

Do not deceive by selling them the just as good product in place of the standard product of quality, just because the inferior product may show you a little larger initial profit.

Your customers demand quality (or value) and are willing to pay for it, so why risk your reputation, your customers' goodwill and confidence by recommending a product which you know to be inferior, when they demand the quality product?

Maybe you have wondered why so and so's trade with you has not been as large as usual; just pause a moment and consider that it may be the result of your not being honest with them.

If a small number of your trade demand the inferior product, do not endeavor to persuade the better and the larger number of your customers to believe that it is just as good as the quality product, but rather persuade the smaller number to buy the best, which will allow them more value for their money, and show you a better profit in the long run.

Quality products talk and sell themselves; be honest with yourself and customers by selling the products which you can honestly say are the best without the fear of having them prove unsatisfactory to your customers.

A Faultless Product

¶ There is no better factory in the world adapted solely to the production of Macaroni and similar pastes than that of Felix Codou in Marseilles, France. Every modern appliance is there—it is scrupulously clean—the original has been enlarged several times to meet the steadily increasing demand from particular people.

CODOU'S MACARONI

¶ Vermicelli, Spaghetti, Fancy Letters and Figures, as well as Macaroni, are the specialties produced—each one has a national reputation for high quality.

Taganrog Russian Wheat is used exclusively—the wheat that yields the BEST results—the only wheat that is peculiarly adapted to the desired purpose. "Codou's"—that is the name to think of when the best is wanted.

The Best Grade

An Opportunity For Large Profits

For a century or more St. Vincent Arrowroot has been an article of consumption all over the civilized world.

Recently, the enormous increase of the use of cocoa and chocolates and the study of domestic science and nursing have brought it into common use among a much larger portion of the people.

Arrowroot makes delicious Blanc Manges, Puddings, Biscuits, Cakes, etc., and is invaluable as a diet for invalids.

Very little education is needed to build up a large trade.

"Simcoe" Brand Baked Beans

A line that has become exceedingly popular throughout Canada by reason of a combination of high quality and generous quantity.

As a green label on each can tells your customers, these tins contain more beans than the 3's flat that are sold at a higher price. The various sizes are put up to suit large or small families or hotels.

And you can guarantee the quality, because the beans are all hand-picked, processed with exceeding care, and nothing but the purest sauces and spices are used.

Now that it is a very seasonable time for canned goods, push and profit thereby by selling "Simcoe" Brand Pork and Beans.

The Dominion Government Form of Warranty

Means much to every grocer in the handling of Spices.

It Means This

1. The grocer who receives this warranty with each spice purchase is insured against deception and fraud.
2. The manufacturer or seller giving this warranty is directly responsible to the government for any adulteration or deception on the spices he sells to the trade.—The grocer is not.
3. The consumer, your customer, has the only positive guarantee that the goods are genuine.

Now, Mr. Grocer

Do the spices you buy bear this Government Form of Warranty? If not, you are not insured. If the concern from which you buy your spices as pure will not give it, don't you think it is time to feel nervous?

EVERY TIN, PAIL, PACKAGE, BOX AND BARREL OF

"If there is one enterprise on earth," says John Wanamaker, "that a 'quitter' should leave severely alone, it is advertising. To make a success of advertising one must be prepared to stick like a barnacle on a boat's bottom.

"He must know before he begins it that he must spend money—lots of it.

"Somebody must tell him that he cannot hope to reap results commensurate with his expenditure early in the game.

"Advertising does not jerk; it pulls. It begins very gently at first, but the pull is steady. It increases day by day and year by year, until it exerts an irresistible power."

Advice on Changing to Cash Business

Western Ontario Dealer Desires to Cut Out Credits—Annual Turnover Amounts to About $14,000—Not Enough Details Given — A Question That Needs Close Consideration Before Any Change of System Should be Attempted—Brush up Present Methods.

* By Henry Johnson, Jr.

This is the same old question which comes to me periodically, generally with the evident expectation that it can be solved by some rule, and usually, as in this present case, without sufficient information to enable me to pass even fairly intelligent judgment. Here is the inquiry:

Henry Johnson, Jr., care Canadian Grocer:

Dear Mr. Johnson: Myself a subscriber and close reader of The Canadian Grocer, I would ask the privilege of a question or two, either through the columns of The Grocer or otherwise. I would like your opinion on the probability of a "strictly cash" system of handling my business, which consists of meat and groceries, in town of probably 3,000; business established thirty-three years ago in meat only by my uncle, and groceries added eighten years ago, same being under my personal supervision in grocery department for full time groceries handled, and both branches being under my care since 1900.

I am about moving into new premises nearly completed by myself, and have been considering advisability of a cash business on entering new store. Annual turnover would be in neighborhood of $13,000 to $15,000, with very small proportion of farm trade, of which I think we should get a better trade, but owing to small grocery department and also owing to the fact that we have a branch of the Blank Co-operative store here, and they seem to keep them coming pretty well—I understand they do cash only, or trade—we have a greater demand for dairy products in retail way than we can get in from the farm trade, although there is a good market here and a good farming community. I suppose we have the same trouble in collections here that retailers have the world over where a credit business is transacted. We try to keep credits down to thirty days, but in many cases it is 300, and then if we try to have a settlement in full, we lose an otherwise good customer. Competition is keen here as elsewhere, and working on limited capital, I cannot see my way clear to increase business without increasing credit, which I deem a burden every minute, as I claim at least 90 per cent. of the trade imposes on the retailer in the way of credits.

Yours truly,
A. R. C.

P.S.—I might say that there have been many changes in retail grocery and provision business here since first of the year; many old established firms selling out. I think we would stand a show of getting some new business if some inducements were offered.

The wise physician frequently quotes an old motto of the profession: "Respect old habits—even bad ones," and we are all familiar with the alleged futility of trying to teach old dogs new tricks. The first thing that occurs to me, then, is to advise my friend to go slow on radical changes for many reasons.

Respect the Credit Business.

The giving of credit may be a bad habit—I am not saying it is, mind—in this business; but it is an old habit, hence should be treated with profound respect. It has been going along for over a generation, presumably about as now. It will be best to take all things into account before we prescribe any such radical remedy as the abrupt cutting off of a portion which may be found, on examination, to be the one reliable support of that business.

I cannot tell just how important it is for several reasons.

I am not told how that $13,000 annual business is divided—how much cash and how much credit.

I do not know what are the actual annual credit losses.

I am not advised how much capital the business has; what it started with; how much stock and cash on hand now; how much owing and being owed; what is the average annual earnings and what the ratio of expense. All these things must be known before it were safe for me to advise what to do.

It All Depends.

For instance, if $8,000 of the business is done for cash and $5,000 for credit, we might find good reason for cutting off the credit—especially if the $8,000 would pay our way so that, at a pinch and under the worst conditions, we could get along on a business cut down to $8,000 for a while. But, if the figure were reversed—if $5,000 were cash and $8,000 credit, we might well hesitate about doing anything sudden which might cut off the greater part of that $8,000.

Again, if I knew just how much the actual credit losses amounted to in a year, I might advise more intelligently; and a statement of this character might be a revelation to my correspondent—it might readily show that he was not nearly as badly off as he now thinks he is.

Something in the Postcript.

All of these things can only be accurately gathered from a detailed statement of the condition of the business; but there is one danger-signal which I see right now which would make me all the more inclined to advise caution. That is the postcript—which as is usual with postscripts, contains a lot of the gist of the letter—wherein he says that he thinks he "would stand a show of getting some new business if some inducements were made."

This is the line of thought: If I sell for cash, I shall eliminate credit losses, so I can afford to sell more cheaply. If I sell more cheaply, I shall increase my business. If I increase my business, I shall make more money; and, like some other things, this looks well on paper. But, also like some other things, this seldom works out just that way in practice, for several reasons. First, the credit losses will look very small compared with the losses resulting from a general reduction of prices sufficient to look like "inducements" to the usual buyer. So the increase of business is problematical; and if that fails, the making more money goes with it.

Must Study Quality and Service.

In fact, there is little chance that my friend could sell perceptibly cheaper for cash. To make more money he must increase his business, not through thinking of price, but through studying quality, service, business methods. Especially should he devote himself to the last, for right there is his present greatest weakness. Let him not contemplate a move which only the strongest, brightest, most forceful and keenest merchants can make successful until he has brightened and strengthened himself a good deal in handling his line of credit. The cash business is emphatically one wherein the merchant must enforce his own rules and ways of doing business; yet here is one who thinks he can do that who yet cannot make his customers settle within "300 days," without driving them away.

I suggest that he begin at once to improve that portion of his management. Start right in NOW—at once—on the basis that thirty days is the limit; and that such limit means the full and complete settlement of bills every month. And, as you hope for success, do not extend your credit line among the farmers. They are "good," but slower than any business can possibly stand unless it be specially planned and built that way—as yours is not. That reform will prove very beneficial—very likely it will be all that will be required.

Brush Up the Business.

Then let my friend devote himself to general betterment of his business. Get it brushed up in every detail. Get up neat displays with price tickets. Keep the windows attractive. Do some careful, conservative advertising—straight, plain, honest talks to your townspeople. Deliver promptly. Work the telephone personally to drum up the best, most desirable trade in your town. Keep abreast with the times in the varieties of goods handled. In general be up and doing to make your store the one store of your town. Let no ambition less than this actuate you.

All of which may be modified by a statement, which I hope he will send to me; but I am inclined to think he is barking up the wrong tree, and a careful circumspection will lead him to start on another scent. Meantime, I hope I have helped; but am always ready to help again if I have not hit it right.

BEGIN COLLECTION DEPARTMENT.

Vancouver R. G. A. Going After Delinquents—Also Extends Its Scope.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 19.—(Special)—The collection department in connection with the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association, will be in operation in a few weeks. This is an experiment, but it is expected that it will turn out all right. A thoroughly experienced man will take charge, and the cost will amount to about $300 a month all told. Members of the association have discussed the matter, and they are almost unanimous regarding the benefits to be conferred.

Before accounts are turned into the association for collection, a notice is sent out by the dealer, calling the delinquent's attention to the fact that unless payment is made by a specified date, their name will be reported to the association. This alone has a desirable effect, and one merchant states that after the first notice was sent out, several accounts came immediately in. When a customer realizes that the account has to be paid, he figures out that it better not to delay, since that only means being put on the black list of the association.

Association Extending Its Wings.

The Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association decided at its meeting on Tuesday evening, to take in as members grocers carrying on business in Greater Vancouver. The policy has been up to the present to confine the membership to those doing business in the city proper. With the city's growth, it is difficult for anyone to discern any difference between (in the city) and (out of the city), and the extension is a reasonable one. Heretofore, such dealers could belong only to the B.C. Retail Merchants' Association, but this will give them closer local connection with a strong organization.

PRESIDENT RETIRES.

B. C. Retail Grocers' Association Will Have to Get New Head.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 19.—(Special)—Thomas Duke has sold his grocery store to Mr. Woods, and will retire from active participation in business. Mr. Duke was a successful merchant, and previous to starting up at the stand he has just vacated, he was in business on Westminster Avenue, where he successfully conducted the City Grocery. The reason for selling out was that his partner, J. McArthur, was not in good health, which threw the burden on Mr. Duke's shoulders.

This will mean that a new president will have to be elected for the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association, as the occupant of that office must be an active grocer. This is the second time the association has lost its president in this way.

Dear jam and cheap grouse will be the case in England this year. The intense heat of the summer is said to be responsible for both. The railway strike assisted to boost plum prices.

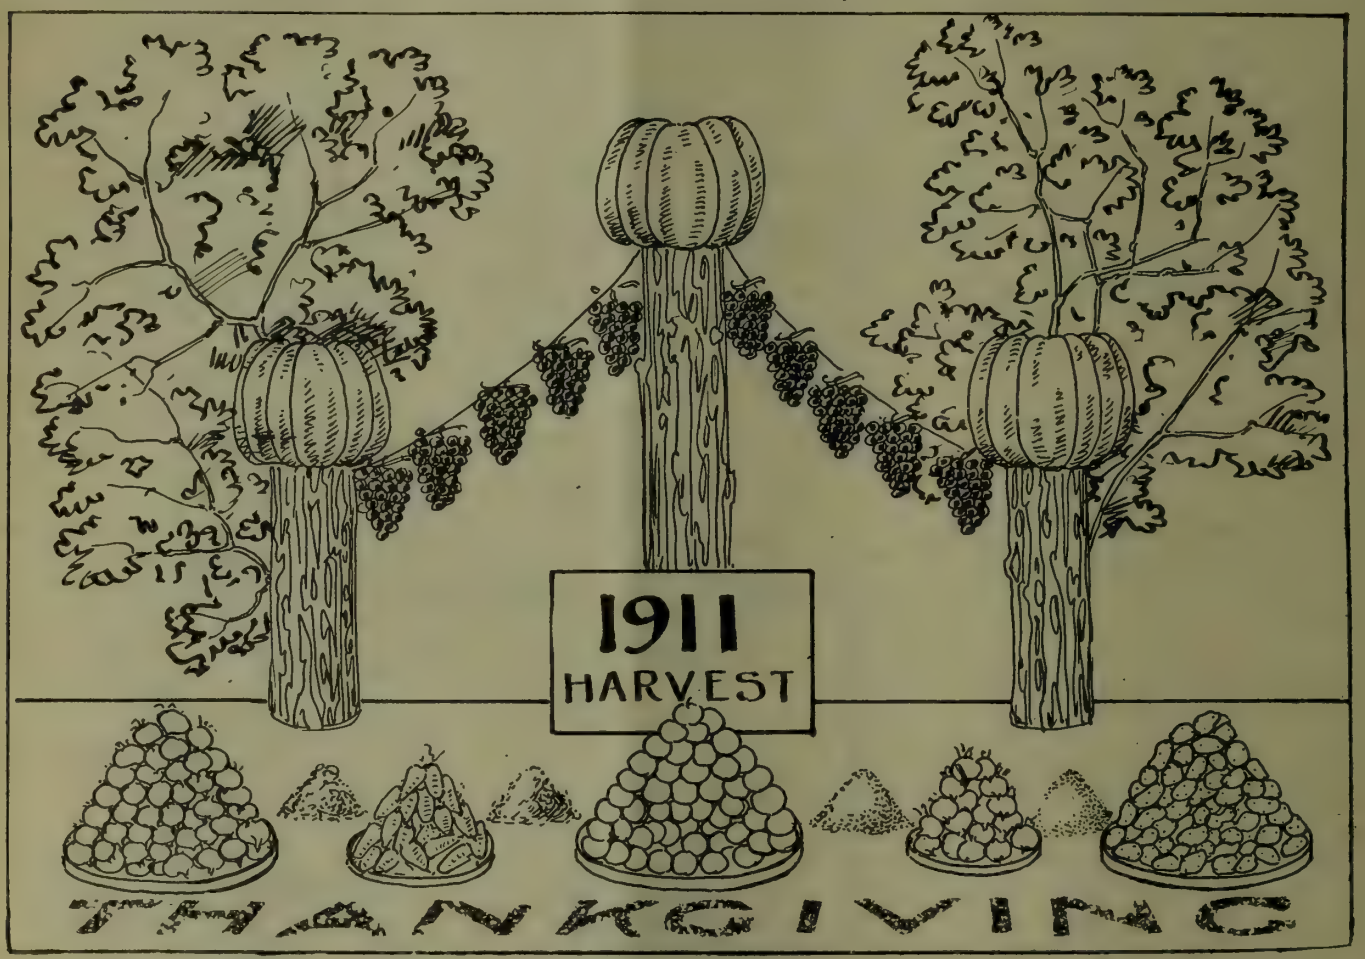
Thanksgiving and Hallowe'en Displays

A Time of the Year When Special Attention Should be Given to Display, Both Interior and Window — Suggestion for the Dealer for the Occasion—Should Make the Most of the Festive Season.

Monday, Oct. 30th is the day set aside for "Thanksgiving" throughout Canada. At this time it is essential that the grocer make such arrangements about his store as are appropriate for the occasion. The day is now not far distant and he should already be planning for it.

Hallowe'en, another occasion for something special in the way of display follows the next day and also requires attention.

Coming so close together this year as they did last year also, combined displays appropriate for both may be carried out. Besides the decoration of the interior, special attention to the window should be given.



Plenty to Work On.

An attractive window display can easily be made by the dealer, because he can bring into use all the fruits and products of the year's harvest, which can be combined together attractively.

Fruits and vegetables may be shown with price cards, or a Thanksgiving background may be used and any line that would be in demand at this time shown.

Display Suggested.

Herewith we give a suggestion appropriate for Thanksgiving and Hallowe'en. The floor of the window should be covered with colored paper. In the foreground, the word "Thanksgiving" is spelled out with any grain. Behind this in pyramids are shown some products of the harvest. In the centre is the larger display of apples, with beets and carrots on one side and onions and potatoes on the other. Smaller piles of grain lie between. In the centre of the background is a pedestal of wood, surmounted with a good-sized pumpkin. Two smaller pedestals with pumpkins are situated on each side connected by fancy cords on which bunches of grapes are pinned. On both sides, the display is completed by maple branches. A show card in the centre bears the inscription "Harvest, 1911." To give it the appearance of a Hallowe'en window, the pumpkins might be made into Jack o' Lanterns. If it is desired this background only may be used and any line of groceries shown.

Suggestion for Thanksgiving window. Pumpkins, fruits, grains and vegetables used.

PACKING FIRMS UNITE.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—A merger of three big Canadian packing houses with a capital of $5,000,000 is announced. They are the Laing Packing and Provision Co., of this city; Park, Blackwell & Co., of Toronto, and George Matthews, Ltd., with plants at Hull, Peterboro and Brantford. The present capital of these firms is about $2,000,000. Mr. Matthews is to be president of the merger, while Mr. Blackwell is expected to be chosen as vice-president. The merger it is said will be completed by Nov. 5.

The MacLean Publishing Co.—Please find enclosed P.O. Order for $2 to my subscription for The Canadian Grocer. Should have paid it before. Would not like to be without it.

Wide Awake Methods of Retailing.

Farmers Interested in Galt Window—A Flour Guessing Contest—Discount Allowed for Cash by Chatham Dealer.

The Grocer will pay any dealer or clerk for practical items for this page.

Interested the Farmers.

Galt, Ont., Oct. 19.—John Sloan, grocer, recently had a fine window exhibit of apples gathered in Waterloo county that have been sprayed this year for the first time, showing the results obtained by a little care of the orchard.

General interest was attracted by this window, many farmers having samples of their own fruit in it, while others were anxious to see just what could be done by proper care. The local paper also gave considerable space to it.

To Induce Cash Trading.

Earl Grey, Sask., Oct. 19.—S. Riesenburg, general merchant of this town is making a special effort to induce cash trading and in order to do so, is giving away free chinaware with cash purchases.

In a display advertisement in the local paper he explains the plan whereby customers may obtain a dinner set free by paying cash. "Our plan is simple. We give you a check with every cash purchase and a few checks entitle you to one article at a time. In this way you are enabled to pick out whatever pieces you can use to advantage first, and match up with the other articles afterwards, as we shall continue keeping this pattern."

The ad. finishes by saying: "We use these dishes simply as an advertisement and to encourage cash trading."

Flour Guessing Contest.

Hasley, Sask., Oct. 19.—The J. A. Nystuen Co. recognizing that the present is a splendid season for the sale of flour are featuring that line to good advantage. To arouse more than the unusual interest in this line, they are conducting a guessing contest of the weight of a sack of flour which they have displayed in their window. Their ad. in the local paper reads:—

"The sack of flour displayed in our window will be given away free to the person who guesses its correct weight, or should no one succeed in guessing the exact weight the prize will be given to the person whose guess is nearest to the correct weight. Should two or more persons guess the correct weight, or nearest to correct, the prize will be given to the one whose entry was first received."

Discount Allowed on Cash Sales.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 19.—Clifford J. Mahler, grocer, 390 Queen st., has adopted the policy of issuing cash register checks and allowing a discount on cash sales. In a circular letter recently issued to customers and prospective customers, he explains the proposition. Receipts are issued showing the date of sale and amount, and the customer on returning $10 worth of receipts is allowed 30 cents in trade. For lesser amounts, receipts are good for one per cent. of the face value.

A printed facsimile of the receipt issued, showing a receipt for $1, is embodied in the announcement, and this facsimile is accepted as $1 on the first $10.

This is probably the first time the cash discount system has been tried here in connection with the grocery business. A drug firm has used it for several years, allowing 5 per cent. in trade on all cash sales. This firm is satisfied with the results, and claim that the experiment has brought about a remarkable reduction in credit. In addition, it costs them less than the 5 per cent., since quite a proportion of the checks are mislaid or not turned in. In the drug business, too, the wider margin of profit on goods sold helps to pull down the actual cost.

Thanksgiving background by Warren Andrews, Anderson Co., St. Thomas, Ont., which may be used for the display of groceries at Thanksgiving. Background proper, base and border in green with gilt moulding. Pumpkins cut in halves, wheat and other grains, corn with husks turned back, braided and festooned for border. Pedestals twined with Fall foliage, surmounted by small fruits and vegetables. Lights may be placed behind each pumpkin.

Retail Grocers Hold Monthly Session

Trade Problems Discussed by Toronto Retail Grocers—Organizer Appointed and Membership Will Be Boosted—Testimony Showing That Early Closing Is Not Detrimental to Business—Will Hold Smoker in November.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—(Special) — The Toronto Retail Grocers held another interesting monthly session on Monday evening when a variety of trade problems came up for discussion.

The membership of the association which has been increasing with marked rapidity of late is not going to be allowed to remain at a standstill. The association recognizes that in union there is strength and will endeavor to get the co-operation of as many of the grocers of Toronto as possible. With this end in view on motion of B. Snow, Frank Johnston was appointed organizer and assistant secretary and with the co-operation of the members, a large membership is expected to be rolled up.

Endorse Early Closing.

The association unanimously asserted itself in favor of early closing, a question which it has long supported and fought for. A motion to this effect was put through on motion of J. S. Bond, and seconding of D. W. Clark.

Mr. Hall was the first member to introduce the early closing question. He pointed out that most members were in favor of it and he believed it would be a good idea to hold a mass meeting of grocers to ascertain the feeling of the trade in general on the matter. He did not think there was anyone present who opposed it, and if there was he would like to know the reasons.

He pointed to his own case as an example demonstrating that earlier closing is not detrimental to business. Whereas he formerly kept open until 10 and 11 o'clock, he now closes at 8, and in spite of the fact, his business is on the increase. He referred to one competitor who kept open from six in the morning until 11 at night.

Other members also stated that early closing had not acted adversely on their business. Neil Carmichael has closed at six o'clock every night but Saturday since he started in business and yet sales have been steadily increasing. "When I commenced," he said, "I decided to close early or not stay in the business. While not wishing to appear independent, I still stick by my resolution."

Druggists Sell Laundry Soap.

R. Davies wanted to know if anything had been done in regard to the soap question. "Drug stores are cutting in on the soap trade, selling standard laundry brands at 6 for 25c. I think that soaps belong to the grocer. Wholesale druggists won't sell drugs to the grocer and why should the druggist get grocery lines?"

An animated discussion was centred on the canned goods question, tomatoes bringing forth special comment on account of the manner in which they have been advancing in price. While some canners are delivering only 40 per cent. the percentage of others was stated to be higher. Several members reported that wholesale houses were giving them 100 per cent. of orders. While a large proportion of the remarks were complaints of the high price, some expressed the opinion that they would be able to make a fair profit on canned goods this year.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Editor Canadian Grocer,— I presume you have seen before this by our daily paper that I am retiring from business. However, I thought I would drop you a line as I have been a subscriber to your valuable paper, and must say have had many valuable hints from same. After thirty years behind the counter in Kingston, I felt I would drop out and let the next fellow have a chance, although I am still a young man, getting up to the fifties and in good health.

My successor is Jno. Gordon who has been in my employ as clerk for fifteen years and who has always been a faithful young man (Scotch.) The old staff are all remaining with the new firm —Russell Edger, who also was with me for ten years, and one driver who has been with me for eleven years, and all the rest of the former hands, so you see we did not change our help frequently.

My aim has always been to get the best help I could, to pay the highest salary and not to wait until a good employe asked for an advance. Give it when you think he deserves it. That has been my policy all through my business career. Will write you occasionally.

JAS. McCULLEN.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 18, 1911.

Social Function in November.

The executive committee are to make arrangements for the holding of a "Smoker" some time in November. Bowling will again be taken up by the Association, and Thursday evening was named for this. President Miller and Vice-President Davies will lead the contending forces in the contests.

The final report of the picnic held at Cobourg in June was presented showing a good balance. Messrs. Fry and Carmichael were appointed to audit the accounts.

Chas. Page, 1156 Yonge St., was proposed for membership.

CALIFORNIA WALNUTS.

The walnut crop in California this year will be the largest in the history of the State, estimates running from 11,500 to 12,000 tons. The largest previous tonnage of this nut in California was last year, the yield being 9,600 tons. Prices named by the associations are 1 cent below opening quotations in California last year.

In East London, Ont., some citizens in the vicinity of the grocery store of J. H. Wiley, Ontario street, regard some black finger marks on a post in front of his establishment as those of the "Black Hand" society. The story goes that probably Mr Wiley may have offended some Italians working nearby and that this is an ominous sign forboding ill. Mr. Wiley, however, is not taking as much interest in the affair as some of his neighbors.

The Cie. Francaise des Pates Alimentaires, Montreal, manufacturers of macaroni, vermicelli and spaghetti, beg to draw the attention of the trade to the fact they are the owners of L'Etoile and Constantini brands and of those only. They have had it brought to their notice that other brands have been sold merchants and represented as belonging to them.—Advt.

The grocery trade have doubtless noticed recent printed statements showing adulteration on spices, particularly peppers, the last of which appeared in the issue of The Canadian Grocer, of the 13th inst., on page 37, headed "Adulterated Pepper." White Swan Spices & Cereals, protect their customers from adulteration, by placing on every tin, package, pail, box and barrel of "White Swan" brand of spices, the Dominion Government form of warranty as to purity. This is absolute and positive insurance to the grocery trade on spices bought from this well-known firm.—Advt.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

SHOULD ASK A FAIR PROFIT.

The merchant is not in business for pleasure. He is there for the purpose of making money. This must be kept in mind if he would carry the business in which he is engaged to any marked success.

A fair profit is essential in every department and on every line. When the price of an article is increased to the dealer, he should get that much more for his goods. There has been an increase in the price of so many lines of groceries within the past year or so, that cases are known where the merchant has held the price of some staple lines at the old figure, regardless of the increased cost. The grocer is rightly entitled to a higher price for his goods, a fair living profit, and he should see that he gets it.

There are instances of many lines which have advanced and some grocers are now selling at a loss. Coffee might be mentioned as an example. There are still dealers who continue to give a low grade coffee which two years ago sold for 25c, to their customers at the same price to-day. The fact that lower grade coffees have advanced about 5 cents per pound in the past year makes it certain that those grocers are losing on all that coffee they are selling. It should not be so.

The grocer is entitled to a price in proportion to the cost.

PRICE-CUTTING AND IGNORANCE.

Price-cutting in the grocery trade is an evil that is more or less prevalent. Generally it is intentional, that is, the grocer makes an effort to attract new purchasers by offering a price lower than that of his competitor on some article, the retail price of which is generally recognized as being universal. That is the common form of price-cutting. But there are also numerous examples of reduced prices that exist through the ignorance of a grocer or his clerks. Not a few cases of this kind have been referred to in these columns from time to time and within the past week a fine illustration was presented to a representative of The Grocer in Montreal.

A dealer in the northern section of the city between Park Ave. and St. Lawrence St., thus expressed himself: "The grocery business would be all right if there were less of this price-cutting. Almost across the street from me, I can buy jams at three cents a dozen less than when I buy them from the wholesaler by the gross. They do not get a lower price than I, but they simply do not know what they do pay. It seems that the proprietor is leaving much of his business to his clerks and there is an example of what they know."

"Do your customers ever mention lower prices at the store to which you refer?" was the next question.

"Almost every day," was the answer. "They come in and ask for an article, and the price of it. Then I am told they can buy it for less across the way. In a number of cases I have shown my customers invoice sheets in order to prove that my competitor was losing money. They did not mention when higher prices than mine were being asked, but I feel sure that it often happens that the price is higher than it should be. The grocer himself is not paying the attention he should to his business, being engaged in other affairs, and his clerks certainly do not know how to conduct it."

This, then, is an example of how prices may be cut unintentionally. The combination of carelessness on the part of the proprietor and ignorance on the part of the clerks is not going to promote the best trade conditions in that neighborhood. No wonder some members of the trade become disgusted. Should you blame them?

BOARDING HOUSE TRADE.

The customers to whom you can sell large quantities are the ones worth cultivating. This does not mean you are to regard in a light manner the trade of the smaller consumer, but it is well to gather about you as large a number of big buyers as possible. Your sales to them are larger, they buy in larger quantities and the percentage of cost in selling and delivering goods to them is accordingly smaller.

In this regard, the grocer would do well to consider the trade of the prosaic "boarding house." This is open to the dealer, no matter whether in town or city. They are big buyers and their trade is worth trying for. If you have made no special effort in this direction, it would be well that you do so now.

VALUE OF INITIATIVE.

Initiative in the merchant or the clerk is a valuable asset. It may be defined as a something which causes the person to do the right thing at the right time. This is something to be aimed at.

It is an excellent trait in the make-up of a man to be able to put into play in his business, the ideas and methods which have proved of value to other dealers, but he who makes the biggest success in the line of endeavor in which he operates, besides being able to make use of other dealers' ideas, is also able to originate new plans and methods of carrying on his business.

The grocery business calls for just as high a degree of originality and initiative as any other. It is the dealer who possesses it to the highest degree that will forge ahead of competitors in the race for business and success. Such a dealer will not be content to do business in the same manner as his father and grandfather before him, if there is an improved method at hand. He is not governed by precedent or by customs, but has that independent spirit, that confidence in his judgment, that when an idea looks good to him, he will not be slow to apply it to his business.

Such men are in the success class.

Pulse of Grocery Markets in Canada

Brooms are Strong Owing to Extremely High Price for Broom Corn—No Weak Spots in any Line of Canned Goods—Inquiries for Tomatoes Being Made in the United States—Coffee Advances in Toronto—Starch is Higher—Corn Syrup Up in Winnipeg.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

POINTERS—

Starch—Up ¼ cent.
Strawberries—2's, up 25c per doz.
Corn—2's, now at $1 per doz.
Salmon—Very scarce.
Humpbacks—Future $1.30 per doz.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—Steadiness remains a feature of the market and the various houses are reporting satisfactory fall business. So many of the different lines are active that interest is rather general and it requires a good live grocer to know what is going on these days. The weather has been exceedingly fine during the past month and more recently has been ideal Indian summer. Trade has been assisted in this respect and more attention has been given the late fall fruits and vegetables than might have otherwise been the case. Prices are generally high and in many instances there are no signs of immediate relief.

No complaints are being heard in regard to collections, although here and there it is stated that the laboring people are not as well supplied with money as they should be. The people of to-day are good spenders. That's the trouble probably.

Sugar.—The market has not undergone much change during the past week and from the fact that it has not been much one way or the other there might be reason to believe that the top price had been reached and that the market was going to begin its ebb flow. Conditions are firm, however, and one jobber stated that he thought prices would go up before they would show any weakness. It remains to be seen, however. The demand has begun to fall off slightly, but the market has lost but little of its firmness.

Syrups and Molasses.—Molasses are firm at the present quotations, but nothing is known of what the new crop will be. Those who are in close touch with conditions look for firmness. Corn syrup should be regarded as firm. Starch is up a little this week owing to firm conditions in the corn market. It would naturally follow that syrups come under the same list. Nothing has been said in this direction, but syrups may be regarded as firm even considering alone the jam and other markets. Corn syrup needs watching by the grocer just now.

Tea.—The various markets are steady and firm. Business is good and conditions remain about in the position of last week. The Japan tea market has been exceptionally active during the past week owing to shortage of leaf and some rejections of China green teas at the coast, and a big demand was created in the United States for Japans, the market having advanced fully 3 Yen per lb. Later cable advices state that the Japan market is absolutely clear of teas of any description.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Business is normal in volume, but the farmers being loath to leave the work on the farm while the weather is yet favorable, has caused some slackness in various parts of the province, which is reflected to some extent in the wholesale grocery trade.

However, there is a fair movement of general lines, and jobbers on the whole are satisfied, for trade has kept at a good level, even during that period when slackness is generally apparent. It is therefore believed when the sales sheet at the end of the year has been added up it will show that 1911 has been a good year for the grocer.

Imported Belgium and French peas, as the result of short crops, are higher in price than last year. The Belgium article ranges from $11 to $15 per case of 100 tins, according to quality

Sugar.—The sugar situation is practically unchanged from a week ago. On the surface there is every appearance of steadiness, the market now being of a waiting nature. However, conditions would seem to indicate a turn to easiness when the effects of the domestic beet crop in the United States begins to exert its influence. "I have suggested Nov. 1 as a probable date for the easiness to make itself felt," said one dealer, "but there is no surety of the fact and it may not for some little time after."

Syrups and Molasses.—The molasses trade is not particularly brisk just at the present time, but with the high sugar market, there is a marked steadiness in price.

Starch has been advanced ¼ cent per pound, owing to the firm conditions of the corn market. It should be remembered that the same conditions affect corn syrups, which are firm. When starch was affected last time corn syrup also moved up, and although it does not follow that it should do the same thing this time, it is true that there is considerable firmness present. There is at present a brisk demand for syrups.

Dried Fruits.—The first advance shipment of Malaga raisins will probably arrive by the end of the week. Those retailers who have featured new crop figs since their arrival report a good trade in them. There have also been some small shipments of peaches and apricots, while prunes are getting a fair reception.

Valencia raisins are higher again, late quotations being 29s 6d, as compared with around 22s in the early season, and early arrivals at 25 shillings. This bears out what was predicted a short time ago, and there are dealers who expect them to go still higher. "I expect them to be around 33s. by Christmas," said one broker. Currants in the primary market are also strong.

Tea.—Markets continue on a steady scale both here and abroad. A late report on Ceylon teas says that all fine tippy teas have been dearer, and owing to improved quality several estates have obtained very handsome prices. The quantity of really choice tea has not been large. Medium tea was dearer for both leaf and broken grades while common tea showed the least rise, being about steady throughout the month.

Advices from Calcutta state that the weather in several districts is unfavorable and interfering with the outturn, and it therefore seems likely that the early forecast as to a substantial increase in crop may not be borne out.

Coffee.—Considerable emphasis has been given to the advancing coffee market and the strength of the local situation. Primary markets have been experiencing sharp advances, and local prices were bound to respond. It will accordingly not be a surprise to the trade to learn that a general advance has been made by most local dealers. The straight varieties here listed have been generally advanced in accordance with the rise in green coffees and there are dealers who state that even now prices on some lines are not as high as general market conditions warrant.

Spices.—For some time now, we have been referring in these columns to the strength in the pepper market. Prices in primary markets have shown a marked advance and naturally quotations here have been moved up in sympathy. The ruling price for black pepper in pails is now around 20 cents, while the white is quoted at 28 cents. Indeed, there is a general steadiness to spices, and of late nutmegs have been firming up. The pickling season brought a good rush of business, and even now a good satisfactory trade is in evidence. Just at present it is more of a filling-up nature, but very soon retailers will be beginning to place orders in anticipation of the Christmas demand.

Evaporated Apples.—As the production and offerings of "evaps" increase, naturally some slight easy tendency can be expected. Such is apparently the case.

Barley.—Prices on barley, both pot and pearl, have been moving upward during the past couple of months. At the present $3.50 per cwt. is being asked for pot, with pearl $1.00 per cwt. more. The market is still strong with a good demand.

Canned Goods.

Montreal. — Canadian interests have been inquiring and buying in the United States canned tomato market. One sale of 10,000 cases is reported to have been made for shipment to this country and local jobbers support the report by statements of negotiations with our friends to the south for any surplus supplies. The price paid was very likely $1 a doz., which means $1.40 to $1.50 after the freight and tariff duties had been paid.

Another note of interest comes from a local retailer who said that a jobber had offered from $1.50 to $1.75 for his lot of tomatoes. The grocer declined, however, feeling that by holding his stock it would be valuable in a few months. In salmon one house reports everything sold out but some Red spring quoted at $2 per doz.

There will be no new supplies until next year, except for humpbacks, which will come along shortly to retail at $1.30 a doz. They are about the lowest grade of salmon, and one's memory does not have to go back far to recall when they were quoted at 80 cents a doz. Such is the salmon market. Referring to the tomato market, a Maryland report says that in 1901 the market reached $1 about December 1st, and went as high as $1.60 f.o.b. in the spring of 1902. The present figure is $1 in the United States and there is a corresponding scarcity of high grade goods.

Retailers are selling salmon at 20 and 25 cents a tin. Five years ago, yes, less, they did not even dream of such prices.

Heavy syrup strawberries, No. 2's, are quoted at $2.25 a doz. This is no surprise to those who have followed the market reports in these columns. The pack was short, and other conditions combine to make the situation even more acute.

Toronto.—The canned goods situation is now beginning to settle, although dealers have not exactly ascertained yet how they stand in regard to stocks of some lines. General steadiness prevails in prices.

Spot tomatoes are held by local jobbers at $1.50 to $1.65 per dozen. Inquiries are being made in the United States regarding this line, and some sales to Canadian dealers are reported. The situation on the other side of the line is much worse than for a number of years. While last year's 3s in the States ranged around 85 cents, now $1 is being asked, making it impossible to lay them down here so as to break the present lowest spot prices. Retailers have had offers ranging around $1.40 for what goods they have ordered. Corn is generally held at above opening prices.

Strawberries and raspberries, 2s, in heavy syrup are held by the majority of firms at $2.25 per dozen. There is still considerable difference in ideas of the value of beans.

Salmon is strong and has every indication of continuing so. Best sockeyes are held at $2.45, and most wholesalers have not any great quantities to offer. Humpbacks and pinks are quoted at $1.35 per dozen.

Winnipeg, Oct. 19.—Owing to appearance of another week of wet weather threshing operations have again been delayed and once more are the farmers chafing and waiting for some fine days. In former years the complaint has been that there has been no crop to harvest. This year a large crop has been cut, but the grade of wheat is being gradually lowered, while thousands of acres of flax will not be cut at all.

In spite of these conditions trade holds steady and the volume transacted each week shows considerable increase over last year. Collections have been extremely slow, but it is recognized that they could not be met before, and that the majority of notes will be met, as the price of grain is holding high and feed is selling at a price this year which in other years good wheat has been sold for.

Sugar.—Market shows no tendency at the moment of weakening, and the demand is just as strong as ever. A large volume of trade is being transacted, and while there is a difference of opinion as to future changes, a steady market now prevails. Jobbers are adverse to stocking heavily now that the advance has been checked, and as a result only buy enough to comfortably supply the trade. Prices remain unchanged as follows:

Syrups and Molasses.—All corn syrup advanced 5 cents per case owing partly to the continued strength of sugar. The demand is normal and steady, railroad companies' orders being the heaviest this week. One wholesaler stated as his opinion that if sugar remained at its zenith high prices would yet be seen.

Dried Fruit.—A small shipment of apricots were received last week, but the first large supply will not be on hand for two weeks. As stated before, prices are high and lower figures are expected after the first batch of orders have been filled. Prunes are in the same situation. Prices are still holding high, but a drop is looked for here before long.

Evaporated Apples.—The first carload of new stock made its appearance last week and has been pretty well disposed of already. As mentioned last week, prices hold strong at 11 to 11½ cents per pound. A decline is expected in a few weeks.

Coffee.—The market is very strong and some firms which had not advanced their prices to the 16-cent per lb. basis did so last week. Higher figures are being talked of, as sales and demand are heavy.

Beans and Peas.—Prices are unchanged in beans and the advances which have been so noticeable in this line appear to be checked permanently. Supplies from the east are expected next week.

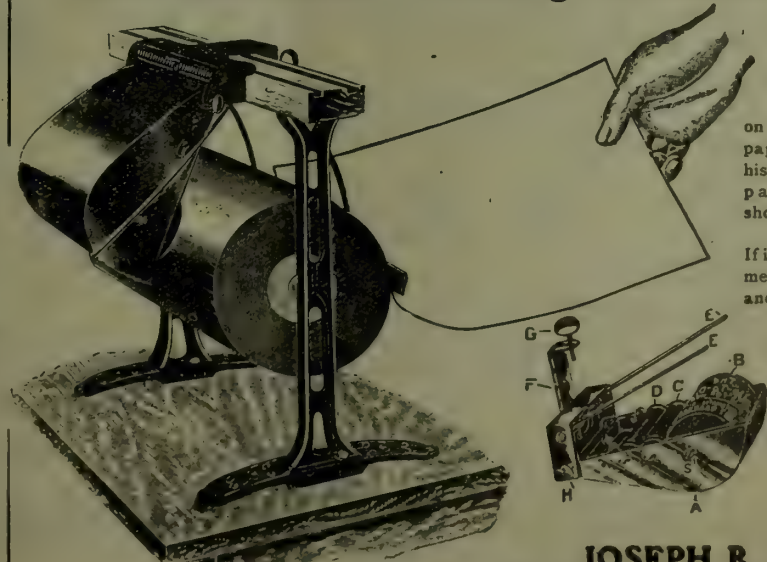
NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Oct. 19.—Wholesale grocery trade was a little slack during the past week. The lull, however, is considered only temporary. Many large orders for the coastal parts have been filled, but the real rush has not yet started in. Prices are pretty steady throughout the list, but some of the dealers express the opinion that the price of sugar will go still higher. Extra standard granulated is firm at $6, and United Empire at $5.90. New layer figs are now on the market and they are going to the trade at 12 cents per pound. The price of barley was advanced fifty cents per 100 pounds this week. It is now selling at $5.50 per barrel.

Lard is easier at 13½ cents per pound, but the price of bacon and hams remain firm, the former selling at 18 cents for sides and the roll at 13½ cents. Hams are quoted at 18 and 19 cents.

Flour is in fairly good demand, Manitoba high patents being quoted at $6.15 to $6.25, and Ontario blends at $5.10 to $5.20.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.



St. John, Oct. 19.—Business continues quite brisk for the week, and indications are for a good healthy trade during the remainder of the year.

The feature of the week has been an advance of 10 cents per barrel in Manitoba flours. It was announced on Saturday, and brings local quotations up to $6.35 to $6.45 per barrel.

In some quarters a decline of ¼ cent in compound laid is reported.

Did you ever call personally on your customers who don't buy tea from you but get it from a pedlar?

The pedlar is now selling the poorest grade of tea that is allowed to come into the country—stuff that just gets by the Customs Inspector.

High markets have driven him to it. If you will spend a few days making personal calls I promise you you will get an agreeable surprise.

You will find that these customers of yours who have been buying from pedlars are not at all satisfied with the trash they are getting, and very ready to give you an order for tea they can depend on.

Sell them Red Rose Tea once and I think I can guarantee you they won't buy from a pedlar again.

Now is the time. Never been such a good chance before. Isn't it worth doing?

If you can't go yourself you have a bright clerk who might do as well, or even better.

Vancouver Secretary Attends Convention

Was at Spokane Last Week—Tells of Troubles Besetting Grocery Trade at Seattle—Secretary There Has Resigned—One Dealer Out of Business.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 19.—(Special)—R. D. Dinning, secretary of the Vancouver Retail Grocers' Association, attended the convention of grocers held at Spokane last week. Spokane is the centre of the inland empire, and Mr. Dinning, reports that one of the features of the attendance was the large number of secretaries of associations in the district surrounding. Fifteen of these were present, representing a large territory. He is of the opinion that Canadian conventions compare exceedingly favorable with that of Spokane.

Returning by way of Seattle, he found things in a very unsatisfactory condition. J. J. Higgins secretary of the association there, has resigned because of being disgusted with things. The grocery business is being undermined by the operators of what is called the market in that city. It is conducted by a large corporation, which makes a point of getting some staple article in one, two or three carload lots, paying a cash price, and thus getting a favorable quotation, and then offering it below the regular price to draw patronage. The price is below cost, but the loss is charged to advertising, and is concluded to be well spent. First it is cream, soap or some other staple.

Mr. Dinning cited an instance of where an endeavor was made to secure five carloads of an article, which indicates the scale on which the business is conducted. That regular trade has been demoralized, is shown by the remark of a merchant who has been in business there for twenty years. He has four stores, one of which is not far from the market and a fine location. A year ago he was offered $1,000 to get out and let someone else have his stand, but he turned down the offer with scorn. Now the store is closed.

Vancouver has had a little experience along this line, but nothing on a scale to demoralize trade. In fact, conditions in this city are very good at present.

Hog Prices Have Been Falling Off

The Price of Both Live and Dressed Hogs on the Downward Trend for the Past Six Weeks—Supplies are Plentiful and English Market Easier—Butter and Eggs Continue in Steady Position.

The Canadian hog is not the valuable animal he was six weeks ago. Since early in September live hog values have been on the down grade, and are now $1.80 per cwt. below the price of Sept. 1. However, it must be remembered that prices at that time were the highest since the previous October.

A large delivery of the porkers has been responsible for the decreased prices, but whether this really denotes the quantity of hogs in the country is a question. Unlike other countries, dealers in Canada are not supplied with figures so valuable in forming an idea of the market. The opinion has been put forward by many dealers that the high price of feed is inducing the farmers to sell off their hogs.

Then again the English bacon market, a certain factor in determining values here, has been easing off. On Sept. 6, quotations for Canadian bacon ranged from 64 to 68 shillings. Late cables denote a price of 57 to 62s.

With the lowering of live hogs, it is only natural that pork products exhibit some slight easiness. However, there is a general good demand for provisions, that for the heavier lines increasing, and that of smoked meats naturally dropping off a little.

Cheese prices still hold at the previous high levels. However, the steadiness is not so marked of late. The English market is not quite so strong. A late dispatch says stocks are light but high prices check business. Finest Canadian is quoted at 70s. to 71s., as against 71 to 73s. on Oct. 5. Stocks here are smaller than for many years at this time, so that dealers look for a fairly steady market.

The butter situation shows no new features of interest. The tendency is one of steadiness. Egg receipts are falling off, and there is a stronger feeling present. At some points considerable storage stocks have had to be used.

MONTREAL

Provisions.—The market has shown a number of changes during the past week. Live hogs are down to $6.25 and $6.50 and the price of dressed hogs is reported easier. Pure lard is slightly firmer and also some lines of barreled pork. Hams, however, are easier. The demand for pork is good, but hams and bacon are inclined to quietness.

Provisions.—Live hogs have certainly been on the slump during the past six weeks, another 25 cents having been lopped off prices this week. Quotations at country points are now at $5.90, which is $1.80 per cwt. below the price ruling on Sept. 1. Last year at this time prices were $8, but they then began a downward movement reaching $5.75, the lowest point so far this year in May.

With this decrease in hog prices, provisions exhibit a tinge of easiness. Long clear which under a healthy demand has been steadying up, is quoted just slightly lower at 12½ to 13 cents this week. There is a general good demand for pork products.

Acute Situation Reached in Broom Corn

Entire Crop Reported to be Out of Farmers' Hands in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas—High Prices Paid by Manufacturers —Prospects for Future Prices in Brooms—Reasons for Present Conditions as Given by a Manufacturer.

Reports from the broom corn districts of Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas received to-day, more than ever emphasize the peculiar conditions referred to already in these columns. Broom corn buyers are scouring the country for corn and report the entire crop is now out of the farmers' hands.

"No time in the recollection of the oldest broom manufacturer," stated one Canadian dealer, "has such a condition been brought about so early in the season as this year. In the flurry of 1909 and 1910 it was always possible to find some farmers who were willing to sell their crops at a fair return on their investment, so that the conditions did not assume at any time anything like what they are now. Manufacturers who contracted early at low prices for their corn are in a worse fix than those who did not because many of the farmers who sold early are now defaulting, selling their already sold crop over again, thereby forcing these manufacturers on the market at the time when it is at its highest."

High Price Paid For Corn.

Choice corn was quoted and bought last week at $240 per ton, and this means 20c a pound. Take a 24-lb. broom and you have $4.80 for corn alone to say nothing of wire, handles, tacks, velvet and labor. This does not mean to apply that all the brooms made from now on will be with corn at this basis, because they will not, but one can safely figure if corn is finding ready sale at such an extremely high price the lower grades will be affected, proportionately, and cheap brooms are therefore out of the question.

"Many dealers have asked the question, 'What is the reason for these high prices?' and in answer," continued our informant, "after thoroughly canvassing the leading broom corn counters, and carefully considering all its details, we can say positively it is all summed up in two words, "Short Crop." The first planting of corn was, from State reports, considerably below the average, necessitating a second planting to even things up with last season, and up to the first week in September this second planting looked fine, but it only required a few days of hot winds, and unfavorable weather to interfere with the crop. Hot winds and weather conditions are most assuredly responsible for all the crop troubles this year."

Opinions of conservative dealers of broom corn are that nothing can now be done to avert high prices.

Poor Prospects From Foreign Corn.

"We might add," further explained this manufacturer, "that some manufacturers have been figuring on the foreign corn being a factor towards cheaper brooms, but from reports received to-day there is no doubt this crop, too, is a failure, and cannot possibly affect domestic conditions. Foreign corn is being quoted to-day at a figure that, taking into consideration the enormous waste involved in its handling, makes it just as high as the domestic crop, and as 95 per cent. of it can only be used on the lowest grade brooms, puts it entirely out of the running."

Many of the U. S. factories are now quoting $4.50 dozen for their cheapest brooms. Canadian manufacturers' prices are at present below this, but it is possible there will be another advance soon.

TRADE NOTES.

Halifax, N. S., expects to secure a pickle factory. Negotiations are now underway between the council and promoters.

Manitoba Flour Up 10 Cents per Barrel

Wheat Markets Stronger—Some Bookings for Fall and Winter Reported—Western Wheat is Grading Low—Good Season for The Grocer Who Pushes Cereals.

An upward move of 10 cents per barrel has taken place in Manitoba flour this week, the first change since the 20-cent rise on Aug. 18. Although the last two changes in flour have been upward, the price of this commodity is still 30 cents per barrel below the figures of one year ago.

Present trade seems to be of normal volume. Last week, considerable export business was reported from Montreal, offers being more within the ideas of exporters. In regard to bookings for fall and winter requirements, different mills find themselves differently situated. Some say there has been little or no buying yet, while others report that both retail dealers and bakers are now making contracts. Purchases generally become freer towards the approach of the close of navigation.

This advance in flour has been in sympathy with the stronger values for wheat. In the Canadian West, while deliveries have been improving, the grading on account of adverse weather conditions has been poor. The world's shipments of wheat last week were much less than expected.

"I am of the opinion," said the representative of one firm; "that wheat is bound to be cheaper. Canada has a bumper crop, and it is the poor grading that is now supporting the price." Still there are others who put forward opposite views.

MONTREAL.

Flour.—Spring wheat flour was advanced ten cents per barrel on Saturday last and first spring wheat patents are quoted at $5.50 per barrel in bags. The export demand has increased and this has given the market additional strength. One has not to look far for the reason of the increase in prices. Out of 779 cars of wheat received at Winnipeg on October 14, only a total of 183 cars registered as first and second grades. This small percentage of finest quality wheat is almost entirely the result of the recent rains which were said to have damaged the stock. Actual damage to a large extent was done and the flour mark records a little price jump as the result. The demand is excellent, both locally and from the country.

TORONTO.

Flour.—Manitoba flours have been advanced 10 cents per barrel this week, the change taking place on Monday which brings 1st patents in car load lots up to 5.40 per barrel. The stronger wheat market is responsible. "Compared with a year ago," said one dealer, "flour is really cheaper than wheat. While Manitoba wheat is to-day 3 to 4c higher than a year ago, flour is 30 cents per barrel less."

A good normal present trade is in evidence in flour, but while some millers report that retailers and bakers are booking for fall and winter necessities, others maintain that trade in this direction has as yet been very small. One local miller reports a sale of 35 cars of flour to one baker, showing some trade at least is being done for future wants.

Some millers are asking 10c. more per barrel for flour in cotton sacks, although this cannot be said to be general, although it is being considered by other mills which have not as yet adopted it. Cotton has been advancing with such rapidity that this is being found necessary.

Cereals.—There has been no change in cereal prices during the past week and the steady tendency still remains. Consumption of cereals is at a good volume, with a brisk trade reported by millers, especially for rolled oats. Indeed one firm was about out of supplies at their Toronto warehouse for a few days last week. Mills are sold well ahead in rolled oats. "I don't look for any break in prices this side of the new year," one dealer said to The Grocer.

COMFORT SOAP'S LATEST PREMIUM.

The Comfort Soap people are to be congratulated on the success of their latest premium, viz :—The Comfort Soap Sealing Machine now so largely used by up-to-date Toronto grocers. This machine saves time and twine, and gives an up-to-date appearance to the counter.

The Comfort Soap people are giving Free this Rapid Sealer to purchasers of 25 cases of Comfort Soap.

The machine is the most modern invention adapted for the wrapping of packages.

This up-to-date idea is a saver of time, labor, and money. Two inches of tape will do the work of two feet of twine, and do it better, neater, quicker and cheaper. On one roll of tape you may have 4,800 advertisements, and can seal up as many as 2,400 parcels.

These machines will make an attractive addition to any counter, and will not occupy any more space than a twine holder. The idea is simply for your parceler to draw a moistened tape with your advertising on it from the machine and place it on your packages wherever the paper meets.

Tapes with The Comfort Soap advertisement are supplied absolutely free by The Comfort Soap Company, which fact alone means a great saving of twine expense to the owner of one of these machines. The grocer may have his own advertisement on the tape at less than cost price. Every grocer should secure one of these machines at once before the supply runs out, especially when they can be had absolutely free of cost.—See full-page advertisement on page 13 of this issue for further particulars. Prospects for Oranges and Lemons

Oranges Now in Better Demand—Valencias Coming to an End—Florida, Mexico and Jamaica Will be Sending Supplies—Navels Later Than Last Year—The Situation in Lemons—Malaga Grapes Arriving

With domestic lines of fruits in smaller supply more interest is being directed to imported goods. Oranges are in better demand and prices are slightly firmer.

Shipments of California Valencia oranges are drawing to a close and will probably be finished by the end of the month. Growers have been extending their orchards, so that Valencias last until much nearer the navels than they previously did. Some Florida oranges are expected along in a week or 10 days. A normal crop of good quality is reported from that state. Mexicans should arrive around the 21st of the month and are said to be of better quality than in previous years, while the same is also reported of Jamaicas, which will arrive soon and will serve as a cheap orange. Navels are not expected as early as last year, both because the season is later and because the pure food laws prevent the shipment of immature or artificially colored fruits. However, they are expected along before Dec. 1, and prospects are for as large and as good a crop as last year.

On some markets lemons are exhibiting a slightly easier tendency, although this cannot be said to be general, depending on supply and demand. One dealer reports that his information regarding the new crop is that the best quality will be shorter than last year and that the total will be slightly less than first expected. Another dealer expects first arrivals about the first of November.

"Lemons," he says, "will be well cleaned up before the arrival of new crop." That is what the larger dealers say. There is a good demand in Europe for the lower grade lemons which will probably have some effect on the general situation.

Malaga grapes are beginning to arrive on Canadian markets.

The report from the Dominion Agriculture Department set the condition of potatoes at 76.78, the same as last year, but 13.60 less than two years ago. Conditions are generally lower in Ontario than elsewhere. The Maritime Provinces and the Northwest provinces give 90 per cent. and over for potatoes. It will be remembered that two years ago, potatoes were plentiful and cheap.

MONTREAL.

Green Fruits.—Apples are coming forward freely with a good demand for export. There is a fair local trade and stocks are moving steadily. Malaga grapes are offered now in two weights, medium and heavy. The demand for California grapes and Canadians is good Oranges are moving a little more freely. Green Fruits.—Domestic lines of fruit are gradually disappearing from the limelight, and imported goods are again coming into the position of prominence. Many of the fruit men are already preparing to leave the summer market, denoting that the end of the domestic fruit season is not now far off. Peaches are clearing up, and although they are still of nice appearance, they are losing their flavor. Grapes are still coming along but not in as large quantities as last year. Tomatoes are not of the best quality and there are more offered than there is demand for.

Valencia oranges, the only kind on the market just now, and which we reported as firm last week, are quoted at higher prices this week. Shipments of these will soon be over, and Florida and Mexican will probably be called upon to tide the trade over until arrival of new crop navels. Florida grapefruit is now on the way and with a short crop, prices are expected to be higher than last year. One dealer said probably $5 to $6 according to size. Lemons are exhibiting just a slightly easier feeling.

However, stocks are expected to be well taken up before the arrival of new crop

Fish - Oysters

Weather Not Favorable for Fish Trade

Present Autumn Weather Not Particularly Beneficial For Fish or Oyster Business—Good Improvement, However, in Past Month—Coming of Real Winter Weather Would be Welcomed by Fish Dealers.

There is a fair trade in evidence in fish at the present time, and a substantial increase in the sales of this line has taken place in the past month. Still, the weather just at the present time is not favorable to the cause, and the approach of real cold weather would work for a good improvement. The same may also be said of oysters.

Lake trout, pickerel and pike continue in good supply, but the season for these is nearly finished. This is the close season for white fish, but there are some frozen left for the demand. Supplies will now begin to change from the fresh to the frozen.

Codfish arrivals at Halifax have been rather disappointing of late. The September catch of herring was not good, the dogfish having kept the herring out in deep water. Shipments of smoked fish from the Maritime Provinces to the West are quite heavy. Smelts are expected to be on the market in a week or so.

The price of Madeira fish in Newfoundland has been advanced 20 cents per quintal.

QUEBEC.

Montreal.—The fine autumn, or rather Indian summer, has not been particularly beneficial to the fish trade. The demand has been good, but the best part of the season has not arrived. For instance, the trade in oysters would undoubtedly be heavier with colder weather. But as it is, there is much room for improvement. Oysters will move more freely with the first approach of winter coming to stay, and even now business is good. Fresh haddock is more plentiful this week, and fresh cod and mackerel are also coming forward. Lake trout, pickerel and pike continue in good supply, and the season for these fish is nearly finished. There is no fresh whitefish at present, it being close season, but there is some frozen whitefish left for the demand. In smoked varieties, haddies were more plentiful this week, thanks to improved weather conditions. New fillets have been limited in supply and the higher price quoted is a direct result.

NOVA SCOTIA.

Halifax.—The arrivals here of codfish during the past week have been somewhat disappointing, and prices are firm with a good demand for what fish shows up. The Lunenburg bankers are arriving with good fares, and the fish makers have their hands full trying to get the stock ready while the weather is fine. Several more cargoes were shipped from Lunenburg to Gloucester this week. In spite of the duties they have to pay the Gloucester merchants find it profitable to handle. For Bank cod now in course of curing at Lunenburg, it is reported that $6 per quintal is being asked, but the final price will altogether be governed by the usual law of supply and demand.

Dealers say that the catch of herring in September was disappointing. This is attributed to the dogfish keeping the herring out in deep water. Fishermen are now looking forward to a late fall catch. The market for pickled fish is fairly firm.

Receipts of halibut on the local market are fair. Good haddock are scarce, and the demand is excellent. Dealers report the smoked fish trade good all round. Shipments to the West are quite heavy, and orders are coming along for all the fish that can be packed. It is expected that smelts will be on the market in the course of a week or so.

Fish buyers held a meeting at St. John's, Newfoundland, this week, and advanced the price of Madeira fish twenty cents per quintal in that market. It is now quoted at $5.20 per quintal. No change was made in the other prices of fish.

HIT HARD NOW

The season of big things is on. Keep "hitting up" the fish trade and you'll see a "bump" in your bank account. It can't help "swelling," because profits are large and most satisfactory. Our lines are all winners and will make that fish department of yours a regular success.

CANADIAN BRANCH

50 JARVIS STREET, TORONTO

MR. RETAIL MERCHANT, Everywhere, Canada. Oct. 19, 1911

DEAR SIR:—

Among other false impressions once current regarding the handling and sale of oysters was the notion that oysters should be watersoaked. But this notion is now obsolete. These are the things you should be careful about in connection with your oyster business: That your oysters come from communities that produce oysters with the best flavor and that mature them sufficiently firm to retain that flavor for the longest time possible. That shipment is made in the most sanitary package obtainable. That the oysters are refrigerated at a low temperature, and also protected from freezing. And that they are displayed attractively.

Remember that the frequency with which your customers use oysters depends entirely upon the satisfaction they obtain.

We would call your attention to the fact that "Coast Sealed" Oysters are grown on the most desirable ground—ground that is famous for the flavor of its oysters; and shipped to you in the "Coast Sealed" Carrier—the acknowledged peer of all packages. If you desire it we can supply you with a Vacuum Insulated Cabinet that will protect your oysters from freezing and save at least 75 per cent. of ice. There are no hampering restrictions connected with any of our propositions.

Soliciting an early inquiry,
We remain,
Yours faithfully,

Booming the Business by Bulletin

Western Ontario General Merchant Got the Idea From Newspaper Bulletins—Superior to Blackboard He Claims — Uses White Paper and Red Ink.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 19. (Special)—"Booming business by bulletin" is the new idea adopted by a successful general merchant. He occupies a corner store, and the idea takes concrete form in a semi-circular bulletin board posted on the corner pillar. On this bulletin board announcements of new goods or special lines are pasted.

"I got the idea when I visited Toronto a few weeks ago," explained the merchant. "I noticed that there were always little crowds standing outside the newspaper offices, reading the newsbulletins that were posted up as the despatches came in. It struck me that the idea could be adapted to the grocery business.

New Arrivals Posted.

"Hence, I had my bulletin board made. Whenever some new line comes in, or a big shipment of something arrives, up goes a bulletin. As you will notice, I use white paper and red ink, which makes a clear and striking design. There are always people stopping to look at the bulletins. They attract more attention than show cards in the window, largely, I suppose, as a result of their novelty.

"I have no regular time for changing the bulletins. Suppose a shipment of sweet potatoes arrives in mid-day; I have the clerk write out a bulletin to that effect, and paste it up forthwith. It is a helpful aid, too, in moving stock that is a little bit slow. For instance, I think this or that brand of pickles has been a little too long on my hands. Up goes a bulletin: 'Take home a bottle of mustard pickles to stimulate your supper appetite.' And you'd be surprised to see the people who will respond to the suggestion.

Supplements Window Display.

"Of course, the idea takes paper and paste and ink and time and effort. Then, too, the field is limited to the passers-by. It helps out the window displays, however, and attracts notice by its very novelty. The use of a blackboard for special announcements is a scheme as old as the hills; but generally the blackboard had to be placed on the sidewalk, which is something the police regulations won't permit nowadays. In any case, the blackboard announcements did not show up as clearly as ours do, and the blackboards could hardly be used in wet weather. I started out by pasting the announcements behind the plate glass window, but this scheme necessitated frequent cleaning of the glass, and I dropped it. The bulletin board works better.

Inserts a Catchy Phrase.

"I don't make my bulletins just a list of prices. A catchy sentence or two —rarely more than a dozen words—is more suggestive than a mere price."

Samples showing the general style of the announcements are the following:

"September brings oysters. Ours are fresh, just in. Try them."

"Sugar for preserving $6.25 cwt. Buy before the price jumps again."

J. & J. Colman, Limited, London, Eng., have a novel post card on which appear an illustration of the first United Kingdom Aerial Post. H. M. Mail is being carried by aeroplane from London to Windsor. "No responsibility in respect of loss, damage or delay is undertaken by the Postmaster-General," is one of the announcements.

When placing your order for Canned Fish, be sure you have the name right:

"BRUNSWICK" Brand

It is the finest brand obtainable, and may be relied on to give the fullest satisfaction.

By the "Brunswick" modern, sanitary process of canning, the natural fish flavor is preserved to a remarkable degree.

Keep a generous stock of "Brunswick" Sea Foods. There is an excellent profit in selling them.

WHERE DO YOU BUY?

Retail storekeepers of to-day stock pretty much the same lines.

Most of the lines are staple articles to be purchased anywhere at the cheapest price.

Other articles, however, need a closer study. A certain price may look lower, but on comparison of stock may be higher.

Oysters are amongst this latter class.

Since the laws of both United States and Canada regarding the sanitary methods of shipment have been enforced, there is not much to choose between the different dealers in regard to the style of shipment.

Oysters are artificially cultivated, and come from widely different localities.

Does it not impress you, Mr. Retailer, that the stocks, quoted at the same price per gallon, might be of greatly different value?

We think so.

We are spending a lot of money to bring this to your notice. We feel that we now have a grade of oysters superior to any offered in Canada.

The measure is SOLID. The stock is SUPERIOR. The price is right. Every can of oysters is received by you exactly as sealed at the Coast. What more could you ask?

Opportunity for Sale of Condensed Milk

Consumption of Condensed Milk Steadily Increasing But Its Sale Could be Extended and Enlarged by Proper Efforts on Part of Dealers—Reasons Why It Can be Recommended—High in Quality and Purity—Its General Use.

Myriads of inventions are yearly being brought to our notice which not so long ago would have been declared impossible. Not alone are these confined to mechanical devices but in many products handled in the grocery store we have evidence of this advancement within the past half century.

Not so many years ago, if we had been told it would be possible to can milk so that it would possess all the advantages and be put to all the uses of the fresh article, we would have never believed it. Things seemingly impossible, however, have been achieved and now not only have we condensed and evaporated milk possessing all the advantages of fresh milk, but it possesses none of the disadvantages, a feature which has helped materially in its sale.

Sales Rapidly Increasing.

That the sale of this milk is increasing with great rapidity is a well-known fact. Not alone is it true in cities but in the smaller towns and even in country villages, dealers are selling more and more of it.

The many good points in its favor are responsible. Nevertheless, in spite of the increased production, there is still ample opportunity for the enlargement of its sale if the grocer puts the necessary efforts behind it.

Perhaps one of the reasons why this line has not been given the attention that it should, is that the dealer himself does not really understand the condensed and evaporated product, and the many points in its favor.

Must Overcome Prejudice.

For some reason, there has been in the minds of many a prejudice against it, founded on the belief that its quality, purity and use are not equal to the fresh article. This has kept them from recommending it as they would an article in which they had unbounded faith. This belief has been founded without proper examination.

Manufacturers realized the prejudice that would exist in the minds of the public and have kept that in view and prepared an article which overcomes that prejudice. The milk is gathered in a sanitary method, and cleanliness is the keynote of its manufacture, not alone in the factory but from the moment it leaves the cow. The milk is carefully examined by fully qualified inspectors. The most scientific methods are employed in the factory. Thus the dealer is assured, and he in turn can assure his customers, that it is as pure and good as the fresh article, and he will be surprised, as the writer was in making a study of condensed and evaporated milk, to learn the general uses to which it can be put.

Difference Between the Two.

Condensed milk is ordinary milk mixed principally with sugar to preserve it and as the name implies "condensed."

Evaporated milk is fresh milk, without anything added, merely evaporated and relieved of the water which it contains. It is unsweetened and preserved by sterilization only.

Now with fresh milk extremely scarce in many portions of the country and the public being warned of its indiscriminate use, an excellent opportunity is presented to the grocer for the extension of the sale of this milk. Attention to it in display, advertising and personal talks are the best methods of doing this.

FEW OUTSTANDING ACCOUNTS.

They Did Not Exceed $50—Cash Business in Vancouver.

North Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 12.—L. H. Williams, of upper Lonsdale, has disposed of his grocery business to McAllister Bros., and has left for his former home in Boston, Mass., to remain there permanently. Mr. Williams is one of these capable men of business who have proven that right methods and close attention to business are bound to succeed. Starting business in a most modest way over two years ago, Mr. Williams steadily built up an excellent family trade, which continued to enlarge with the result that three times he found it necessary to seek enlarged premises, and a few months ago he removed into the quarters which are now occupied by the business.

Mr. Williams has always transacted business on a strictly cash basis, and is able to boast that when he sold to the present owners the total outstanding accounts did not exceed half a hundred dollars. The actual value of the goods on the shelves together with the value of the business on the basis of the monthly turn over—all the product of a little over two years' work—is such that Mr. Williams finds himself in position to return to his old home and to establish himself in a comfortable way in that city, upon a permanent basis.

BISCUIT EXCELLENCE

There is a wealth of good quality ingredients used in the manufacture of Reception Wafers, and it takes very little persuasion on your part to make your particular customer try them—the thin flaky salted soda cracker with the distinctive flavor. And you will find that the favor with which they are received will surely result in a big demand for them.

Put up in "Aertite" packages—a feature in connection with the excellent quality of Reception Wafers, which makes them a profitable and rapid-selling stock.

We also make all kinds of Dainty and High-Grade Biscuits

REMIND YOUR CUSTOMERS

That Benson's Prepared Corn possesses an extreme delicacy that is never imitated by other corn starches which try to equal it. You can tell them that readily takes the full flavor of any kind of seasoning and gives results in cooking that are quite impossible with a starch of less fineness and purity.

THE EDWARDSBURG STARCH CO. LIMITED

MONTREAL—CARDINAL—TORONTO—BRANTFORD—VANCOUVER

has a reputation for absolute purity and superior quality that makes it easy to sell. Little known brands take time and talk to make a sale, and the busy merchant has no time for either. He prefers the Soap that people buy without urging---and so he sticks to SURPRISE.

FOR THANKSGIVING—

"GRIFFIN'S SEEDLESS" are a specialty of Griffin & Skelley
Nothing superior is packed or obtainable

What the consumer says:

"I find 'Griffin's' Seedless Raisins the best I have ever used, I tell all my friends how clean and nice they are."

We have hundreds of such letters.

"THE FINEST AND CHOICEST CALIFORNIAN RAISIN GROWN."

Griffin & Skelley's Seedless Raisins

There can be only one best, one leader, one nearer than another in the hearts of good cooks. And in the Raisin World that distinct and individual production, "Griffin's Seedless Raisins," easily takes first place.

Free from dirt, as well as seeds—carefully chosen by skilled hands and alert brains—the seedless raisin, standard of quality everywhere!

Highest Quality

The absolute purity of Cox's Gelatine makes it a standard product of world-wide fame.

Cox's Gelatine

It has never disappointed, and never will, because folks get what they expect and want when they buy the peer of all—"Cox's." Highest quality to-day, to-morrow, and all the to-morrows to come.

Codou's Macaroni, Vermicelli, Spaghetti, etc., represent the top notch of quality—the highest attainment of skill, experience and cleanliness in a model factory.

Codou's Macaroni

A Macaroni whose delicacy bears witness to the caution used in selecting only finest wheat (from Taganrog) for the making. Nutritious to the highest degree. The name on every package "Codou" serves to assure you of highest quality when you buy.

Simcoe Beans--Better Than Home Baked

Progressive Canadian Grocers are selling more Baked Beans than they ever did before. These grocers have found it to be a very profitable policy to push hard our SIMCOE BRAND BAKED BEANS. They are made from selected beans, cooked by the latest scientific methods; all the sauces are carefully prepared from ripe fruit and pure sauces.

The result is a perfect can of delicious baked beans; beans that are better than home baked; and will sell to all classes of trade, with a good margin of profit.

Don't fail to call your customers' attention to the highly important fact that the high cost of living does not apply to Simcoe Baked Beans. A meal for an entire family for 10c. is still possible.

Fire-proof

Every one of these merchants had large stores in which buildings with contents were completely destroyed, but they all saved their accounts through the Keith Fire-proof System.

This positive evidence of the fire-proof qualities of the Keith Systems actually spreads all over the United States, and yet, strange as it may seem, certain manufacturers of drop-leaf systems who would first sell their system and would then afterwards sell you an expensive safe in which to store the accounts—call us fire-proof takers.

They have an axe to grind.

We have given you facts backed by sworn affidavits and we, therefore, feel safe in leaving this matter to your intelligence.

The fire-proof feature is only one of the many points of protection offered by the Keith System.
